ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Slick Idea

Q. Could Tidelands oil funds be used for an off-shore airport by Long Beach? W. C., Long Beach.

A. Tidelands funds probably could be used to finance development of an off-shore airport, but existing legislation would have to be amended to authorize it, according to a February, 1969, ruling by the city attorney's office. "Generally speaking, the existing tideland legislation does not expressly permit use of such funds for such a purpose," said the opinion. The precise location of the airport would have to be considered — whether it would be on state or federally-held lands. And the use of tideland funds also would be affected by whether construction and operation of the proposed airport would be undertaken by the City of Long Beach or by joint powers, or an agency created for such purpose.

No Berth Day Celebration

Q. I would like to know if anything was ever done about the investigation of the Long Beach Marina. We have been on the list for a boat slip for four years, and from what we've been told we have at least another five years to go. We know of a person who got a slip in three weeks. I understood there was going to be a general investigation there. What happened to it? L. H., Long Beach.

A. While all individual complaints are investigated by the Marine Department, no general investigation of the department ever has been requested or proposed by city officials, according to Larry McDowell, department director. He said a year ago someone submitted a two-page list of alleged incidents of mishandling of slip rentals, but the department's investigation of the accusations "turned up nothing. Our waiting list is scrupulously maintained and adhered to," McDowell said, "and we keep a constant check going with Sacramento on the ownership of boats in the Marina." He said there are more than 8,000 people on the waiting list for slips.

The Kit Bag

Q. On Feb. 15 I sent a check to Family Circle magazine in New York for a daisy afghan kit that was pictured on the cover. My check was deposited on March 2, but I still haven't received the kit. I would sincerely appreciate anything you can do to unearth some information concerning this order. Mrs. J. P. S., Huntington Beach.

A. ACTION LINE spoke to Mrs. E. Sisson at Family Circle Magazine, who said she would write to the mailing agency and ask them to check on your order. She said the agency will not accept calls, and refused to give us the agency's name. "Your reader will hear from them in a few days, I guess. That's all I can tell you," Mrs. Sisson said. She added that there was an overwhelming demand for the afghan kits, and the manufacturer has had trouble keeping up with the orders.

Make Waves

Q. I am a troubled surfer, as are many others. Surfers in Seal Beach are not allowed to surf on the right side of the pier except before 10 a.m., while only a few swimmers use the ocean. Midway, between the pier and the jetty on the right side, there are never swimmers, but surfers still are outlawed. We are all jammed together in about 150 yards of the ocean. Is this fair? Who can I contact about this? J. C., Long Beach.

A. You can write to the Seal Beach City Manager's office, 211 Eighth St., Seal Beach, Calif. 90740, and request that you be allowed to bring the matter before the City Council. Dennis Courtemarche, assistant to the city manager, said the surfing restrictions are made for reasons of safety. "There are many swimmers all along the beach on weekends, and on hot week days," he said. "This is an old problem. There's just no way to keep everybody happy."

Treated Civilly

Q. In a recent ACTION LINE item, you said a person covered by CHAMPUS can go to the civilian doctor of his choice for treatment. But, participation in this program is voluntary for physicians and not all of them will accept CHAMPUS patients. So, is there a booklet available which lists the names of doctors who will treat them? H. T., Long Beach.

A. None that we could find. Most doctors will treat patients in CHAMPUS, the health program under which military dependents can get treatment from private physicians with the government paying a portion of the bill. But some may not because the paper work involved often delays payment of fees for four or five months. A Naval Hospital spokesman suggested you check first with the doctor to see if he will take CHAMPUS patients and accept the fee schedule the program provides for.

Nixon Speech Heckled

President Hails
Mormons; 200
Dissidents Chant

United Press International

President Nixon addressed a crowd of 20,000 persons from the steps of the Mormon Church office building in Salt Lake City Friday night against a background of antiwar chants by about 200 demonstrators.

The President was forced to raise his voice so that he could be heard against the noise of the demonstrators shouting, "Power to the people."

After a few minutes, the demonstrators quieted down as others in the crowd yelled "shut up," and Nixon was able to continue, comparing the Mormon pioneers who settled Utah with America's astronauts.

Earlier in the day the President had flown to Fargo, N.D., for a discussion of farm problems with five governors, and later Friday night he flew on to the western White House at San Clemente.

AFTER BEING greeted by Joseph Fielding Smith, 94-year-old president of the Mormon Church, Nixon climbed up the steps of the office building in downtown Salt Lake City and, facing the crowd, said:

"I have never seen a crowd so big or so friendly."

But as the chants from the demonstrators persisted, Nixon's smile vanished and he tensed slightly, clasping his hands. Then he spoke louder to praise the spirit of Utah's 124th Pioneer Day celebrating entrance of the Mormons into the Salt Lake area.

"Those early Mormon pioneers had the kind of spirit that sees great problems and responds with great force," said Nixon.

He recalled that just a year ago this week he had flown to the Pacific to welcome America's moon-walking astronauts back from their epic flight.

"THE SPIRIT that took those men to the moon, the spirit that came here 124 years ago... that kind of spirit has built the greatest country on this earth," he said.

"We in America know we're not perfect. We in America know we have problems but we also

BLOODY 'X' ON FOREHEAD

Manson Sought Race War, Prosecutor Says

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

Hippie cult chieftain Charles Manson was painted Friday as a "diabolical, satanic killer... who murdered to bring about a black-white war which would bring the country to ruin but him to power."

As the long-haired leader of the Manson Family sat with a bloody "x" carved into his forehead, Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi outlined the state's case against him and three of his female followers — Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten.

Manson, in a prepared press release, claimed he had "x-ed myself from your world" and sat solemn as his trial officially opened in Los Angeles Superior Court. His co-defendants listened only briefly, leaning against each other, whispering and giggling.

Motive for Manson's ordering his followers to kill, the prosecution claimed, was to "ignite 'Helter Skelter'... start the black-white revolution by making it look like the black people had murdered the five Tate victims and Mr. and Mrs. LaBianca... thereby causing the white community to turn against the black man and ultimately lead to a civil war between blacks and whites."

Manson, the prosecutor contended, envisioned that the black people, "once they destroyed the white race would be unable to handle the reins of power because of inexperience and would have to turn over the reins to those white people who had escaped... to Manson and his followers."

BUGLIOSI admitted to the seven-man, five-woman jury that Manson's philosophies "are so strange and so bizarre that if you heard them from the lips of only one person, you probably wouldn't believe it." He said the state therefore would offer the same testimony from several wit-

$10 MILLION PUT BACK

Governor Hailed for Restoring Aid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Virginia (Ginger) Azzopardi burst into tears of happiness Friday when she heard that Gov. Ronald Reagan was restoring $10 million in welfare cuts.

"Gee, that's great, that's terrific," said 22-year-old Ginger, who lives alone with her crippled mother.

Her mother, Carmen, received a letter from the Welfare Department only Thursday but couldn't open it because of crippling arthritis. It had said the nursing care payments, on which she was dependent, were being cut from $235 a month to zero.

"THIS IS the greatest news we could have received," the mother said Friday of the governor's turnabout. "I don't know what would have happened to me if the cuts had been made."

Mrs. Azzopardi cannot move by herself. She must be carried to and from an automated wheelchair by an attendant, can only be fed liquids and weighs 80 pounds.

The frail 50-year-old woman is kept alive by medicines and special treatments and lives alone with her daughter who works as a secretary to pay necessary bills.

Ginger is only 22, but she doesn't go to movies or dances or on dates like other girls her age. She must be at home to care for her mother when the nurse leaves for the day.

The Azzopardis' reaction

Berserk Father in 2 Gunfights

A family dispute which erupted into a stabbing spree and two separate shootouts left one man and four women dead and two children critically wounded Friday in the Willowbrook area.

Dead are Clevin Metcaf, 34; his wife, Johnnie B. Metcaf, 28; her sister, Mattie Wilson, 22; another sister, Pearlina Wilson, 19; and a friend, Linda Walker, 24.

Wounded were Mary Metcaf, 13, and a 10-month-old girl, Valisa Hardy.

A security officer at a discount store across the street, hearing shooting, ran to the house to investigate. The guard, Cleveland Verdine, 34, then engaged Metcaf in a second shootout.

Metcaf retreated into his

Tough Air Pollution

Bill Gains

SACRAMENTO (U) — The Senate unanimously approved tough air pollution control legislation Friday imposing up to $6,000 a day fines on industries and public agencies that contaminate the air.

Water polluters face the same stiff fines under the Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act which went into effect last Jan. 1.

THE AIR pollution bill, which does not apply to pollution from automobiles, is aimed at achieving better compliance with state, county and regional anti-pollution laws and regulations.

The measure, drafted by the Assembly Subcommittee on Air Pollution, won Senate approval by a 28-0 vote. It now returns to the Assembly for concurrence in Senate amendments.

Under its provisions, the state attorney general, county district attorney or attorney for an air pollution control district may sue any person, industry, state or local agency.

HAZY, HOT WEEKEND IN STORE

"Hazy sunshine" will warm Southland coastal areas today, the Los Angeles Weather Bureau says.

And the sunshine will get hotter — if not hazier — on Sunday.

Early morning and night-time low clouds and local fog are expected throughout the Southland, with high temperatures ranging between 75 and 85 today, and five or six degrees warmer Sunday.

Visitors to the mountains and deserts can expect scattered cloudiness and occasional afternoon or evening thundershowers.

Infant Finds, Swallows LSD

A 21-month-old Costa Mesa infant was hospitalized Friday night after he accidentally consumed a quantity of LSD in the family home, police said.

The infant, Thomas McKnight, of 964 Denver Drive, was reported in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach, suffering from a drug overdose.

Costa Mesa Police Sgt. Jack Cannon said the infant's 15-year-old brother had been arrested on narcotics charges.

Mideast War End, U.S. Goal

WASHINGTON (U) — The United States is trying to negotiate a total military standstill — not just a cease-fire — as part of its plan to end the Mideast war and start peace talks between Israel and the Arab states.

Informants said Friday this attempt to halt all military activity as well as to silence the guns is at least part of the U.S. response to Israel's extreme concern that Egypt would take advantage of any halt in Israeli air attacks to reinforce heavily its defenses along the Suez Canal.

Israel is expected to insist, if it accepts the U.S. peace plan at all, that any military standstill must be put under adequate supervision. Policing, diplomats say, might be undertaken by an expanded U.N. force in the Mideast if agreement could be reached on both sides to have a cease-fire at all.

The issue of possible deliberate cease-fire violations, as posed by Israel, is one of the most serious specific problems threatening the success of the peace program secretly advanced by Secretary of State William P. Rogers to the governments of Egypt, Jordan and Israel on June 19.

Rogers' letter — to which he had referred only in vague terms as a "new initiative" — was made public by the government of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser when it conditionally accepted the Rogers plan this week.

Egypt's acceptance and endorsement of the plan by Russia brought a surge of optimism in the Nixon Administration about Mideast peace prospects for the first time since last fall when another such diplomatic offensive collapsed.

Rogers is described as greatly encouraged. U.S. officials acknowledge, nonetheless, that critical and extremely difficult issues remain.

One of these is Israel's widely proclaimed fear that Egypt would take advantage of an end to the shooting to move more Russian-made anti-aircraft missile bases to the banks of Suez. Such an operation would not be necessarily prevented by a simple cease-fire — and no evidence appears on the face of Rogers' letter that the cease-fire would be more than that.

Qualified informants said, however, that the published letter contains only a summary of the peace proposal and that a more detailed plan specifically provides for an end to all military activity coincident with a cease-fire — a complete military standstill.

Blast Under Car Seat Kills Corporate President

Combined News Services
Philip Lucier, 49, president of Continental Telephone Corp., was killed Friday when a homemade explosive attached to the ignition of his car demolished the auto.

Two vice presidents of the firm who had been lunching with Lucier were not injured, although they were about to enter the car when the explosion occurred. The auto was in a parking lot in the St. Louis, Mo., suburb of Clayton.

The vice presidents were James Robb and James Napier, both of the St. Louis area.

Maj. Herbert Johnston, of the Clayton Police Department, said the victim's body was "damned near cut in two. It looked like he sat on a stick of dynamite." Johnston said the bomb had been attached to the car electrically. He said it was wired to the ignition, and apparently exploded when the ignition switch was turned. The device was a pipe filled with black powder. It was placed under the length of galvanized pipe.

front seat on the driver's side.

Witnesses told police the car exploded when Lucier attempted to start it. Johnston said Lucier told his associates he was going "to get in and cool it off," apparently meaning he would turn on the air conditioner. Johnston added that police had no suspects or motive for the slaying.

Lucier became the firm's first president in 1961. Since that time Continental Telephone has become the third-largest independent telephone company in the nation with operations in 43 states, eastern Canada and seven Caribbean islands.

BOBBING BOYS

Two 17-year-old youths began an assault on the world's seasaw record Friday in Castro Valley. Gary Turpen and Steve Cooper started at 6 a.m. and plan to continue until they have logged 100 nonstop hours. According to the Guinness book of world records, the current record is 91 hours, set last year in Australia. The U.S. record is 50½ hours of continuous seasawing.

UNIDENTIFIED

Gov. Lester Maddox suffered a bruised shoulder and elbow Friday when the state patrol car in which he was riding missed a curve in a heavy rainstorm and crashed into a concrete abutment. The unidentified trooper driving the car and Lt. Ray Newman, the governor's security aide, also were bruised but not hospitalized.

STRONG FORCES

Dr. J. Herbert Hollomon, who has resigned as president of the University of Oklahoma, said Friday he took the action to ally the "strong forces of repression" unleashed by the governor of Oklahoma. Hollomon said he feared for the fundamental freedom of the university students and faculty to maintain views contrary to "the accepted style." Gov. Dewey Bartlett, who made repeated public attacks on Hollomon's handling of student antiwar demonstrations last May 12, launched an unsuccessful attempt to oust him last month.

INDIAN COUNTRY

Vice President Spiro Agnew's 14-year-old daughter rode on horseback across rugged mountains Friday to land claimed sacred by the Taos Pueblo Indians in New Mexico.

Kim Agnew made the 10-hour trip through the Sangre de Cristo mountains as an official representative of the White House.

President Nixon and Agnew have supported legislation restoring 48,000 acres of land to the Indians. The tribe claims the land and the crystal waters of Blue Lake, lodged at an 11,000-foot elevation in the spruce and fir-studded mountains, hold religious significance.

ONASSIS THREAT

Police in London have accused a British engineer of demanding the equivalent of $3.35 million to call off a plan to kidnap Aristotle Onassis and his wife. The police said Friday night that John Humphreys, 58 and married, was under arrest and due to face a court today on charges of making unwarranted statements with menaces.

The suspect was charged with demanding 100 million drachmas, Greek money, to hold off on an alleged plot to seize the Greek shipping magnate and his wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy.

DESTINY

Three black congressmen wrote President Nixon Friday that his policies are "destined to destroy all possibility of unity and brotherhood" and urged him to invite black leaders to the White House for a discussion of racial problems. "The dream of complete racial equality cannot become a reality in the absence of a firm commitment from you," wrote Reps. William Clay, D-Mo., Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., and Louis Stokes, D-Ohio.

"The patience of many black Americans is exhausted," they said. "The Constitution gave us our rights . . . the Civil War confirmed those rights. Unfortunately, the policies of your Administration have tended toward limiting those rights."

PAPAL FIRST

Pope Paul VI hopes to go to Yugoslavia in September 1971, the first visit by any Roman Catholic pontiff to a Communist country. Vatican sources said the Pope already has decided on Yugoslavia for the next trip after his scheduled visit to the Philippines and Australia in November. That journey will be the first by a Pope to the Far East.

DECORATED

The Army ordered a general court-martial Friday for M. Sgt. William Higdon, a decorated 23-year veteran of military service who is accused of theft and bribery while in charge of servicemen's clubs in South Vietnam.

It was the Army's first move toward military prosecution of a group of career sergeants implicated last year in Senate hearings on alleged misuse of thousands of dollars in funds from overseas clubs through kickbacks, rackets and thefts.

Higdon, 40 and the father of three children, was charged last March on two counts of stealing a total of $7,300 and three counts of accepting more than $25,000 in bribes as custodian of clubs for non-commissioned officers and enlisted men at Long Binh, Vietnam, in 1967-68.

'PLAYMATE' FREED

Gloria Root, 22-year-old Playboy magazine "Playmate" is released from Athens prison Friday and expelled from the country. Miss Root was arrested with a companion, Corbin Parker, at the Greek-Turkish border last October when police found 40 pounds of hashish hidden in Parker's car. She was sentenced to 18 months in jail. Parker was sentenced to five years, but escaped this year.

CHALLENGE

Consumer watchdog Ralph Nader Friday was granted legal permission to challenge the $6-billion merger between International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. Hartford, Conn., Superior Court Judge Jay Rubinow ruled that Nader had the legal standing to try to block the merger because of his past performance as an advocate of consumer rights. This decision had to be won before further suits could be filed.

Nixon Signs Bill to Hypo Home Building

WASHINGTON — President Nixon signed Friday the Emergency Home Finance Act which is designed to pump new mortgage money into the lagging home building industry. He called the measure "enormously important" in helping to ease the nation's housing problems which he said are still severe, and are aggravated by a large construction deficit accumulated over the past four years. The bill authorizes appropriation of $1.2 billion for three mortgage interest rate subsidy programs. Two of them are aimed at aiding middle income families earning about $9,000 a year by reducing home loan interest rates to 7 per cent. Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., says experts expect as many as 512,000 new home loans will be made available to low and middle income families as a result of the new law. And, in turn, it could stimulate some 1.1 billion new jobs in the construction industry.

Vandalism Continues Despite Curfew

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — Sporadic window smashing, vandalism and setting of small fires were reported Friday night in this city despite a dusk-to-dawn curfew ordered earlier when a state of emergency was declared. By 10 p.m. there had been 12 arrests reported, mainly for curfew violations. Some 110 police wearing helmets and carrying rifles from at least six surrounding towns were manning roadblocks set up at major arteries in and out of town.

Prospects Brighten for Welfare Reform

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Welfare Elliot Richardson said Friday growing receptiveness in the Senate Finance Committee has improved prospects for enactment this year of the Nixon Administration's welfare reform package. "I began the week believing the chances of passage were even," Richardson said. "I'll now modify that to 'better than even for a bill recognizably similar to ours.'" The secretary based his assessment on three days of hearings this week before the sometimes hostile Finance Committee. The reform bill has been stalled there since House passage last spring, and was sent back once for redrafting.

Drug Seizures Mount: 760 in 6 Weeks

NEW YORK — U.S. Commissioner of Customs Myles Ambrose announced Friday that 760 narcotics seizures and 650 arrests have been made in the first six weeks of the Customs Bureau's nationwide intensified enforcement program to curb smuggling of illicit drugs into the country. The value of the seizures is estimated to be about $4 million. The breakdown includes: cocaine, heroin, marijuana, hashish, "dangerous drug tablets" and LSD.

Railroad Files Bankruptcy

PHILADELPHIA — The Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., following the lead of its parent Penn Central, filed for reorganization Friday under the federal bankruptcy act. U.S. District Judge John Fullam, who is handling the Penn Central reorganization, approved the Lehigh Valley petition and agreed to name trustees to guide the reorganization.

Probe Reveals History of Death Road

WASHINGTON — Government investigators said Friday there have been 40 accidents in less than four years on a curving, quarter-mile stretch of road near Allentown, Pa., where a bus crash killed seven children last week. The National Transportation Safety Board said a review of records showed that accidents on Interstate 70 near the bus crash site had averaged almost one-a-month over the past 42 months.

U.S. Detects Russ Nuclear Test

WASHINGTON — The government announced Friday evidence of another presumed Soviet underground nuclear test, the second this week, the fourth this year, and the 41st since the limited test ban treaty of August 1963. The latest presumed test was rated to have packed an explosive wallop equivalent to between 20,000 and 200,000 tons of TNT.

Fires Out of Control But Rare Birds Safe

CALGARY, Alta. — Five forest fires burned out of control Friday in Wood National Park, home of the whooping crane, but the nesting grounds of the rare birds were not in immediate peril. One blaze was 20 miles west of the 1,200-square-mile nesting region of the cranes, but the prevailing wind was in a southerly direction. The Canadian air force dispatched a Hercules transport north Friday with more supplies for 110 troops battling the fire raging in a portion of Wood Buffalo that juts into the Northwest Territories.

Nuclear physicist Dr. Edward Teller cups ears to hear a question from the President's Commission on Campus Unrest. Yanks Answer Copter Crew's Call, Rip Red Unit

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Saturday — U.S. infantrymen battered two Communist units, one in the central highlands and the other on the plains northeast of Saigon Friday. About 300 GIs from the Fourth Division swooped down in 40 helicopters on a Communist camp 19 miles northwest of the town of An Khe after soldiers near a hut shot down an American observation helicopter. The two crewmen in the chopper escaped uninjured and called for help. The infantrymen responded, along with artillery and Air Force fighter bombers. In a five-hour clash that followed, the Americans killed 39 Communist troops. Men of the U.S. First Air Cavalry Division ran into a Communist unit near Rang Rang, 48 miles northeast of Saigon, and killed 20 more guerrillas in a one-hour firefight.

Big Pullout of Forces in Philippines

WASHINGTON — About one-fourth of the 24,000 U.S. military personnel in the Philippines will be pulled out before next July 1. Announcing this Friday, the Defense Department said the withdrawal affects mostly Air Force, Navy and Marine personnel who have been backing up the U.S. war effort in Vietnam.

Dockers Won't Budge Despite Troops

LONDON — Longshoremen at Liverpool Friday joined fellow strikers at Southampton in refusing to move perishable foodstuffs. But the government still held back from sending troops into the strike-bound docks.

Russia, Libya Sign Arms Agreement

LONDON — The Soviet Union has signed a formal arms agreement with the new regime in Libya that may open the way for future Mediterranean bases for the Russians, Communist diplomatic sources said Friday. The pact provides for delivery to Libya of tanks, small arms, air defense missiles and, apparently, war planes.

U.S. Pledges Support for Bases in Spain

WASHINGTON — The U.S. has pledged to "support the defense system" of Spain in return for obtaining rights to continue using naval and air bases in Spain, State Department officials disclosed Friday. In addition, the U.S. has promised that it will make its defense policies "compatible" with those of Spain. The five-year agreement, reached after months of fitful and sometimes controversial negotiations, is expected to be signed within the next few weeks.

Crew Guns Urged to Bar Hijack

Pilot Group Chief 'Suspects' Weapons Already in Cockpits

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Arming of flight crews to prevent hijacking was recommended by Capt. Charles Ruby, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, in El Segundo Friday for a meeting of a joint government-industry task force on air piracy.

Ruby, a former chief pilot for National Airlines, whose planes have been a consistent target of Cuba-bound hijackers, said he would have no objection to giving pilots weapons to prevent such occurrences.

"I feel that if a pilot uses a gun he will use it in a way that will impose no additional danger to himself or to passengers," the head of the national pilots' group said. "Unarmed flight and cabin crews have been using excellent judgement in handling hijackers up to now, and having a gun wouldn't change this in any way."

RUBY indicated that some commercial pilots are now carrying weapons for defense against hijackers.

"I can't prove it," he responded to a direct question. "But I suspect this is true."

Ruby explained federal regulations are "permissive" in regard to commercial pilots carrying weapons, but that some local jurisdictions, such as New York City, have gun laws which restrict the practice.

The union's policy, he added, leaves the decision on arming up to the individual flight crews and the airlines.

Ruby said he had carried a gun in the cockpit himself during his flying career, overcoming the objections of New York police by pointing out that they could offer no protection for the passengers of his plane after it became airborne.

DR. JOHN DAILEY, chief psychologist of the Federal Aviation Administration's aviation medicine branch, said the nine-man task force of which he is a member believes current screening of passengers is 90 per cent effective in keeping hijackers from boarding planes.

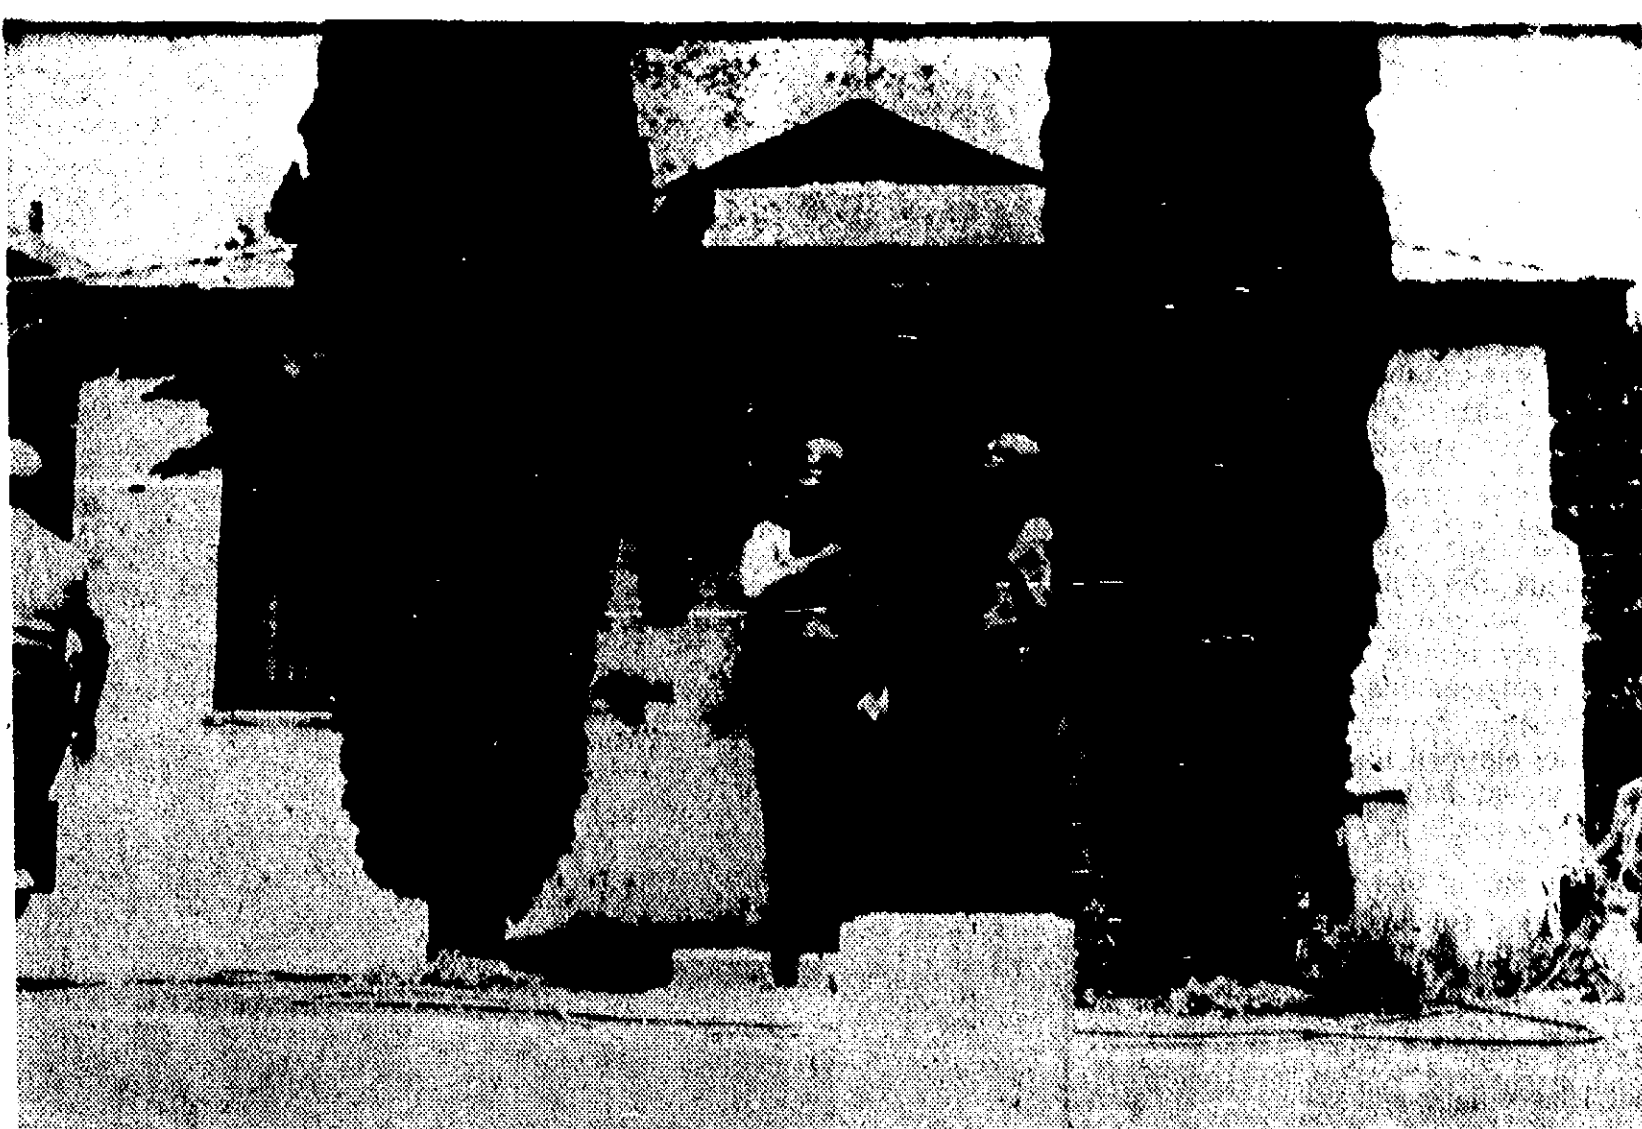

Twelve airlines are now using the FAA hijacker screening system in various parts of the country, he said. The method includes the use of a magnetic weapon detection device and observation of suspicious passengers by trained airline personnel.

Of the first million persons subjected to this screening, 24 were found to be carrying weapons and in seven cases large quantities of narcotics were found, the psychologist said.

"THERE ALSO have been many instances where persons have abruptly turned away from boarding gates when they discovered the surveillance," Dr. Dailey said. "We can't be sure these people were potential hijackers, but it is very probable."

He also pointed out that Eastern Air Lines has collected "an arsenal of weapons from potted plants" and other terminal waiting room hiding places since the hijacker detection system was inaugurated early this year. The weapons are believed to have been abandoned by passengers who spotted the detection device at boarding gates.

Dailey said U.S. airlines are no longer the No. 1 victim of hijackers, leading to hope for an international agreement on extradition of air pirates for punishment in the country where the aircraft is registered.

L.B. Man Extradited for Slaying

A 28-year-old former Long Beach resident was extradited from here Friday to Mesa, Arizona, to face murder and rape charges in the death of a 15-year-old girl.

Joseph Brown, Jr., a truck driver who now lives in Mesa, waived extradition Friday morning before Long Beach Municipal Judge Charles T. Smith.

Brown, who attended Long Beach Poly High School until he moved to Arizona in 1957, was arrested on a fugitive warrant Thursday night at the downtown bus station, where he had gone after a visit with an aunt in North Long Beach.

The warrants issued in Mesa charged Brown with the rape-strangulation of Mary Jane Dyer, a junior high school student, and with assault with intent to commit rape. The latter charge involves a separate case.

Wife Dismissed from Berkeley Bombing Case

SAN PABLO — Charges have been dismissed against the wife of a University of California graduate student who has admitted bombing a Pacific Gas and Electricity tower in Berkeley, Deputy Dist. Atty. Sam Mesnick said Friday.

Charges against Sue Tankersley, 27, were dropped in Municipal Court here after defense attorney Coleman Fannin claimed she was unaware of her husband's actions.

Richard Tankersley, 29, is undergoing psychiatric examination and is scheduled Sept. 25 for sentencing after pleading guilty.

DEATH VALLEY HIKER NEARS END OF 130-MILE TREK

Army S.Sgt. Jack Nelson, described by a ranger as "in good spirits and good shape," was expected to finish his 130-mile trek across stifling Death Valley shortly before noon today.

Nelson, a 34-year-old Vietnam veteran who is walking with an American flag in memory of his slain buddies, began the final 35 miles shortly after dusk Friday.

He faced a gradual climb on the winding grapevine road from 500 feet to 2,200 feet in temperatures ranging from 85 degrees in the middle of the night to an expected 105-110 degrees when he completes his trip near Scotty's Castle.

"He's headed on and he seems to be going quite well," ranger Clifford Ne-Creight said shortly before Nelson began the final walk.

"He seems to be in very good spirits and physically he's in as good a shape as when he started."

Nelson has been doing most of his hiking at night. His brother, Arlen, has followed in a jeep, and each day the two men drove to the monument headquarters at Furnace Creek, where they camped in the sparse shade available there.

Nelson's hike began Monday at Saratoga Springs on the monument's south end. At one point he passed through Bad Water, the lowest point in the U.S. at 282 feet below sea level.

A 23-year-old student at California State College at Long Beach has been booked on suspicion of possessing explosives after two home-made pipe bombs and a quantity of black powder were found in his apartment.

Rodney Lee Crane, a political science major and a part-time flying instructor, was arrested Friday at his apartment, 241 Grand Ave., by officers from the Long Beach Police Department's intelligence section.

Sgt. Glenn Branson, one of the arresting officers, said information from an undercover officer led to the arrest.

HE SAID he and Officers Larry Kirth and Jay Fogg recovered two pipe bombs packed with black rifle powder and loaded with a firecracker fuse. He said a pound can of black rifle powder (that retails at about $4) was also confiscated.

The bombs were made from short lengths of two-inch piping. The pipe sections were capped at either end, and a hole drilled in the sides contained the firecracker detonator, Branson said.

He described the bombs

Sylmar Firm Will Make F-15 Canopy

The Sierracin Corporation of Sylmar, Friday was awarded a $400,000 contract to develop and built cockpit canopies for McDonnell Douglas's new F-15 fighter.

The initial contract is for flight testing. A later production contract could total about $2,100,000, the company said.

The canopy will be made of polycarbonate. This will be the first use to the high strength material which tests show to be superior to previous canopy material and capable of handling temperatures through 350 degrees.

The F-15 is the single-place twin-jet fighter, scheduled to be flown in 1972.

as "highly explosive and extremely dangerous," adding that they could cause extensive damage and lethal injury to persons if exploded in a congested area.

Branson said Friday Crane is being booked only for possession of explosives at this time — a felony carrying a penalty of up to five years in state prison — because officers had no information to link him with any actual bombings or attempted bombings.

"However, we are not saying that the investigation is completed," he said.

Crane, son of Hobart and Joyce Crane, 11254 Elmcrest Ave., Norwalk, appears to have no affiliation with any political or militant group on or off campus, Branson said.

CRANE'S FATHER, a carpenter, told the Independent, Press-Telegram, "The arrest came as a complete surprise to my wife and I."

He said he knew his son had expressed sympathy with the students shot at Kent State University. "But this hairbrain idea of bombs is beyond me," the father added.

"As far as I'm concerned those Kent State students got what was coming to them. I've got no sympathy with militant students. For my part they can shoot them all."

Donaldson Will Address League

Mike Donaldson, Republican nominee for Congress in the 17th District, will speak at the annual installation dinner of Gardena Council 2015, League of United Latin American Citizens, at 7 p.m. tonight in Dupar's Restaurant, 2942 W. Imperial Hwy., Inglewood.

Will Hamilton, of Gardena, will be installed as president of the council for a second term. Guests will include state director of the league Frank Galaz, of Inglewood; deputy state director Fidel Gonzalez, of Santa Ana, and District 5 director Victor Valdez, of San Pedro.

Welfare

to the governor's restoration of funds was typical of welfare recipients throughout the state.

Reagan, angrily accusing social workers of subverting and sabotaging his campaign to cut back welfare costs, Friday restored $10 million for the blind, elderly and disabled.

AT A SPECIAL news conference, the tight-lipped chief executive announced repeal of emergency regulations he proposed effective Aug. 1 reducing state funds for attendant care and homemaker services, both non-nursing programs.

He vowed to devise a way to implement the cutbacks that "cannot be sabotaged by arrogant social workers."

The Republican governor announced the repeal shortly after a legal aid group underwritten by federal antipoverty funds threatened a law suit challenging the validity of the regulations ordered on an "emergency basis."

Spokesmen for two social worker organizations hailed the governor's order to rescind the regulations and restore the $10 million in state funds. The order had triggered another $15 million reduction in federal and local funds.

Funds for attendant care and homemaker services enable aged, blind and disabled welfare recipients to hire someone to perform household chores they are unable to do themselves. The maximum attendant care grant of $300 would have been cut to $150.

REAGAN repeated his insistence the cuts were not aimed at forcing the truly needy into institutions and were intended to eliminate "fraud" and extravagance.

He charged that social workers seized on apparent loopholes in the emergency regulations and informed the most needy recipients that their aid was being terminated.

"This is a clear subversion of our intent and can only be interpreted as an attempt to sabotage our efforts toward responsible administration of the program," he charged at the hastily called news conference.

L.B. Wife Awarded $85,000

A Superior Court jury awarded a North Long Beach mother $85,000 Friday for injuries suffered in a fall in a Cherry Avenue market five years ago.

Mrs. Shirley Jackson, 5333 Pine Ave., said she fell backwards over a wooden milk box that had been left in an aisle near the dairy case.

The accident, which occurred Nov. 13, 1965, led to three major back operations, Mrs. Jackson said in her suit.

The market, at 5500 Cherry Ave. was operated by Fox Markets. It has since gone out of business at that location.

SIX-FOOT SHARK ROPED BY GUARDS

Lifeguards turned cowboys Friday afternoon at Cabrillo Beach in San Pedro, but the steed they rode was a motorboat and the critter they corralled was a shark.

More than 200 youngsters whooped applause and directions to three guards doing a 40-minute round-up of the finny visitor, after a tell-tale pointed fin was sighted cruising in the youngsters' bathing area.

Lifeguard Pat Muldoon lassoed the shark by the tail, using a tow line, while lifeguard John Lorentzen maneuvered the boat. Rookie guard Michael J. Caldwell manned a boathook.

The rounded-up critter, a 6-foot blue shark, was removed from the bay waters and placed on display on a nearby pier.

Baby Dies Under Run-Away Auto

A nine-month-old baby was killed at a Wilmington car rental service Friday as the agency's manager tried to stop a run-away car.

The victim, Kathleen Hotchkiss, tumbled out of the auto when manager Earl Allenegui opened a door to leap in and stop the car.

Allenegui spotted the driverless vehicle rolling down an incline with three children inside.

Mrs. Judith Hotchkiss, 84 Yacht Harbor Drive, Portuguese Bend, had returned the vehicle to the Seaside Car Rental, 329 E. Anaheim St., about 12:45 p.m.

Mrs. Hotchkiss went inside the agency's office, leaving her three young children in the car.

A mechanic took the car to refill it with gas, brought it back to the office area, and moments later it began to roll away, police said.

When Allenegui ran after the car and pulled open the door, the infant fell out and the auto struck her on the head, officers said.

nesses — "even though it be somewhat repulsive." Although the black-white race war was one motive, the prosecution claims the hippie leader's "passion for violent death and his extreme anti-establishment state of mind" were others.

The main motive, however, he said, was from "Manson's fanatical obsession with helter skelter, a term he got from the English musical recording group, the Beatles."

Manson, the prosecutor said, was an avid follower of the Beatles and believed they were speaking to him through the lyrics of their songs, especially their song "Helter Skelter." (Words from the song, however, fail to corroborate Bugliosi's theory.) To Manson, Bugliosi said, it meant the black man rising up against the white establishment and murdering the entire white race. Manson intended to "escape" by going to the desert and living in the Bottomless Pit, a place Manson derived from the Bible's Revelation 9.

"ALTHOUGH evidence will show that Charles Manson hated black people, he also hated the white establishment, whom he called pigs," Bugliosi claimed pointing out that "pigs," "Helter Skelter" and "rise" were written on the walls at the LaBianca home. "Pig" had been scrawled in blood on the front door of the Tate home.

Bugliosi in his half-hour opening statement which was interrupted at least a dozen times by objections from Manson's attorney, Irving Kanarsky, called the hippie leader "a vagrant wanderer, a frustrated pseudo-philosopher, but most of all... a killer who masqueraded behind the common image of a hippy, that of being peace-loving."

The prosecutor, who had brought his family and several television personalities to court with him, charged Manson was "the dictatorial leader of his family" and everyone in the family was slavishly obedient to him... eventually, at his command, they murdered."

The prosecutor claimed that the chief prosecution witness will be Linda Kasabian whom he described as "not a hard core member of the family."

Bugliosi said Mrs. Kasabian will testify that Manson instructed her to get a knife the evening of the Tate murders and a change of clothing and her driver's license and go with Charles "Tex" Watson, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel and "do everything Tex told her to do."

"Although she did not enter the Tate residence and did not commit any of the murders she will testify to her observations including being an eyewitness to Steven Parent's death by Charles Watson in the driveway of the Tate residence, and to the murders of Voityk Frykowski and Abigail Folger by Charles Watson and Patricia Krenwinkel on the lawn of the Tate residence."

"WHEN THE group returned to the Spain Ranch after the five Tate murders, Manson was waiting for them," Bugliosi said. "Tex Watson reported to Manson what had happened after which Manson asked each of them if they had any remorse for having committed the murders and they all replied that they did not."

Bugliosi said his witness will testify that Manson said they had been "too messy" the night before and he was going to show them how to do it. The next evening Manson drove to the Los Feliz home of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca, went inside and tied them up, returned to the car and instructed his followers on how to murder them, the prosecutor charged. Bugliosi spent little time in his opening statements on the three girl defendants — the third is Leslie Van Houten — but only claimed they were "willing participants."

"BY THEIR overkill tactics — for instance, Voityk Frykowski was stabbed 51 times, shot twice, hit on the head 13 times, and Rosemary LaBianca was stabbed 41 times — they displayed that murder ran through their blood."

Manson sat solemnly throughout the emotional opening statements and smiled only briefly at his three co-defendants. He later issued a statement in which he claimed that the establishment had "created the monster."

"I am not of you, from you, nor do I condone your wars or your unjust attitudes. I stand with my X, with my love, with my God and by myself. I know what I have done and your courtroom is a man's game. Love is my judge."

In quick succession, following the emotional opening statement, prosecutors brought three witnesses to the stand.

PAUL TATE, the father of the slain actress, and Wilfred Parent, father of the 18-year-old casual visitor at the Tate home who was killed as he attempted to leave, both testified as to when they last saw their children alive.

Although Tate, a Rolling Hills resident and retired Army intelligence officer, remained composed, Parent broke down on the stand briefly as he talked of his slain son.

Winifred Chapman, the Negro Tate maid who discovered the bodies when she reported for work Aug. 9, also testified, although reluctantly and with several interruptions because of an arm injury which she claimed was painful.

Nervous and muttering complaints to the judge, Mrs. Chapman was questioned thoroughly on cross-examination on why and when she washed a door. Fingerprints of Patricia Krenwinkel and another of Charles Watson, also indicted but not standing trial, were found on the doors.

MRS. CHAPMAN testified she left the Tate house the day before the murders, leaving workmen painting the nursery the pregnant actress was preparing for her soon-to-be-born child. When she returned the next day, all in the house were dead, she said.

Also on the stand was William Garretson, the 20-year-old caretaker at the Tate home who testified he heard and saw nothing as he listened to records and wrote letters at a guest house on the estate.

Garretson, who had been arrested for the murders and later released, said Parent left the estate after visiting with him shortly after midnight. The barking of three dogs several hours later disturbed him, but he did not investigate.

Later in the morning, the three dogs for which he was caring again awoke him and he went out to investigate.

"Two officers were pointing rifles at me. Another had a pistol and kicked in the door. The dog bit him," he said, adding softly; "I told him to stop."

The testimony by the curly-haired, newlywed brought laughter to the courtroom, which although jammed with spectators and press, had been silent and somber. Garretson's testimony continues Monday.

Simon's Wife Asks Divorce

Aid to Migrants Pledged by Coke

By AL EISELE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Things go better for migrants these days, in the Coca Cola company's Florida orange groves, the firm's president told a Senate subcommittee Friday.

J. Paul Austin, who heads the world's largest soft drink company, appeared before the Senate migratory labor subcommittee after Coke was criticized by the committee and in a recent television documentary for allegedly exploiting seasonal farm workers.

Austin admitted that working and living conditions among migrants working for the firm's citrus operations in Florida were such in a 1968 survey that he ordered they "would not in conscience be tolerated by the Coca Cola Co."

BUT HE said the company has taken steps to improve pay, housing and medical care for migrant workers and their families and he pledged the company's resources to a broad reform program aimed at "breaking the cycle of migrant poverty."

He even called for the formation of a national alliance of agribusinessmen "to train and employ in dignity and with fair wages" the country's one million migrant workers. He said the alliance would help migrants just as the National Alliance of Businessmen has worked with the government in helping urban ghetto dwellers.

Asked by committee Chairman Walter Mondale, D-Minn., about a recent NBC documentary which criticized Coke and other companies for exploiting migrant workers, Austin said he felt the documentary was unbiased. But he added that he felt it did not call attention to Coke's efforts to improve the workers' conditions.

A MUCH MORE critical view of the documentary and its portrayal of widespread poverty and despair among Florida migrant workers was given the committee by George Wedgeworth, a spokesman for the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association.

Wedgeworth called the documentary a "completely false" and "totally pre-fabricated" presentation and charged that the news media and the committee itself have given the public a grossly unfair picture by concentrating on the worst aspects of the migrants' situation.

Wedgeworth's assertions finally brought a rare loss of temper from Mondale, who pounded the table with his fist in anger when Wedgeworth criticized the documentary for calling some of the migrant workers "bums" who had no hope.

migrant who used the term about his own people. "What kind of a system is it that produces that kind of tragedy?" Mondale asked loudly. "That's what we're examining here today. I'd like to have expression of concern from you. I haven't heard any yet!"

MONDALE also extracted an admission from Wedgeworth that he is the owner of a 50-room boarding house on his Florida farm which he said is "marginal" as far as state and local building codes.

Wedgeworth said he expected to be "attacked" because of the building, but pointed out that migrants live free in the building and said the building will be closed soon.

Mondale read off a list of complaints about the building's inadequate sanitary and safety facilities and asked Wedgeworth if the list was accurate.

"I will say that it is untrue," Wedgeworth replied. "I knew this attack was coming. Let me say this — these facilities will be closed tomorrow providing someone can find a place for these people to live."

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., compared the plight of migrants to trying to get a traffic light at a dangerous intersection. "Unfortunately, you don't get a traffic light until you have 3 or 4 accidents at the corner. A lot of people get hurt before the situation is corrected."

know we are blessed with the greatest ability the world has ever seen to solve those problems."

Thousands of additional persons lined the six-mile route the President's motorcade took from the airport to the downtown area.

After his brief address on the steps of the administration building, Nixon went inside for a meeting with leaders of the Mormon Church.

During a 40-minute conference, Nixon briefed the Mormon leaders on foreign and domestic matters, noting that American casualties in South Vietnam had for the past 30 days been at the lowest point in four years.

THEN NIXON moved to the Salt Palace to watch the Days of '47 rodeo and receive a standing ovation from a crowd of 15,000. The chief executive laughed when Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, clad in a denim shirt and cowboy hat, came galloping out as grand marshal of the rodeo.

Kennedy and Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, George Romney, both Mormons, accompanied the President on his cross-country trip. Nixon praised the cabinet members as "two of the most selfless men I know... the most outstanding Americans of our time."

Leaving Washington in Air Force One, the President, his wife and daughter, Tricia, flew to Fargo for a visit of nearly five hours before continuing to the Utah capital.

Mrs. Nixon and Tricia had planned a tour of the Mormon Temple grounds but it was cancelled because of a threatened demonstration by the Weatherman faction of the Students for a Democratic Society.

Catholics Warned on Abortions

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Roman Catholics in hospital and social work must "all stand together" in conscientiously objecting to their own involvement in any abortion case, the Los Angeles Archdiocese director of health and hospitals said Friday in Long Beach.

Father Robert E. Deegan addressed two audiences of Catholic social workers, doctors, nurses, churchmen and nuns Friday afternoon at a "Convocation of Conscience" centering on the abortion issue.

"We are here to say that we believe there have been enough threats to Catholic hospitals" and their employees of the faith, Deegan said, "and that we must clarify our rights."

DEEGAN was joined by Father John Danagher, rector of St. John's Major Seminary, in decrying growing administrative pressure on Catholic hospitals and social workers to conform to current trends under which more and more abortions are sanctioned.

Following both sessions of the convocation, each attended by more than 80 persons, was a statement of convictions and claimer of rights was distributed to the audiences.

The statements, addressed "To my employer," bear blanks for the insertion of the name of a "hospital or welfare agency," a date of submission to an employer, and the employee's signature.

They read, in part: "It is my religious and conscientious belief that abortion is wrong. I consider that abortion results in the taking of innocent life and is a violation of the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill.'"

"I believe that it is my right as an American under the provisions of the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the Federal Constitution to refuse to participate in the operating room or elsewhere in the performance of any abortion or to counsel a person to have an abortion..."

IN REMARKS before the second convocation gathering, Father Danagher said, "We are not here trying to prove that abortion is wrong."

"We are convinced that abortion is wrong; it is murder. That is our conviction. We are here to help others, particularly in any doubtful situation, to form their own conscience."

Danagher also indicated dissatisfaction with news coverage of the continuing issue of changing laws and attitudes on abortions.

Many news publications, he said, use "propaganda words" in stories dealing with abortion.

STATE CAN'T PAY Reagan Decries Crime Bill Cost

By LOU CANNON
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Gov. Ronald Reagan has bluntly told the Senate Judiciary Committee that California will withdraw from the crime bill unless the federal government pays for the cost of the law.

In a letter to committee Chairman James Eastland, D-Miss., the governor declared it a "state-owned responsibility" that would require the state to pay the cost of the law.

The estimated California cost under the amendment would be $5 million. "It would be absolutely impossible for us to find funds to meet this obligation, which would mean that the implementation of the act would be virtually halted in California this year should this be enacted into law," Reagan wrote.

THE ACT provides a total of $50 million nationally to be used for law enforcement programs with additional training, equipment and personnel. California's share of the total would be $5 million.

An originally approved, the legislation required cities and counties to put up $5 cents for every $500 appropriated by the federal government. This means that cities and counties are appropriating about $35 million, of which $7 million would have to be put up by the state under the House amendment. Reagan pointed out in his letter to Eastland that the state's 1970-71 budget already includes $34.5 million in state funds allocated for local assistance in the criminal justice system.

"It would appear, therefore, that California is in fact buying into the criminal justice system on the local level in substantive fashion," the governor stated.

At the core of the controversy is a state-city battle that has been going on since the bill was first proposed by the Nixon Administration.

BIG CITY mayors, many of whom are Democratic, have balked at having state governors, the majority of whom are Republican, approve bloc grants that will largely be distributed to metropolitan areas.

This situation prevails in California, where the state administration is Republican but such cities as Los Angeles and San Francisco are ruled by Democratic mayors.

Reagan's action was considered an important one among state delegations here, many of which hope to persuade the Senate Judiciary Committee to discard the House amendment.

So far, Reagan is the only governor from a major state to issue such a protest. The only other state to publicly threaten withdrawal is Montana.

News Satellite Lost in Deepest Space

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $13-million telecommunications satellite was lost in space Friday after ground controllers fired a small motor to nudge the spacecraft into a stationary orbit.

The spacecraft belonged to the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (INTELSAT) and was designed as one of a network of stations that relay telephone and television signals.

A spokesman for the Communications Satellite Corp. (COMSAT), an IN-TELSAT manager and U.S. representative, said the casualty occurred shortly after the spacecraft's apogee motor was fired at 10:16 p.m. EDT.

All attempts to detect spacecraft signals have been unsuccessful," the COMSAT spokesman said. "The period of burn was to have been 27 seconds. Data was received for 14.5 seconds. At that point, all signals were lost."

The satellite, launched Thursday night from Cape Kennedy, was being tracked by controllers at Paumotu, Hawaii and Canarvon, Australia when the casualty occurred. The controllers were attempting to switch the spacecraft from a transfer orbit, a highly elliptical path around the earth, to a synchronous orbit, a fixed position 22,300 miles above the Equator.

Who Ordered Pueblo Stopped? Book Revives Dispute

By WALLACE TURNER

MONTEREY — A bitter dispute flared up among officers of the Pueblo while the crew of the electronic surveillance vessel was in jail following her capture off North Korea in January 1968.

The dispute is over this question, which was never raised at a months-long court of inquiry last year: Who ordered the engines shut down to end the Pueblo's lumbering attempt to flee from the Korean gunboats, which were three times as fast as she was?

The dispute has become known now through advance copies of Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher's memoirs, "My Story," scheduled for publication Aug. 7. Bucher expects to net about $100,000 from his book after taxes.

Interviews with crew members this week showed them to be disturbed by the dispute. Of five men present at the event in question, only Bucher, captain of the Pueblo, told it one way; three others told a different version and the fifth would not comment at all.

Both sides agree that the ship would have been shot to pieces and most of her crew killed had she not stopped. Even so, one man was killed in the shelling before she halted.

The protagonists are Bucher, living here while assigned to the Navy Post Graduate School, and Chief Warrant Officer Gene H. Lacy, the Pueblo's chief engineer, now security chief on a Navy supply dock in Seattle.

In his narration of the capture, Bucher in his book gave his version of the engine shutdown. The description came after passages that recounted how three volleys of cannon and machine-gun fire were sent into the Pueblo by the North Koreans.

The event became, in Bucher's account, the basis for an allegation that the ship's officers let him down when he needed them most. The effect of this was to focus on Lacy the onus for these failures that the skipper alleged.

Bucher wrote: "I was stunned by Gene Lacy's wild-eyed look as he dragged himself back to his feet and suddenly yelled at me.

"Are you going to stop this son of a bitch or not?"

"There was only a fraction of hesitation before he reached out himself and yanked the handles of the annunciator to ALL STOP. The blindly alert engineers isolated three decks down instantly rang the answering bells. There followed an abrupt break in the wheezing exhaust throb of our perforated stack, then a rapid deceleration downward of our 12-knot speed.

"I kept staring at Gene in utter disbelief for another 15 seconds. Fifteen seconds, that brought the stark realization that my most experienced officer, my most trusted friend aboard this ill-starred little ship, had robbed me of the last vestige of support in my efforts to save the mission, leaving me alone with an executive officer who had proven to be unreliable and two very young and inexperienced junior officers on my bridge.

"Suddenly the complete uselessness of further resistance flooded my brain. It would only result in our being shot to pieces and a lot of good men killed to no avail, because the North Koreans would in the end get most of our secret documents.

"Instead of lunging for the annunciator and racking it back to ALL AHEAD FULL, I turned my back on it and Gene and walked out on the starboard wing of the bridge."

Lacy, badly shaken by the recurrence of a dispute he thought was over and forgotten, insisted in an interview in Seattle that Bucher had ordered him to signal the engines to stop.

"I don't know whether he's grasping at straws or what the hell the deal is on it," Lacy said of Bucher.

Lacy described Bucher's appearance as he and quartermaster 1st Class Charles B. Law came down off the flying bridge onto the bridge deck during the attack:

"He was kind of wild-eyed, which was normal under the situation. He walked back and forth across the bridge, didn't say anything to anybody and I asked him if he was going to stop the ship."

Lacy said the commander "noddled assent to me and I did bring the annunciators back." The firing then stopped. The Korean torpedo boat signaled the Pueblo to follow her into harbor, which Bucher ordered done. He said in his book he intended to use the time to destroy secret documents and electronic equipment.

In an interview at his rented home here, Bucher insisted that he had not indicated by word or conscious motion that he wanted the ship stopped. He agreed he could have instantly ordered the engines restarted merely by ringing the telegraph.

While he told his version of the events in his debriefing after repatriation late in 1968, he purposely avoided bringing it up on the court of inquiry in 1969 because he did not want the court to think he was trying to shift responsibility to a subordinate. The Navy has treated records of the debriefing interviews as classified material.

He told his men to avoid bringing it up, he said. He told them they could talk about it if asked directly but that no member of the court asked.

Bucher said he believed the story had to be told in his book. He said he was puzzled by Lacy's attitude and pointed out he had praised Lacy in the highest terms elsewhere in the book.

"Hell, if I'd done it, I'd sure as hell want somebody to say it," Bucher said. He also referred to crew members who he said would support his version.

One of these is Law, now a chief petty officer at Whidbey Island Navy Base in Puget Sound.

"We came in and they had stopped firing, and they started again," said Law. "We took some more hits, and he (Bucher) cursed at them. I don't know the exact words. Then finally Gene Lacy said, 'Let's stop this god-damned thing.' The skipper looked around a little bit and then he gave the order to ALL STOP, all emergency stop. Gene Lacy was on the indoor telegraph and he's the one that rang it up."

Scientist Warns of Foreign Rule if Protest Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear weapons pioneer Edward Teller asserted Friday that student protest, if unabated, will weaken national defense and invite a foreign takeover in 20 years.

Teller, testifying before the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, based on the grim forecast on grounds that "indoctrinated young people will not take a defense-related job."

The hearing was the last of a series in Washington. Commission Chairman William W. Scranton announced that an investigative team is now in Jackson, Miss., preparing for hearings there next month over the May slayings of two youths at Jackson State College.

TELLER, a University of California physics professor, said student movements are forcing universities away from defense research and that while "those of us who are older can carry on, it only will be for a very few years."

He said the problem will be critical in another decade, and 10 years after that the nation would be "disarmed" unless the trend is reversed.

Speaking without notes, Teller said universities must "abstain from politics and protect academic freedom" even if it means throwing agitators off campus.

"Academic freedom will not be preserved if universities go on strike," he said. "Free speech will not and cannot survive if our academic institutions are converted into political pressure groups. And one must be blind not to see that that is precisely what is happening."

"ARMED forces were employed in the South to insure the right of black and white to learn together and that was justified. Now armed forces are employed to insure the right of all students to continue to learn, and that also is justified."

Scranton termed Teller's remarks "startling." Commissioner Joseph Rhodes

Jr., a Harvard graduate student, asked Teller, "What do you propose to do with these student protesters, shoot them?"

"There will be some accidents," Teller replied, "and some will be terrible accidents."

"But I can tell you that if we stop research on defense, and that research is going on at an accelerated pace in totalitarian countries, then your freedom of speech will not last much longer than mine."

David A. Keene, Wisconsin law student who heads the conservative organization Young Americans for Freedom, declared campus violence results from "administrative failures, faculty timidity or else indifference to responsibility."

Rep. William A. Steiger of Wisconsin echoed a report he and 21 other Republican congressmen made after visiting campuses throughout the country last month. The findings criticized students as sometimes intolerant and arrogant but also said they are concerned and well informed.

TERMING the deaths of six students this spring a form of "murder by civil authorities," a Yale professor said student activism is here to stay — and the country is better off because of it.

Psychologist Kenneth Keniston, author of two books on alienated youth, told the commission that "to stop the killing on campus, we must take the murderous weapons out of the hands of civil authorities who have so far done the killing."

He condemned the killing of four students at Kent State and two youths at Jackson State this spring. Henceforth police and national guardsmen must be disarmed before they are sent on campus unless there is evidence they will encounter armed students, he said.

He said the victims on the campuses this spring "have in effect been murdered by civil authorities."

Blacks Occupy Ellis Island, Abandoned Gateway to U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — About 40 blacks have landed and occupied Ellis Island, the tiny piece of land in New York Harbor which was once the gateway to America for millions of European immigrants.

The blacks landed Monday, but their invasion didn't come to light until Friday. A helicopter pilot spotted clothes on lines among the island's dilapidated buildings.

It turned out the invasion was staged by the National Economic Growth and Reconstruction Organization (NEGRO). The invaders were camping with cookstoves and cots in the old ferry building and had already set up an "instant factory," making cleaning powder.

UNLIKE the Indians who occupied Alcatraz Island in San Francisco bay last November, the Ellis invaders plan to stay only a few days. They called their landing "an act of friendly seizure."

The NEGRO group issued a statement saying the squatters will leave as soon as they demonstrate "the capacity of society's forgotten drug addicts, multigenerational welfare recipients and former prison inmates to create a self-supporting productive rehabilitative community."

Ellis Island was abandoned by the immigration service in 1954. Since then immigrants are processed at offices in Manhattan.

The island and its 36 buildings became part of the Statue of Liberty National Monument in 1965. The statue is on another island, not far from Ellis.

Congress authorized $6 million to rehabilitate Ellis as a park, but no money has been appropriated.

A SPOKESMAN for NEGRO said its president, Dr. Thomas Matthew, led the invasion. The spokesman said Matthew had petitioned President Nixon for permission to use the island. Although permission was denied, no action has been taken against the squatters, the spokesman said.

He said NEGRO plans to press the administration for permission to set up a "total community" on the island, with factories, residences, a hospital and a population of about 2,500.

"The Negroes are new immigrants to the society," the spokesman said. "In effect Ellis Island will once again become a port of entry to America."

DEFENSE SPENDING DEBATE OPENS

Stennis Backs Safeguard System, Cites Soviet, China

WASHINGTON — The Senate Friday began a defense spending debate that may last past Labor Day, and Sen. John Stennis cautioned that defeat of the Safeguard antiballistic missile system would be a "clairon message to the other side" of confusion in the U.S. government.

Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, keynoted the defense debate, insisting the $19.2 billion the bill would authorize in Pentagon weapons spending reflects austerity.

"WE ARE confronted with the grim fact of rapidly increasing Russian strategic forces which could place this country in jeopardy in the years ahead," the Mississippi Democrat said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., asserted the overall, $72-billion defense budget could be cut by about $10 billion.

"We must reorder our priorities and reduce the excessive claims of the military in order to redress our glaring social needs here at home," said Proxmire.

The military authorization bill includes more than $1.3 billion for the contested Safeguard program, which passed its first Senate test by a single vote a year ago.

ABM deployment already has been approved at two sites; the expansion in the current bill would add a third, and authorize advance preparation work at a fourth.

THE STENNIS committee rejected President Nixon's proposal that Congress authorize a more ambitious system designed to protect populated areas against a possible Red Chinese missile attack.

The expansion it approved sticks to the original mission of Safeguard: protection of U.S. offensive Minuteman missile sites.

"This nation must have an ABM system," Stennis said. He said the Soviet missile threat "is growing ever more serious."

Stennis dismissed opposition warnings that the Safeguard expansion could jeopardize prospects for agreement in the strategic arms limitation talks between the United States and the Soviet Union. He said the reverse is true.

"We would have a situation where Congress would deny to our President the very item, the major item, I believe, of the bargaining arrangement," Stennis said.

a major issue at the negotiating table . . ." Stennis said. "If we stop now in midstream it is just sending a clear call and clarification message to the other side — well, the government doesn't know what it wants to do, the U.S. government."

He said if that happens, U.S. negotiators will find it more difficult, perhaps impossible, to win any concessions from the Soviet Union in the arms limitation talks.

Safeguard expansion is likely to be among the first items to face the Senate votes during the debate.

The defense bill also will be the vehicle for the proposal of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., that Congress suspend withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Vietnam by next June 30.

U.S. Ballet Tour

LONDON (UPI) — The American Ballet Theater arrived Friday to start a European tour that will take it to six nations in five weeks. The 120-member company will perform in Britain, France, Spain, Italy, Switzerland and Greece.

Race Slur Suspends Policeman

SEATTLE (UPI) — A Seattle police officer who ran unsuccessfully for mayor last year was suspended from the force for three days Friday for using the word "nigger" over the police radio.

Acting Police Chief Charles R. Gain said Ross (Tex) Roddam used the word twice Thursday to describe four men whom Roddam had stopped while on patrol.

Police regulations prohibit the use of derogatory words, said Gain. However, because the regulations are not explicit in defining which words are not to be used, the penalty was not more severe.

Roddam was disciplined six years ago for the same offense.

NEW WAR POWERS LEGISLATION FORECAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — New legislation defining the war powers of the President and Congress was forecast Friday by a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee chairman.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., who heads the national security policy and scientific developments subcommittee, made the prediction as the panel arranged for the final phase of its hearings on the issue.

"It has become clear after a month of hearings that a broad consensus exists in the House for legislation which would define more precisely the war powers of the President and Congress," Zablocki said.

"Although the form and substance of such legislation have not yet been made definite, I am confident that the subcommittee can report a proposal which will be acceptable to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, to the House, and very likely to the Congress."

Zablocki said he felt this type of legislation would be more important than present efforts in the Senate to limit the President's powers through an amendment to the foreign military sales bill.

The Senate-imposed amendment is among a number of points still in conference between the House and Senate. Zablocki is one of the House conferees.

"First," Zablocki said in expanding on his statement, "the Cooper-Church amendment relates only to Cambodia. Second, it looks than forward to similar backward to what has already occurred rather in the month and years to come. The legislation likely to come from the subcommittee, on the other hand, would apply worldwide — not just to Cambodia — and would be in effect for all contingencies involving the future use of armed forces."

The Cooper-Church amendment provides that no funds could be used for U.S. troops and advisers or for mercenaries from other nations in Cambodia unless specifically authorized by law.

Zablocki's panel will hear testimony next Tuesday from Nicholas Katzenbach, former undersecretary of state who now is a vice president of IBM Corp. Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., author of a bill requiring congressional approval for major troop deployments, will appear on Wednesday.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

A landscape question frequently asked at lectures is:

"What do you suggest I plant to screen out an area in the yard if there's a lack of space to plant tall shrubs?"

Our answer is: "Vines, if they have supports on which to be trained, whether on a fence, a garden wall, or a building wall."

One of the fastest growing deciduous vines is the Wistaria, either the Chinese or the Japanese species. The blossoms of white, or pink, or the fragrant violet variety, consist of drooping racemes in orderly diminishing clusters from top to the bottom. These burst forth in the spring, providing a flower show of their own.

The large old estates of the past had wistarias growing on fences, walls, pergolas, and some even up palm trees. Now, wistarias are hardly planted at all, although they serve landscape purposes.

THE GARDENER who seeks a vigorous vine but prefers an evergreen sub-tropical vine which has floral beauty in season, should plant calliandra inaequilatera, the "Pink Powder Puff." The blossoms are a profusion of bright pink stamens shaped like a powder puff but larger, contrasting well with the green foliage. We read it is claimed this variety stands cold to 14 degrees above zero near the south wall. The cold tolerance plant list rates it standing cold down to 30 degrees above zero.

Another good vine is the Bignonia violacea, "Lavender Trumpet vine." A mature vine is nearly leafless when the fragrant blossoms almost smother the plant. New, shiny, rich-green foliage soon covers spring blooming season.

Bignonia violacea is known to be a very slow starter. The plant might not develop any growth for six months or longer, after it has been set out in the ground. Thereafter, it develops canes and grows normally.

JOBS TO DO NOW

Plant young coral bells now for blooms next spring. They need a long growing season to develop. They'll flower each year during the spring season.

Spray for scale on gardenias, camellias, citrus, and other shrubs. Soil must be moist before spraying. Don't use an oil spray if weather is above 70 degrees.

Hose camellia foliage during hot weather, preferably in the evening, to provide a humid condition. Use a mist spray over the whole bush, and the soil around the plant.

Feed lawn a complete plant-turf food containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Grass tops must be dry and soil moist before feeding. Fertilizer should be thoroughly washed off the foliage and the area watered well.

Glad that toppled over when blooming were planted too shallow. They should be planted about five inches deep in a light soil.

I am alone and have retired to a patio garden. The soil is heavy clay and has poor drainage. I've used a soil conditioner and several bags of planter mix. I have three shrubs and the leaves keep turning yellow and is far from pretty. The enclosed sample was taken from one of these. I planted ranunculus, three to a pot. They dried and were cut back. Will they come up next fall? I used a mildew-mite spray on all the yard which is small, and use two kinds of fertilizers. I would like the name of the enclosed shrub. Mrs. F.M.G.

A. — Ranunculus in Southern California left in the ground or in the pot usually don't come up again. Sometimes a few will grow out again but spottily. It is best to re-plant with new bulbs each year. If you wish to see if those potted ones will come back, keep the soil lightly moist, not soggy. If the flowers are a reddish color, the plant might be Cestrum elegans.

Q. — Will you please tell me if clivia plants grow well in Sun City in the outside patio, also the pink begonia and gladiolus? C.M.S.

A. — There are a couple of "ifs" about clivia and bedding "pink begonia" growing in Sun City. If they are in mostly shade, protected from frost, in a well-prepared loamy soil, and if they are shower-bathed periodically to provide a humid condition, watered well but not soggy at all times, I think you could grow them. Gladiolus thrive in sun or partial shade.

Q. — Seven or eight years ago we planted a June Gold peach tree, a Santa Rosa plum and a Satsuma plum. Each year, the peach provided a good crop. This year it had about a dozen large but tasteless peaches. We had fewer plums than in previous years. The trees were topped and slightly pruned in January. Could you give a reason for so little fruit this year? Mrs. D.C.C.

A. — Lack of deep waterings earling in the form of insufficient winter rains could be one of the causes. Assuming trees are growing in an open soil area, not in a lawn, you'd be wise to deep-water them periodically. Late October, a day or two after one of the deep soakings, scatter bone meal or a pellet-

Environmental Unit Splits on Open Meetings

By GILBERT BAILEY
Contributing Editor

Should meetings of the Los Angeles County Environmental Control Committee be open?

The committee, appointed by the Board of Supervisors, debated that issue without reaching a conclusion Friday.

"I'm not sure the Brown Act (California's antisequest meeting act) applies to us. Not that I want to exclude the public, but sometimes you get a nut that you can't shut up and he takes up all your time," Judge Herbert V. Walker, chairman of the committee, said.

It was the third unannounced meeting of the new, special committee which is made up of 16 county department heads and five members of the public.

"I'M WILLING to gamble on the public," said Mrs. Ellen Stern Harris, a public member of the committee.

"The Brown Act doesn't cover everybody and I don't think we have to advertise and get the nuts," said Judge Walker, who presided over the Sirhan Sirhan trial.

"Whether you must let them in is decided by the Brown Act," pointed out John Larson of the county counsel's office, noting that the committee could allow the public in even if it isn't required to do so.

Mrs. Harris moved that the public be notified of all upcoming meetings, but her motion died for a lack of a second.

"I don't disagree," said Judge Walker, "but the modus operandi of the committee should be decided by the committee."

EARLIER the judge had said, "I think we can get ourselves so widely spread we can't do anything."

He added, "People can run us up blind alleys." Mrs. Harris had wanted the press and some conservation groups notified of committee meetings.

(The Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram was the only news organization represented after a reporter called the county offices and was told of the meeting.)

The county counsel's office was asked to rule on Brown Act implications for the committee. The full committee will decide the issue later.

JUDGE WALKER also expressed fears that the committee would dissipate its efforts when Mrs. Harris brought up the issue of the California Water Project, which is under conservationist attack.

"I want to get into every (conservation) battle in Los Angeles County," replied Mrs. Harris.

However, the department heads, who have a 16 to 5 vote majority, seemed to favor Judge Walker's views.

The committee will hold a special meeting at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 14 on the seventh floor of the county administration building to discuss the pending "Environmental Bill of Rights" now before the State Legislature and environmental bills also pending.

County departments appear to be split on some legislation. For example, the Air Pollution Control District would benefit while the Department of Public Works would be hurt by legislation diverting gas tax money from highways to fighting air pollution and for rapid transit.

WILL ASK STUDY OF PROGRESS

L.B. Legislators Hail Smog Series

By BOB SCHMIDT

From Our State Bureau
SACRAMENTO — Air pollution in the Los Angeles basin is a danger which must be combatted constantly, Long Beach's legislative delegation said Friday.

The legislators — Senators George Deukmejian, Joseph M. Kennick, and Ralph C. Dills, and Assemblymen James A. Hayes and Mike Cullen — were asked to comment on the seven-part air pollution series written by Independent Press-Telegram Contributing Editor Gilbert

Bailey. Dills and Kennick formally praised the series in a resolution submitted to their colleagues, and they also asked for an interim study of California's progress in the smog fight.

"It is the most provocative and penetrating analysis of the pollution problem that I have ever had the opportunity to read," Kennick said, "and I commend the vision of the Independent Press-Telegram for producing it."

"I have asked the Senate Health and Welfare Committee to evaluate the legislative suggestions of Gilbert Bailey's wind-up article . . . and I intend to use the series as the basis for a resolution which will call for an interim study. As vice-chairman of the Senate Rules Committee (the committee which assigns interim subjects), I intend to see to it that a broad-scope study is conducted."

Deukmejian said he was "in accord with many of (Bailey's) recommendations, particularly the need for a rapid transit system, testing of all motor vehicle control devices on the assembly line, and the diversion of some gas tax funds for air pollution research."

Deukmejian, however, took mild issue with Bailey's contention that the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District and its programs were a failure.

The series states, Deukmejian pointed out, that "in all probability without the district the Los Angeles basin would be unlivable."

He said that in his view "any program and district that has been able to control the increase and spread of smog to the degree of maintaining the area livable cannot be said to be a failure."

Deukmejian, who represented the district before the Board of Supervisors when he was a deputy Los Angeles County counsel, also said "the article fails to state the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of control equipment, research, and other costs that have been sustained by industry to reduce smog."

He acknowledged, however, that a periodic review of the district's efficiency was in order.

HAYES SAID that he was "especially pleased to see attention devoted to all sources of pollution — mobile and stationary."

The articles, he said, combined "a clear focus on that critical and dirty problem with responsible recommendations to resolve the problem."

He warned that "we must stop concerning ourselves with the percentage each polluter is contributing to fouling the air. A one per cent polluter should be mandated to clean his own house just as unequivocally as the 80 per cent polluter."

Cullen also noted the citation of the stationary polluters, and said he decried "the de-emphasis" on the role industrial plants play in the fouling of Los Angeles' air.

Like Hayes, Cullen pointed out that the statistics from New York on deaths caused by contaminants caused by stationary sources boded ill for Long Beach.

He said he was particularly shocked at the disparity between San Francisco and Los Angeles recordings of the presence of sulphur dioxide, one of the key ingredients in "killer smog."

"THE RECORDS indicate that the Bay Area has almost twice as much of this pollutant in the atmosphere as does Los Angeles," Cullen said, "yet Los Angeles reports many more days in which the concentration of sulphur dioxide exceeds acceptable standards."

"How is this possible, and whose figures are correct?" he asked.

He also suggested that an inquiry should be made into why San Francisco has issued more than five times as many violation notices to stationary pollution sources as Los Angeles since 1964.

Cullen pointed out that the Legislature had anticipated many of Bailey's recommendations during the 1970 session, and suggested that if taxpayers are unwilling or unable to pay for the continuance of the battle, that industry should be permitted to police themselves and to make periodic reports under oath, so that they would be subject to court action if the reports were not accurate.

ANTIPOLLUTION BILLS GET TOUGHER

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California's legislators have learned two things about air pollution.

First, the problem is of statewide concern.

And second, those responsible for pouring poisons into the air which damage people and other growing things display concern which increases in direct proportion to the increasing severity of the laws passed and penalties imposed.

The first fact became apparent some time ago, the second more recently.

And so more and more legislators from all parts of the state have taken to introducing increasingly tougher legislation designed to combat the problem.

THIS SESSION nearly 50 separate bills, constitutional amendments, and resolutions dealing with air pollution have been introduced in the Senate and the Assembly. It appears that they represent the toughest and most direct action the state has yet taken.

The statement must be qualified with the word "appears" because, with legislation, there frequently is a gap between intent and effect.

The intent of the 1970 legislation, however, is plain. The pollution producers — the automobile manufacturers, the oil refineries, the utilities, the other plants which burn fossil fuels — must bear the major portion of the responsibility and expense for alleviating and eventually eliminating the problem they have caused.

The 1970 legislation, some of which is already law, attacks the problem of air pollution in a variety of ways. Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, as a direct result of environmental writer Gilbert Bailey's series of articles in this newspaper, has urged that a Senate committee be given the responsibility of making a progress report on the air pollution battle.

AND FRIDAY the Senate approved legislation slapping persistent polluters of the air with a $6,000-per day penalty.

Modeled after 1969 legislation aimed at water polluters, the bill is expected to be signed into law by Gov. Reagan.

It is one of a package of 16 bills proposed by the Assembly subcommittee on air pollution. Other bills in the package set a mandatory timetable for the elimination of lead from gasoline, revise and toughen the standards which apply to auto and plant pollution control devices and also update testing procedures to better determine the efficiency of those devices.

Other bills which have either already been signed into law or appear likely to be signed into law include measures which raise money for air pollution research, permit the diversion of counties' and cities' share of gas tax revenues for rapid transit and other pollution control devices on cars, and make easier the initiation of lawsuits against alleged polluters.

Recent California legislation, then seems to have come to grips with the state's air pollution problem. The people responsible for the devices — motor vehicle engines and industrial burners — have been told to find ways to cease their contribution to the problem. Producers of fuel have been told to remove from their product elements which contribute to the same problem. And taxpayers have been told they are going to have to share the cost of the fight.

THE BIG STEP the Legislature is taking is to make the ignoring of the new regulations more expensive than compliance with them. In the past, that has not been so, and smog producers have acted slowly.

Perhaps the most dramatic step the Legislature has taken and one which was also taken last year — is the Senate's approval of a bill simply banning all engines which emit pollutants from the state's highways after Jan. 1, 1975. That bill will probably be killed in the Assembly this year as it was last year, but it nevertheless serves the most direct notice possible on auto manufacturers that the state means business.

And if the possible loss of the California market weren't enough to get Detroit to act, the same author has another bill, awaiting action by the Senate, which would authorize the state to pay a $25 million reward for the development of a smogless engine.

MERCURY POLLUTION

U.S. Plans Suits Against 8 Firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said Friday it would sue eight companies under a little used 1899 law to make them stop polluting the waters of seven states with poisonous mercury wastes.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said he would ask local U.S. attorneys to bring 10 civil suits in courts from Maine to Washington state, based on information submitted to the Justice Department by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

The suits would be the first aimed at halting mercury pollution, just discovered in April to be "an imminent health hazard" in many areas of the nation.

Mitchell said the government would move under the 1899 Refuse Act against such corporate giants as Allied Chemical Co., Weyerhaeuser Co., Georgia Pacific Corp., and Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp.

BY MOVING under the civil section of that law, originally interpreted to apply only to debris that could impede navigation, the government will seek immediate court injunctions to halt the alleged mercury discharges and to require the companies to clean up the effects of past pollution.

The criminal section of the act carries what one official called a relative light maximum penalty of $2,500 fine for a company and a year in jail for one of its officers.

Mitchell said the Justice Department authorized suits against:

- Georgia-Pacific Corp., Bellingham, Wash., for alleged discharge of mercury into Puget Sound.
- Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp., Niagara Falls, N.Y., for alleged discharges into the Niagara River.
- Olin Paper Co., Rumford, Maine, for alleged discharges into the Androscoggin River.
- Weyerhaeuser Co., Longview, Wash., for alleged discharges into the Columbia River.
- Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp., Augusta, Ga., for alleged discharges into the Savannah River.
- Diamond Shamrock Corp., Delaware City, Del., for alleged discharges into the Delaware River.
- Diamond Shamrock Corp., Muscle Shoals, Ala., for alleged discharges into Pond Creek, a tributary of the Tennessee River.
- Allied Chemical Co., Solvay, N.Y., for alleged discharges into Onondaga Lake.
- International Mining and Chemical Co.'s Chlor-Alkali Division, Orrington, Maine, for alleged discharges into Penobscot Bay.
- Pennwalt Chemical Co., Calvert City, Ky., for alleged discharges into the Tennessee River.

Hickel Proposes Oil Spill Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel proposed Friday new regulations prohibiting any oil discharge big enough to cause a visible slick.

The regulations would also prohibit the addition of detergents or other dispersing agents to oily wastes which would break up a slick and thus prevent detection.

The regulations would implement antipollution legislation passed earlier this year.

The proposed regulations would ban the discharge of any harmful quantity of oil, even mixed with ballast, bilge water or other substances.

IN, LAND SWAP

Board Queries Irvine Acreage

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Orange County Supervisors heard but apparently will reject advice that they might be able to claim two Irvine Company islands in Upper Newport Bay through court action alone — and that “a $1.2 million fraud” occurred in their land-swap to obtain the islands.

County Counsel Adrian Kuyper advised supervisors to attempt to obtain the islands through a court action claiming prescriptive rights, but the supervisors in a closed meeting voted 3 to 2 against this course, it was learned.

A short time after the closed meeting Friday, Supervisor Robert W. Battin of Santa Ana told newsmen that the two islands are smaller than the Irvine Co. claimed in offering to exchange them for county tidelands. “This,” he said, “constitutes a $1.2 million fraud.”

He said the discrepancy in the described size of the midchannel islands, which would be dredged away in upper bay improvement, amounts to “about 12 acres.”

A value of $100,000 per acre value was ascribed to the islands for purposes of the trade.

BATTIN ALSO charged that three supervisors, whom he declined to identify, “reluctantly agreed to disclose the discrepancy in the size of the islands to the (Superior) Court in the pending lawsuit” to test legality of the land deal.

Battin said he and Supervisor David L. Baker of Garden Grove view the “misrepresentation” as one reason to rescind the trade with the Irvine Co.

Board Chairman Alton E. Allen of Laguna Beach, William H. Hirstein of Orange and William J. Phillips of Fullerton are opposing demands for scrapping the exchange pact, and they voted Friday against the recommendation that the county test its rights to public access to company-owned lands, it was learned.

If such a test were successful, the purchase might not be so costly, or might not even be necessary, Battin maintains.

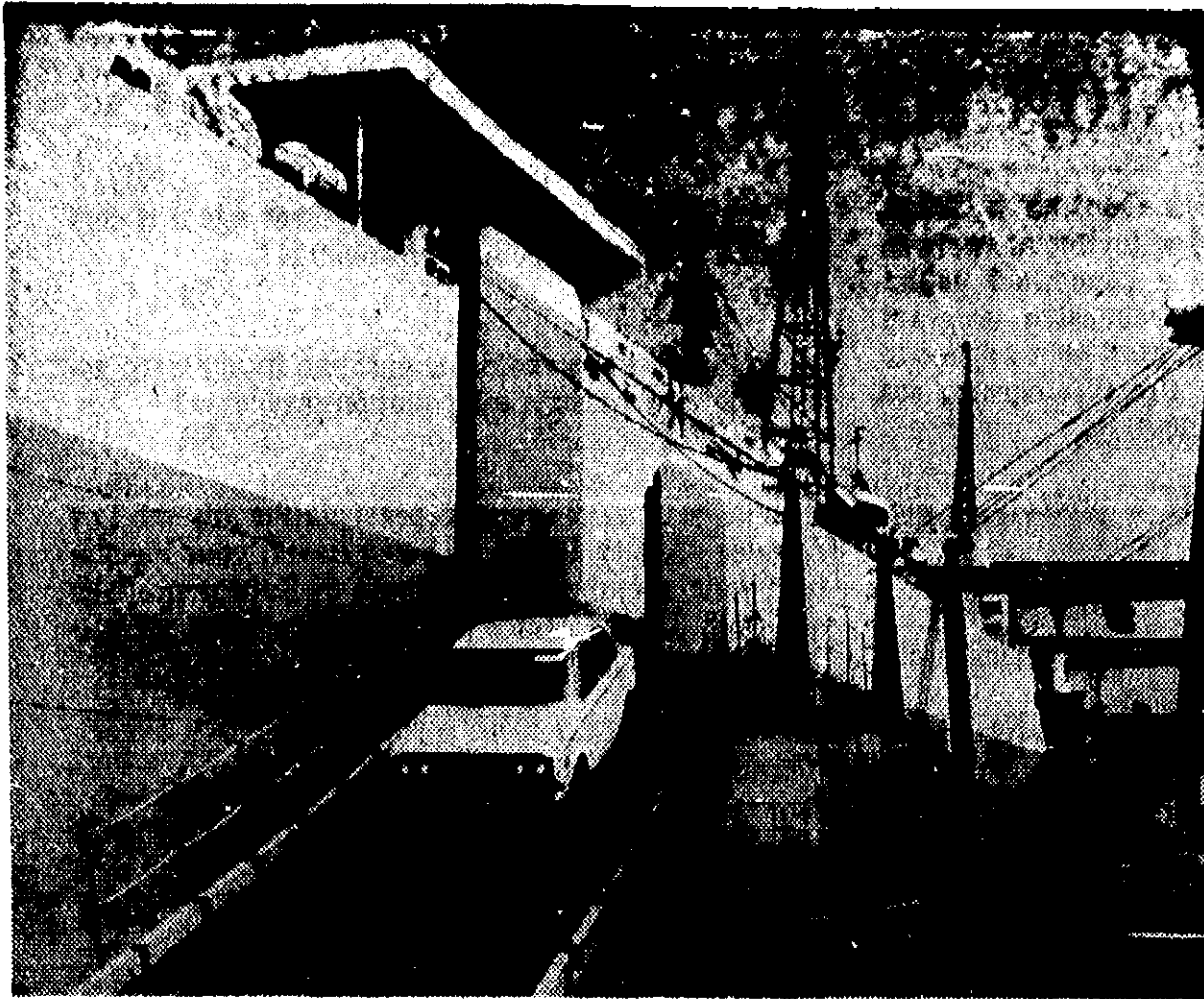

He said failure to initiate a court test would constitute “reckless irresponsibility.”

In his still-secret memorandum to the Board of Supervisors, the county counsel suggested “that there probably are public prescriptive rights over much of the privately owned land adjacent to the upper bay, and including the two northerly islands in the bay.”

Prescriptive rights in question are those “earned” by the public through years of unchallenged access to public beaches and tidelands across private property.

Two rulings in Northern California, both upheld by the state Supreme Court, held that private owners could not bar public access across their lands if such access had not been previously challenged during a five-year period.

Kuyper said his office has gathered “considerable information” that public access in the upper bay has been gained in this manner.

TOYOTA MARU 10 UNLOADS A RECORD 2,080 AUTOS, TRUCKS

Special Design Helps Ship Set Car Delivery Record

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

The unique straight-side Toyota Maru 10 is out to sea and en route back to Japan after offloading a record number of new motor vehicles in a maiden voyage that introduces two innovations to the shipping of vehicles.

Driven off of the 520-foot nine-deck vessel at the Port of Long Beach were 2,080 Japanese-made automobiles and trucks. The straight-side design of the ship enables it to carry 880 more vehicles than earlier auto-carrying vessels.

UNLIKE other car carriers, the Toyota Maru 10 will return to Japan with empty holds enabling it to make a round trip every 26 days.

Other ships bringing cars to the West Coast have been loaded with grain or flour for the return trip to Japan, extending the round trip time to 60 days.

A fully loaded ship of the Toyota Maru 10 class can be unloaded in seven hours. The cars are driven off through large side ports and down adjustable ramps. Toyota officials say the method keeps vehicle damage under 2 per cent.

SHOJI HATTORI, executive vice president of Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc., reports that ships such as the Toyota Maru 10 will enable the company to meet its delivery goal of 180,000 vehicles in this country this year.

The Toyota fleet of eight vessels (there are no No. 4 or No. 9 vessels because both numbers are regarded as unlucky in Japan) is owned and operated by Kawasaki Kisen Kaisha, better known as “K” Line.

Kerr Steamship Company is the shipping agent.

2 DOCTORS SUE HOSPITAL TO FORCE PROPERTY SALE

Trial began in Superior Court Friday to determine whether St. Mary's Hospital will be held to an agreement to sell two physicians the 30,000-square-foot lot on the southeast corner of Tenth Street and Elm in downtown Long Beach.

Doctors Keith C. White and Archibald F. Forster allege in their petitions that the hospital administration agreed in February to sell them the lot for $240,000, which would have given the hospital a $60,000 profit on a piece of property it had held for only nine months.

They intended to build a medical building and parking facilities, they said. The suit asks the court to order culmination of the sale.

The hospital alleges that it proceeded no further than conditional acceptance of the doctors' offer and that this was terminated when James Moore, hospital planning consultant, said the property might be needed under the institution's master plans for the future.

Sister Mary Wilfred, president of the hospital, signed the purchase arrangement with the two doctors.

Sister Mary Wilfred's was the principal testimony given Friday, and her presence brought the unusual circumstance of a nun in formal habit occupying the witness box. Testimony will continue next week.

LARA GETS 2ND DEATH VERDICT

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

A verdict of death was returned for the second time against Anthony Montoya Lara Friday, ending his penalty trial in Superior Court in Long Beach. He will be brought before Judge Max Z. Wisot Monday to hear sentence formally pronounced.

Lara, 24, originally was convicted and sentenced to die in 1965. Court decisions in other cases establishing new procedures, however, won him a second hearing on the penalty phase of his case.

He and a companion, Raymond Morales (Baby) Alvarez, were found guilty of shooting and killing 18-year-old Jerome Mitchell of San Pedro when he refused to permit them to use his car.

“TO DESCRIBE THIS crime as briefly and as succinctly and as honestly as I know how,” Deputy District Attorney David Feldman had told jurors, “this was a cold-blooded execution.” The jury deliberated about 90 minutes. The trial began last Monday.

Alvarez, now 23, is currently serving a life sentence without possibility of parole.

New Thrifty Store Rises from Ashes of '69 Fire

Re-opening of Thrifty Drug and Discount Store at Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns Street is scheduled for 9 a.m. Thursday.

The new Thrifty was built on the site of a former store, destroyed by fire last December.

A week-long sale, beginning Thursday and featuring special discounts on many items, adds emphasis to the reopening.

Thrifty executive vice president Manny Borum said the new store "is really a drug, discount and junior department store and a departure from customary merchandising."

DIVIDED into 54 departments are more than 25,000 items of merchandise, much of it normally associated with a department store.

Service departments for the new store building include cosmetics, jewelry, photo and prescription.

Other departments are selfservice to ensure faster shopping, Borum said.

Each department has been vividly identified with the latest sign techniques developed by store experts, Borum added. Each merchandise category "can be spotted from across the store."

ARCHITECTS also called for wide aisles. Other shopper comforts include air conditioning and scientific lighting.

In addition to the special sale, customers will find lifelike orchid corsages and — for the children — balloons.

Special attention during remodeling went to the cosmetics department and fixtures now include the latest in showcases, as well as a complete inventory of nationally advertised brands, Borum said.

Special attraction in the cosmetics department is the "Lipstick Bar."

THE THRIFTY chain is no newcomer to the West. First retail outlet was opened in 1929 in Los Angeles.

By 1940, there were 51 Thrifty Drug Stores and that number swelled to 85 by 1950 — and to 180 by 1960.

In the last eight years, more than 140 new Thriftys have been built, bringing the total number of stores to 340.

The chain serves every major community in California and has stores in Arizona, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Utah and Idaho.

It employs more than 8,000.

The Long Beach Chamber of Commerce has published a 122-page Industrial Directory covering 18 Los Angeles County cities and four Orange County cities within the Long Beach market area.

The directory, largest of its kind to be published by the organization, lists full particulars including products, number of employees and standard industrial classification code numbers for more than 1,700 companies.

Los Angeles County communities represented in the publication are Long Beach, Gardena, Harbor City, Lomita, Wilmington, Carson, Torrance, Compton, Paramount, San Pedro, Terminal Island, Signal Hill, Lakewood, Bellflower, Norwalk, Cerritos, Artesia and Hawaiian Gardens.

ORANGE County communities include Los Alamitos, Seal Beach, Huntington Beach and Garden Grove.

The publication may be purchased at the Chamber offices, 121 Linden Ave., for $5.28 a copy to members and $10.55 to non-members.

The directory was produced under the guidance of Harry D. Easton, assistant general manager and director of the Chamber's Industrial Development Department.

Forced Layoff Revealed

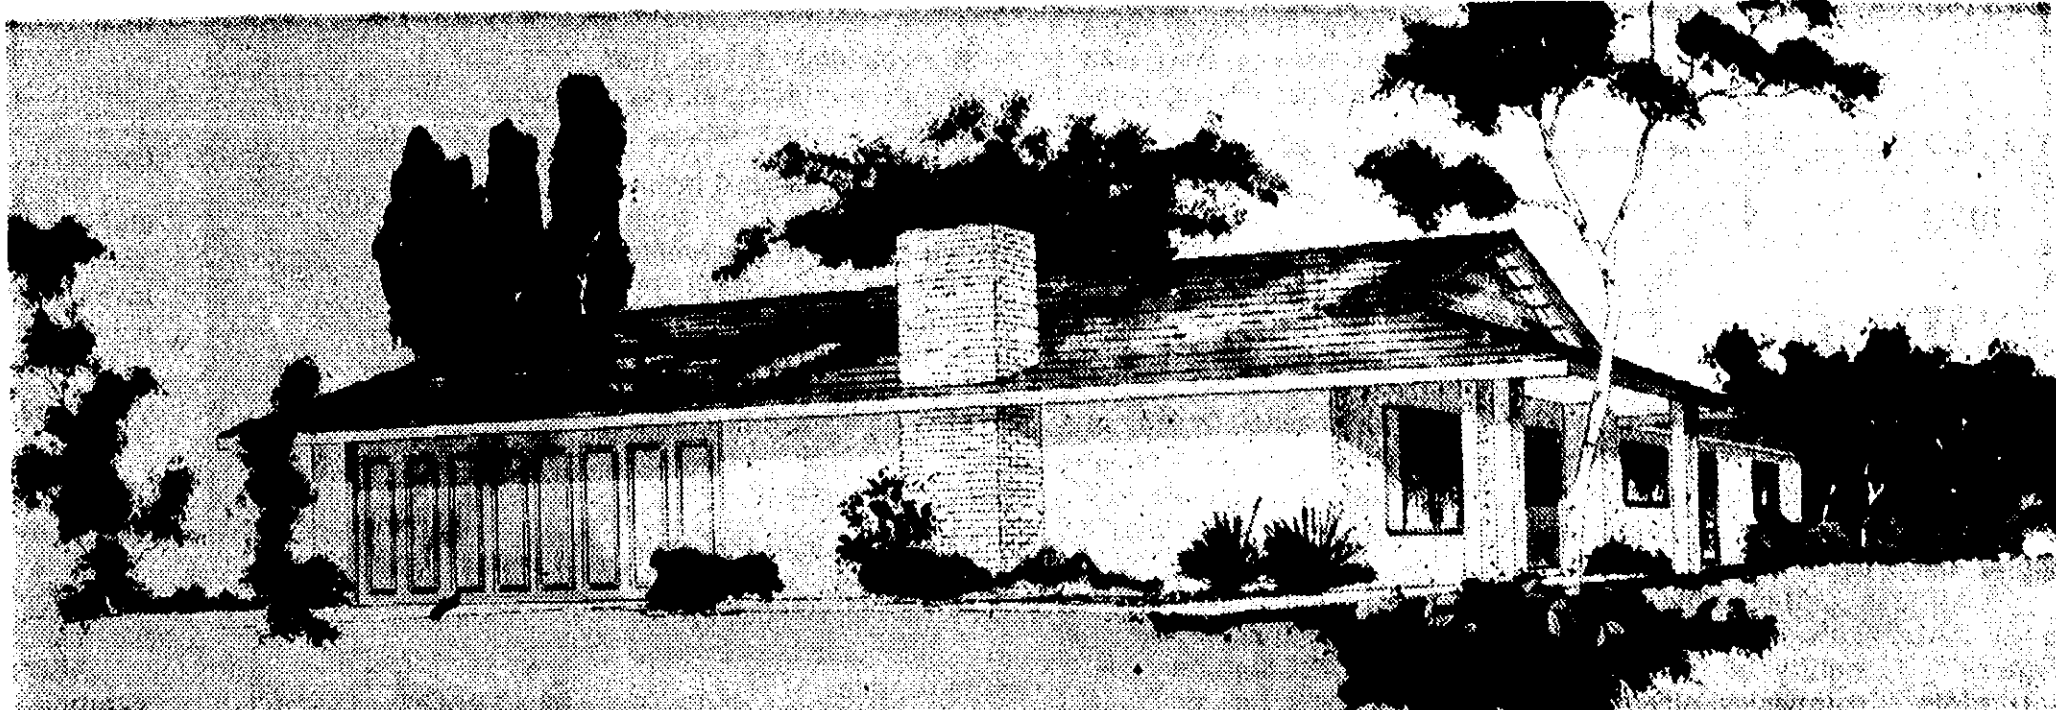

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Control Data Corp., computer manufacturing firm which has laid off some employees in recent months, announced Thursday it will require most workers to take 10 days off without pay between Aug. 1 and Dec. 31.

The payless plan affects those in this country, and a security analyst estimated that would mean some 19,000 of the firm's 28,000 workers.

Control Data has not given out figures on how many have been laid off in its belt-tightening moves during the current economic slack. A company spokesman said the pay holidays are "to minimize layoffs and terminations."

With 22 weeks in the five-month period designated, it will mean a pay cut of nearly 10 per cent.

William R. Key, executive vice president said, "We are taking these actions to achieve better balance between expenses and current revenues and to reduce inventory levels. These actions should not be interpreted as a reflection on the company's great strength and potential."

MOST LANDMARK HOMES . . . Boast Three-Car Garages, Fireplaces, Fencing

Landmark Kitchen Popular

More than 200 persons visited the newest Landmark Homes' subdivision in Cerritos as the $3.5 million community began its preview opening last weekend, according to Bob James, vice president and general manager.

Signal Landmark, Inc., builder of Landmark Homes, is offering 115 new homes in the development on South Street between Norwalk Boulevard and Bloomfield Avenue.

The one and two-story homes, designed by R. J. Marvick & Associates, range in price from $28,375 to $32,875 for plans that offer three and four bedrooms.

Five different floor plans are available with a choice of more than 15 exterior designs included.

MOST Landmark Homes' plans offer three-car garages. One plan includes an unfinished area on the second level called the "imagination room."

This room can be used as the homebuyer desires, whether it be extra bedrooms or a study and work room. It may be finished whenever the family feels the need for the additional space.

Forced air heating, fireplaces, acoustical ceilings and built-in tv antennas are included in all plans. Also included are rear yard fencing and patio kitchens with built-in range, hood, fan, oven, disposal and dishwasher.

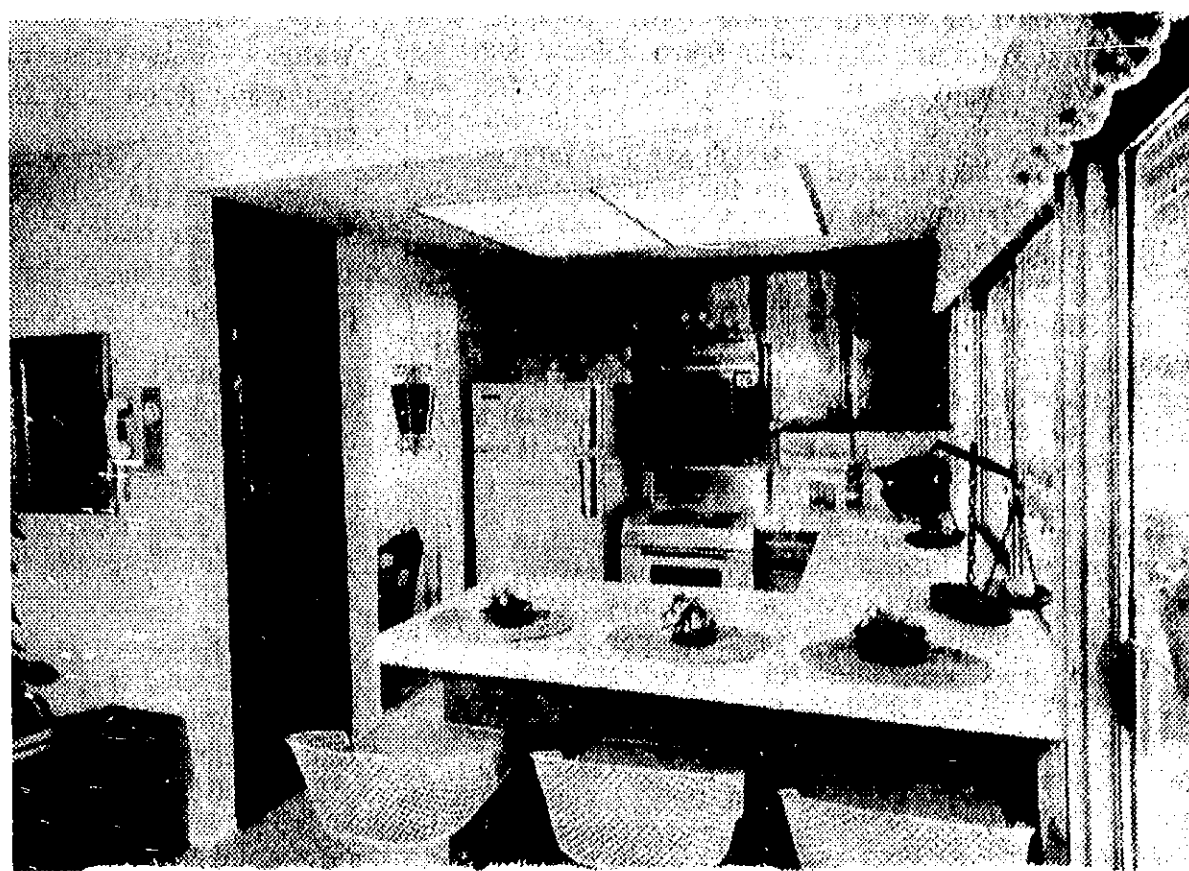

The Cerritos development by Signal Landmark, Inc., one of the Signal Companies of Los Angeles, is a private-walled community with underground utilities.

To reach the new Landmark Homes model area from the San Gabriel Freeway, take the South Street exit east. From the Artesia Freeway, take the Norwalk Boulevard exit south to South Street and turn left to the five model homes.

CLASSIC HOMES FEATURE S . . . Eye-Catching During Tour

FESTIVAL OF HOMES' ENCHANTMENT . . . Seen By Visitors

BY FARROW DEVELOPMENT

Classic Homes in Three Locations; Festival of Homes Are Quality-Built

Classic Homes have chosen three very distinctive locations for their latest series of the "phenomenal expandable homes."

In Placentia, in Cerritos and in Fountain Valley one may find these "growing homes" which are easily convertible from two-bedroom, to three or four-bedroom homes.

Buyers can convert to the additional bedrooms as their needs dictate; or, Classic Homes will handle the plans and details at the time of purchase.

Each of the homes in the three new series has a family room, formal dining room, imaginative kitchen with complete built-ins. Other features include custom fireplaces, floor coverings by specification, double garages and concrete driveways.

CLASSIC Homes in Cerritos are located on Artesia Boulevard a few blocks from the Santa Ana and the 605 Freeways.

Priced from $24,400 they are centrally located to the entertainment and recreational areas of Orange County; as well as the metropolitan activities of Los Angeles.

Cooled by the ocean breeze, Classic Homes in Fountain Valley are minutes by freeway to all the other excitement and convenience that make Southern California world famous.

Prices start at $25,990 for these homes, just south of the San Diego Freeway near Brookhurst Street.

TUCKED away amid established expensive homes, and adjacent to Alta Vista Golf Course, Classic Homes in Placentia enjoy that miles-from-anywhere feeling.

Classic Homes in Placentia are priced from $25,990 and are also easily accessible to the Newport and Riverside Freeways which connect within minutes to every Southern California metropolitan convenience and attraction.

OFFERED in the centrally located city of La Palma are Farrow's Festival of Homes featuring "unequaled charm and beauty in an unequalled environment."

Festival of Homes are at the hub of exciting living; adjacent to all freeway interchanges, fine shopping centers, major industry, world-famous entertainment and recreation centers. Country clubs and golf courses are minutes away.

Festival of Homes are quality-built for the family seeking prestige plus spacious, gracious living. These are two, three and four-bedroom homes.

Prices start at $23,950. There are four floor plans and 12 elevations from which to choose.

Some of the irresistible design features especially popular with buyers are the family rooms and formal dining room, cathedral ceilings and patio kitchens with built-in conveniences.

Buyers select such features as double oven or self-cleaning electric ranges, carpeting, patios, draperies and landscaping.

To see Festival of Homes (from Orange County) drive west on Orange to Walker; left on Walker to the homes. From Los Angeles County, take the Santa Ana Freeway to Valley View; south on Valley View to Orange; then west on Orange to Festival of Homes.

Farrow Realty Corp. is the sales agent.

DAVIS said some builders promote homes designed for the subsidy program in such a way as to attract only whites to suburban areas.

Often, he said, builders initially place nondescript newspaper ads that will catch the attention of white readers.

"These families then tell their friends in the neighborhood or at the plant of the terrific buys and soon you have an all-white development," Davis said.

The government will soon begin investigation of both slum speculation and racial discrimination in the subsidy program, Davis said. He said evaluation is difficult because the government has just begun to collect housing data by race.

The median gross income of families receiving the home subsidies is $5,685 a year compared to $11,174 in conventional programs.

They buy homes costing about $15,000. Of these, 56 per cent are new and 44 per cent are existing homes. Some 28 per cent of the subsidy families are headed by women.

The program aided 100 families to purchase homes in 1968, 8,700 in 1969 and an estimated 119,000 will be helped this year.

The budget for housing subsidies rose from $70 million in fiscal 1969 to $115 million in fiscal 1970, with $140 million requested for fiscal 1971.

Subsidy Plan Failing?

WASHINGTON — Government officials are worried the flourishing home-mortgage subsidy program, in addition to aiding low-income families, may be abetting slum speculation and racial discrimination.

Preliminary reports indicate most Negro families using the subsidies are buying older homes in inner city areas, says Charles B. Davis, the program's director.

Whites, on the other hand, appear to be using subsidies to buy new homes in suburbs, he said.

"There are indications, especially in Washington, D.C., that slum speculators are using the program to unload old homes they couldn't otherwise sell," Davis said. "And some of these houses are in obvious violation of codes—local enforcement we have no control over."

Government statistics for the third quarter of 1969 show that the average age of existing homes purchased with mortgage subsidies was 27 years; under conventional, nonsubsidized FHA mortgages, the average home age during the same period was 16 years.

Low-income families are receiving a median government subsidy of $55 a month toward their mortgage payments. They are required to pay 20 per cent of their adjusted income for home costs.

Publisher Declares: Business Must Talk to Youth

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Real Estate Editor

Violence, on the college campus or in the picket line, dominates newspaper headlines today. Much attention is focused on student disorders, strikes and general public unrest.

But businessmen cannot turn their backs on these outbreaks, warns Charles A. Hill, publishing director of Modern Office Procedure magazine. The stakes are too high.

The young men and women revolting against our educational systems today are the same people who will be applying for jobs within months, or a the most a couple of years, Hill points out.

Too many businessmen have faith in some miraculous power that will suddenly convert the campus rioter into a practical businessman with a rational approach to business problems. It simply does not happen, Hill states.

These are difficult times and the problems facing businessmen are no less difficult. But the solutions do not lie in ignoring the facts. The answer is communication, he asserts.

If business is to continue to provide a way of life for Americans, it must talk to young people. It must overcome the tarnished image with youth with a friendlier attitude, better understanding and more incentive.

It is not merely a social or moral responsibility that should motivate business to become totally involved with disorders, Hill observes, the very future of business depends on its ability to communicate. It cannot afford to stay on the sidelines.

The businessman's most potent weapon? Truth, says

Hill. Top executives must spend a great amount of time making sure that the truth about business and profits is well known.

They must also expend much energy correcting business faults and demonstrating that business is ethical. And they must combat the false allegations, the carefully planned demands and accusations with the true facts.

Business must meet the situation with a frontal attack — today, cautions Hill. Tomorrow may be too late.

More Money Needed

Traditionally short on locally supplied investment capital, California's real estate and mortgage market turned to nationwide institutional investors for some $2.6 billion in much needed financing in 1969, according to the annual survey of thestate's mortgage bankers.

As outlined in the report prepared by the statewide California Mortgage Bankers Association, the dollar value of existing California mortgages financed by such investors through mortgage bankers has risen to a record $16.5 billion.

Growing concern was evidenced in the survey, however, over the ability of the predominantly out-of-state investors to maintain this level of funding for the California market.

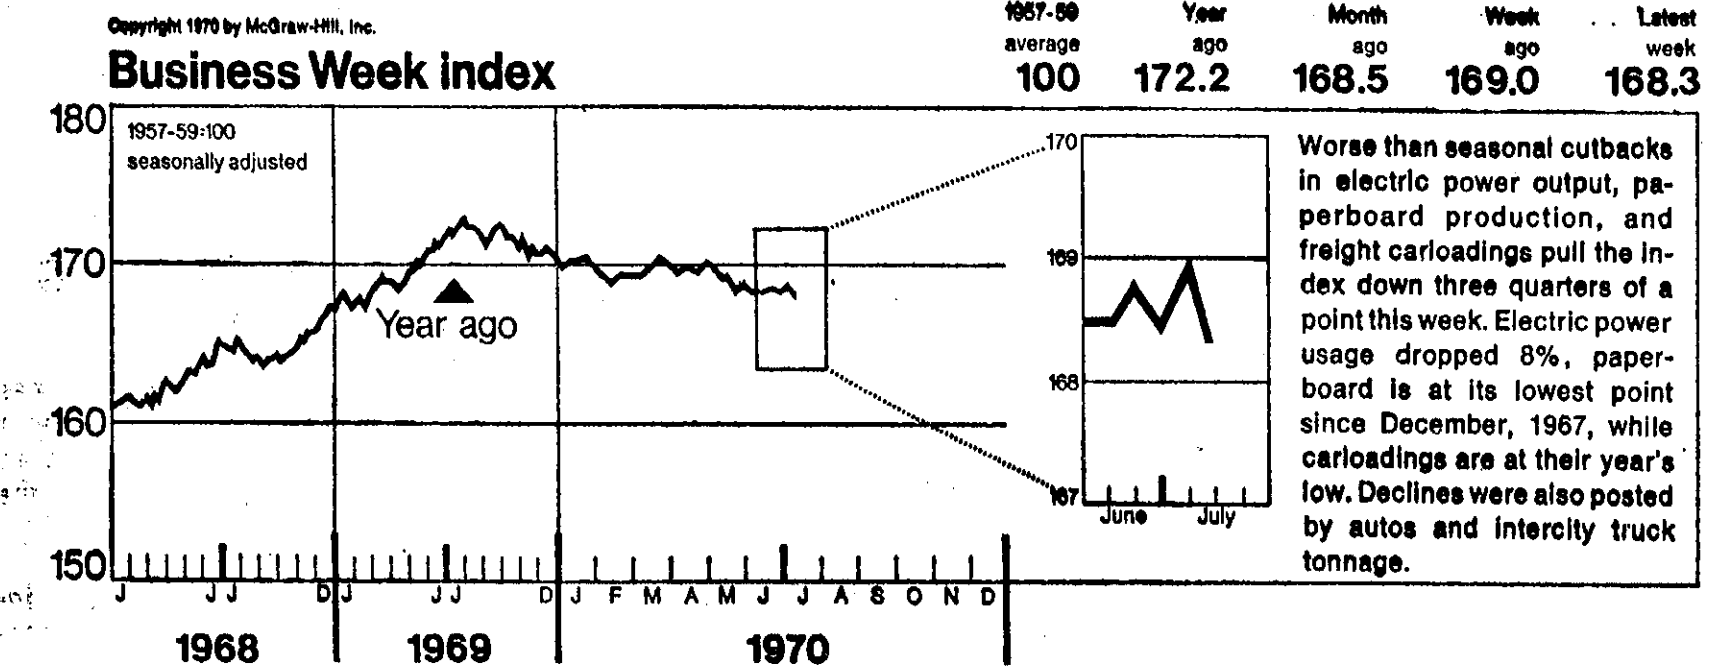

In responding to the survey questionnaire, nearly half of the state's 80-plus mortgage banking firms reported a noticeable slowdown in recent months in the volume of advance loan commitments from their investors.

(First mortgage loans arranged by mortgage bankers in a given year are generally dependent on prior commitments agreed to by their investors — typically some 18 months to two years earlier. A drop in commitments now, therefore, could result in a continued squeeze on the state's supply of real estate funds over the next several months, despite a possible improvement in the national economy.)

An equally large number of the mortgage bankers also reported that many of the investors who are still active have ceased, however, making straight mortgage loans on income-producing property. The once innovative "rental-participation" loans, which earlier attracted investors with a share in the income generated by the mortgaged property, have also apparently lost much of their pulling power.

The heart of the problem, according to Richard J. Giddings, recently-elected CMBA president, is the unrelenting high cost of money, "plus intense and unequal competition nationally for available funds."

Right now builders and developers in some forty-odd states can frankly outbid California for loans. Then add to that the bond market, and a variety of other forms of investment, all offering investors yields higher than we can match by law."

Slow State of Economy Evident

This week's production Index reflects the slow state of the nation's economy. In the current week the chart-line dropped 0.4 per cent, downing the year-ago figures by 2.3 per cent.

Auto output lost 0.9 per cent in the midst of the model-changeover period.

Steel output continued to see-saw with a 2.1 per cent rise. No stable gains are predicted for the near future.

Crude oil refinery runs went up 0.1 per cent; while electric power output plummeted 8.0 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings rose 3.4 per cent — a healthy 6.3 per cent increase above a year ago. All other carloadings went down 8.6 per cent, reflecting losses in every transport product category. Intercity truck tonnage slipped 1.7 per cent.

Paperboard production fell 9.3 per cent, responding to slowing retail sales.

Strikes and threats of strikes continue to hang heavily in the U.S. economic atmosphere — adding to the impact of the downturn and, like smog, obscuring any bright spots, Industry Week reported.

The wave of labor unrest is causing jitters among already worried consumers and businessmen, and it is helping spread the so-called summer doldrums throughout industry, the magazine said.

Labor negotiations got underway in the auto industry last week — and a strike when contracts expire on Sept. 14 is almost a foregone conclusion.

In many cities, among them Chicago and Cleveland, walkouts by building trades unions are stalling construction of everything from plants to highways. Strikes in a variety of other industries are causing parts shortages — with appliance producers, for example, unable to obtain enough compressors, brass valves, and electrical capacitors.

Meanwhile, a wide variety of industries, including automotive, are looking over their shoulders at the possibility of labor stoppages in steel next summer. Many companies already are readying plans for stockpiling steel, the magazine pointed out.

Despite a lack of significant ordering by automakers, however, raw steel output continues at a level about on a par with a year ago. And while the auto industry took 20 per cent less steel in the first five months of this year than in 1969, this represents a demand loss equal to less than one week's production.

INDUSTRY WEEK ESTIMATES that raw steel output in the week ended July 18 was 2,555,000 net tons compared to 2,568,000 tons the previous week. The estimate is only 45,000 tons below the comparable 1969 figure, and the drop comes mainly from the shutdown for repair of a Cincinnati area steel facility.

The inflow of new orders for steel varies widely from mill to mill, but indications are that August will be a slow month for steel sales departments.

For the first five months of 1970, steel shipments from U.S. mills hit 39,520,000 net tons, 1.1 per cent higher than the 39,076,000 tons recorded in the 1969 period. The American Iron & Steel Institute (AISI), Washington, notes volume has been buoyed by strong export demand.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Trend to Anti-Chamber Drives?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Next to cleanliness and godliness, the most dynamic virtue in America has been civic pride.

So strong and pervading is the booster spirit that even the most inconsequential hamlets and way-sides usually can qualify for a least one superlative.

For example, Merkel, Tex., which is my old home town, used to boast that it has "more windmills for its size than any other town west of Fort Worth."

In most cases, these exercises in self-glorification have been performed with the hope of attracting newcomers to the area, thus promoting growth and progress.

And because of this tradition I would unhesitatingly pick as the most significant new item of the week a report that a California community is now engaging in reverse Chamber of Commerce.

The Santa Clara Board of Supervisors is said to be trying to discourage further migration into that region on grounds that additional population would increase its tax and pollution problems.

WELL, YOU don't need special trend-spotting glasses to see what this presages. It won't be long before communities all over the nation will be finding themselves at the saturation point and undertaking anti-Chamber campaigns to repel the influx of newcomers.

The big question is: can they overcome the momentum that civic pride has built up over the years?

The first step probably should be passage of a local ordinance making it a misdemeanor to say anything nice about the place.

Then there must be a halt in all promotional functions, such as the annual Merkel Windmill Festival, that might draw more settlers.

These could be replaced with repellent events, such as the annual East Mississippi Boll Weevil Festival or the Southwest Missouri Bubonic Plague Pageant commemorating the introduction of contagious diseases into the area.

SOME municipal name-changing will be in order. For instance, Garden City, N. Y., Glad Valley, S.D., Frostproof, Fla., and Sweetwater, Okla., might want to consider changing their names to Weed Patch, Sad Dale, Everfreeze and Bitterdrink.

Overcrowded urban centers along the interstate highway system can deter immigration by removing their names from direction signs and plugging up their offramps.

And if that didn't work, then a city should petition Rand McNally to have itself taken off the map.

Wouldn't you like to be the first person in your neighborhood, office, therapy group or bowling league to own a Harold Stassen wristwatch?

Of course you would. Political timepieces are the newest fashion and everyone likes to be out in front with the style-setters.

Show up at the next PTA meeting with a Harold Stassen watch on your wrist and people will think you are a regular Ethel Kennedy.

Maybe the plans I have to produce Stassen watches are only the gingerbread dreams of a sweet, impractical kid. But if I can put the deal across, you'll soon be able to buy one for your very own.

And I'm convinced the Stassen watches will be even more popular than the Spiro Agnew watches, which started the fad, and the Dick Nixon watches, which are just now coming on the market.

THE Stassen watch will have more to offer than a caricature of a leading political figure on the dial. It will have a special spring that will give it an extraordinary mount of persistence.

You won't wind it like an ordinary watch. You just whisper a few words of encouragement. And then it runs. And runs. And runs. And runs.

In fact, I view the Stassen watch as the harbinger of a whole new line of political watches, each of which will have a distinctive feature that advances the watchmaking art.

HERE are some of the items in the proposed catalog:

The Barry Goldwater watch — only runs when you wear it on your right wrist.

The George Wallace watch — no matter what time it is, the hand always points south.

The Hubert Humphrey watch — you wind it up and it never unwinds.

The Lyndon Johnson watch — runs fine until it gets to Viet Nam and then stops.

The Lester Maddox watch — you don't wind it; you make it run by hitting it with an ax handle.

The Ronald Reagan watch — only runs in California.

The Nelson Rockefeller watch — starts running too late.

The Eugene McCarthy watch — runs well if you ignore it; but if you try to wind it up, it stops.

Goodwill Post to L. H. Brinkman

L.H. Brinkman, of 3851 Pine Ave., Long Beach, is president of the newly organized Council of California Goodwill Industries.

The council takes the place of an informal one started two years ago.

Brinkman, retired insurance executive, has been active in the management of the local Goodwill Industries for 13 years and is a past president of its Board of Directors. Prior to that he served in a similar capacity with the Stockton Goodwill.

Brinkman said the council's purpose is "to help pool the know-how of the 11 autonomous Goodwill organizations. This will help each meet the needs of the handicapped people in its particular locality."

BRINKMAN serves without pay, as do the more than 300 men and women who make up the Goodwill boards.

Long Beach's is one of five Goodwill organizations in Southern California. Others are at Santa Ana, San Diego, San Bernardino and Los Angeles. There are six more in the northern part of the state. Together they serve physically, mentally and socially handicapped people in 38 countries.

Last year, these 11 organizations served 8,516 people, with an average daily employment of 3,130. Over 85 per cent of these are handicapped. With 150 sheltered workshops in the state, Goodwill provided over one half of the jobs last year and paid over $5,700,000 in wages.

FaceCard Appears Monday

United States National Bank on Monday will begin issuing a new type of Master Charge Card it's called the FaceCard.

On the front the new card looks exactly like the usual gold, orange, white and black Master Charge Card with the bank's name and Master Charge logo, and below that, in embossed type, the card's expiration date, account number and cardholder's name.

But turn the card over and you'll see a new dimension to credit cards.

John Read Realty Expands

Appointment of Morey Shuff as manager of the new Huntington Beach office of John Read Realty, Inc., was announced this week by John Read, president.

Shuff was in automotive management for 18 years before joining Read's firm in 1964.

He will remain active in the Long Beach offices of the company, coordinating the expansion program into Orange County, Read said.

MOREY SHUFF

TG&Y to Expand Long Beach Unit

TG&Y Stores Company will expand its Belmont Shopping Center store, according to G. P. Jacobsen, western division vice president.

The store is located at Anaheim Street and Redondo Avenue, Long Beach.

The unit will be enlarged from 8,400 square feet to 12,140. Developer for the project is Ambrose Properties, Inc. of Santa Monica.

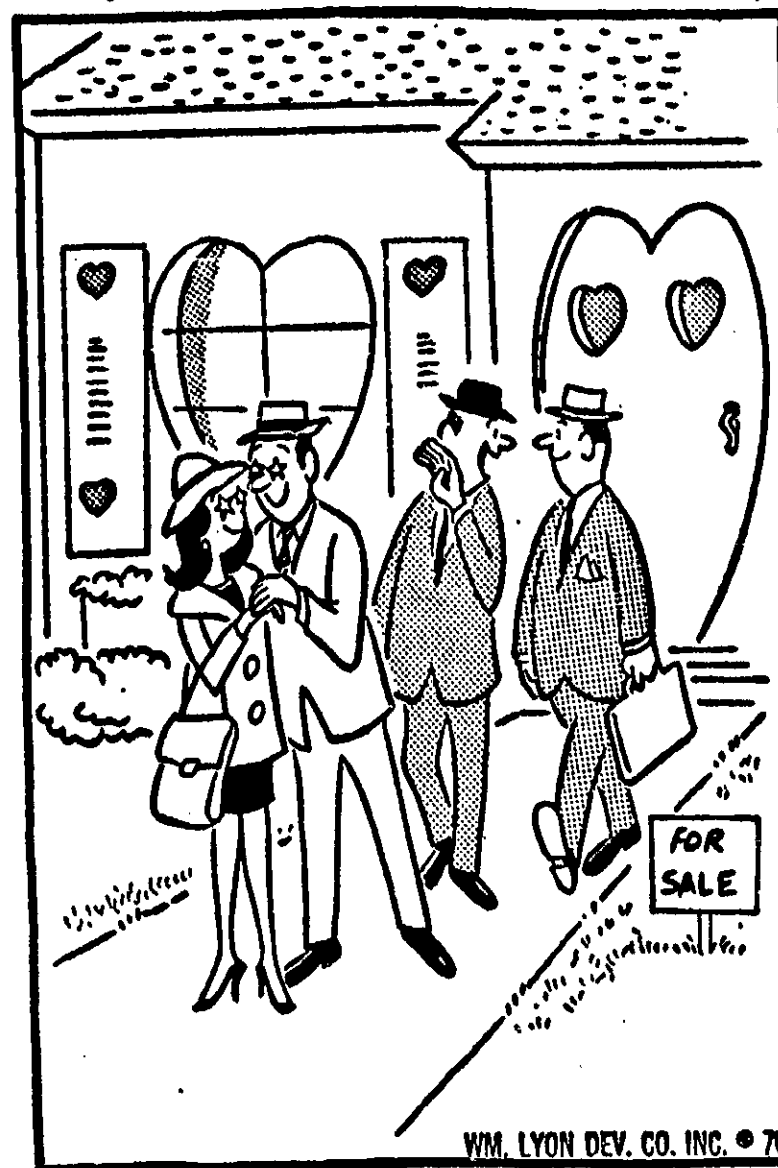

TG&Y's leasing negotiations were handled by leasing manager R. O. Ralston of the firm's western division office.

The expansion is scheduled for completion by Sept. 15.

J. M. NEWGENT, vice president of store operations, also announced G. P. Jacobsen has been named western division vice president.

Jacobsen will be chief of store operations for the firm's 111 California stores. He was supervisor of the Arizona units from 1955 to 1965.

Tri-Valley processes and markets a full line of California-grown fruits and vegetables. Military Marketing Service also has offices at San Diego, Oakland and Seattle-Tacoma.

Air Canada Initiates New Off-Airport Freight Office

The first "off-airport" air freight distribution center to reduce shipping congestion at Los Angeles International Airport has been opened by Air Canada, with monthly Southland cargo airlift which has grown from 60,000 pounds to more than 400,000.

The new 25,000-square-foot terminal at 5331 W. 104th St., near the airport, is designed to facilitate shipments by Southern California forwarders and international transfer shipments from Australia and the Orient.

Ground handling procedures and administrative processing have been streamlined to accept surface deliveries without delay. The import and export area accommodates up to eight cab and trailer rigs simultaneously.

Palletized operations insure unitized transfer from inbound ocean vessels at Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors of cargo for shipment via Air Canada's DC-8 jets to distribution centers in Montreal and Toronto.

SERVICE is maintained 24 hours daily under the direction of cargo manager Robert Tribe and his staff of four supervisors and 18 agents.

"Three-fourths of Air Canada's freight originates with the forwarders and shippers in Southern California," said J. G. Gaffikin, district manager. "Our goal is to offer the fastest rotating inventory of freight of any airline at International Airport."

The expanded import and export docking area provides complete segregation of international cargoes which must pass customs inspection before release.

Customs officials are stationed at the complex from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. They are also available on call for personal and perishable cargoes.

Portland Cement Assn. Names Two New Staffers

Appointment of Ray Bogart and Robert L. Covell to the staff of the Portland Cement Association has been announced by Edward Mangotich, managing engineer of the Los Angeles Office of the Association.

Bogart is a general field engineer covering Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Kern Counties. Covell is a field engineer working primarily in structures and housing in the metropolitan Los Angeles area.

Bogart, of Ventura, was formerly an engineer with Shell Oil Company and an office manager with the New Mexico State Highway Department.

Covell's experience includes engineering assignments with the Los Angeles County Flood Control District, Atlantic Research Corporation, the firm of Robert Stone & Associates, and the Cities of Pomona and Azusa. He is a Covina resident.

Parkwood-Los Alamitos Means Gracious Adult Living

Parkwood-Los Alamitos gives active adults a variety of outdoor living and entertainment facilities. From a very private patio-home center to a complete central recreational complex Parkwood offers vast numbers of adult activity possibilities.

This planned community by S & S Construction Company is exclusively for adults with only 103 homes clustered around six cul-de-sacs.

A completely private side patio is a part of each home design. It extends the full length of the home and is completely accessible through sliding glass doors and the all-new private side entrance.

EMIL TESSIN, president of S & S, describes the architectural design of the homes as "geometric. The roof line extends interior living space by reaching out to include the side patio."

"Most of our residents will landscape this area as an entertainment center with practically no upkeep requirements. And, of course, they can enjoy the fully landscaped lawns only a few steps from their door which are maintained by the homeowner's association," continued Tessin.

THE community recreational complex is within easy walking distance from each Parkwood home.

There adults can relax in a sauna or jacuzzi, and sunworshippers can lay by the pool and take a swim.

The two-story clubhouse features a billiard parlor with a regulation size billiard table, and a fully equipped party room and lounge with a wide view. Residents can reserve the party room for private parties or for community activities such as a bridge tournament or an investment club meeting.

Outside the community center, there is a separate outdoor dining area featuring an open pit barbecue. This eating and party area has already been used for several events.

Parkwood homes range from $27,490 with five models and more than 15 available elevations.

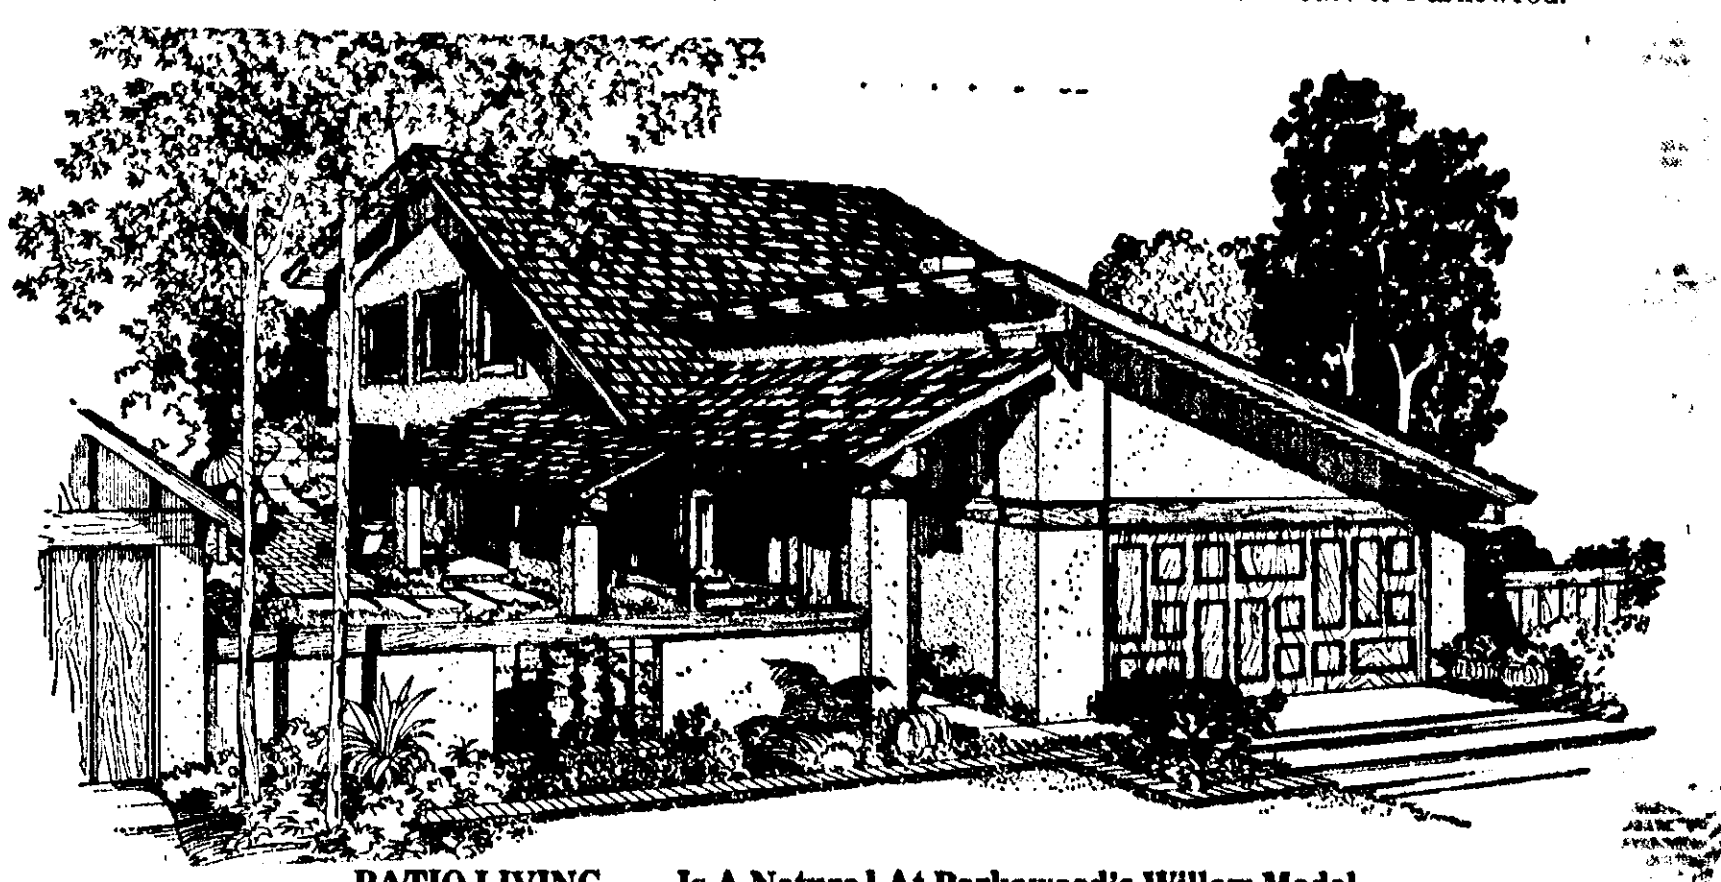

The models and recreational complex are open daily from 10 a.m. until sunset. The Parkwood-Los Alamitos complex and sales office is located on Lampson Boulevard between Valley View and Seal Beach-Los Alamitos Boulevard.

To reach Parkwood take the San Diego Free-

CONVERSATION PIT ... New Feature At Mesa Woods

NEW DESIGNS OFFERED

Mesa Woods Opens Second Unit Today

New designs, including a tri-level that has captured approval of preview audiences, are the highlights of the grand opening today of the second unit at Mesa Woods in Costa Mesa.

Mesa Woods, a half-mile west of the South Coast Plaza shopping center, is the new Orange County community of George J. Heltzer & Associates.

When the first unit of 71 homes was heading for a complete sellout far ahead of sales projections, the firm was not resting on its laurels, but already was preparing changes, modifications, and additions to keep up with up-to-the-minute consumer preferences, indicated by in depth — and double-checked — research, according to Jason R. Heltzer, a partner in the firm.

"THE NEW designs, both interiors and exteriors, are an excellent illustration of how an independent builder can respond immediately to surveys that indicate what buyers are looking for," Heltzer said.

"The new tri-level, Plan 404, includes in a single floor plan the most-wanted features of today's buyers."

"A dramatic conversation pit that dominates the entry and living room has a double hearth fireplace which also opens to the family room."

"The kitchen boasts patio service window and pass-thru shelf, and is flanked on one side by a formal dining room and on the other by a unique, glass-walled, sexagon breakfast nook. A powder-room on the first level is indicative of the thoughtfulness that went into design detail."

OTHER features include kitchen pantries, luminous ceiling lighting for the garden view kitchens, architecturally designed fireplaces, specially designed lighting fixtures and decorator hardware throughout.

The homes are of 3 and 4 bedrooms, with 2 and 3 baths.

Furnished model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. via San Diego Freeway, take Fairview offramp and go north to Sunflower, then right to the display center. Via surface streets, take Bristol or Harbor to 1101 Sunflower Avenue.

SPECIALIST

Lee Miller (above), of Huntington Beach, has been named manager of Farrow Realty's Garden Grove offices, will specialize in home financing, re-sales and sales training, said Jerry Farrow, president.

Let's Make 2x4s Just That

SALT LAKE CITY (U) — The National Conference on Weights and Measures thinks that old standby of the lumber industry — the 2-by-4 — is just what its name implies: two inches by four inches.

Usually they measure 1 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches as most lumber producers use what is called "nominal" dimensions.

The conference adopted a proposed "model state regulation pertaining to dimensions of manufactured lumber."

Garner Valley May Be Scene for Housing

RIVERSIDE (U) — The County Board of Supervisors has voted 3-2 to permit a private land company to develop a residential area in a wilderness area about 40 miles southeast of here.

A knot of spectators, booted the vote Monday, saying it was a "sellout" of the ecology to real estate interests.

The decision permits the GreatAmerica Land Co. to build a low density development in the picturesque Garner Valley area of the San Jacinto Mountains, an area some conservationists have called for preservation as a national park.

Spokesmen say the development would be along the lines of Lake Arrowhead, featuring 3,911 lots of at least 7,200 square feet each.

Board chairman Raymond T. Seeley, who voted in favor of the rezoning motion, said afterward he felt the tax advantages to the county would outweigh the advantages of a park. But he said he would welcome putting the issue to a general vote.

Catering Up

PLAINVIEW, N.Y. (UPI) — One of New York's major consumer feeding establishments, with a seating capacity of zero and a kitchen 30 miles from Times Square, did a 1969 gross volume of $2 million, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association says.

The concern uses 190 mobile catering vehicles to serve patrons employed by industrial companies in four of New York City's five boroughs and all of Long Island. Each specially equipped truck is a traveling "restaurant" carrying a variety of hot and cold food and drink. Soup, canned meals and plate dinners are kept hot on the road in ovens heated by propane gas.

Lake Forest Garden Homes Express 'Naturalness'

"Enlarging the home's interior, and implanting more natural living qualities, was our aim in creating the original Lake Forest Garden Homes," said Ron Walker, general sales manager.

Since the opening of this master-planned community by Occidental Petroleum Land and Development Corporation, the Garden Homes, he reports, have had particular appeal.

In recent weeks, increasing numbers of visitors to Lake Forest — "hundreds of people on Sundays alone," have come to see these model homes, "because," in his words, "city dwellers are hungry for nature, and these homes express the naturalness they're seeking."

"Bringing the natural open feeling of the outdoors inside the home itself," he says, "was accomplished by a mating of nature's light, sky, and the greenery of the land with the interior design of the home."

guished by yard-surrounding walls that at once "invite in the outward natural scene, yet insure completely private sanctuary from within."

Garden Kitchens, (atrium entries) and garden bathrooms are splendid examples of the flowing natural garden theme pervading these homes.

Typical of the thoroughly charming Garden Kitchens are the slide-open glass-walled vistas opening upon inner-outer serving counters for dining under blue skies. The grain of wood finish cabinetry surrounding built-ins adds a further natural touch.

Continuing the garden-like feeling of openness throughout the home, quaint windows in a bay, luxuriant garden bathrooms with covert private views, and green-growing planters overhead, patio-side and at entries to family rooms add their informal note of charm and hospitality unlimited.

HUGE timbered living rooms, with soaring vaulted beam ceilings, and massive brick or hearth-warm adobe and cedar mantled fireplaces carry out the motif of naturalness that is everywhere.

"In essence," stated Walker, "Lake Forest Garden Homes are a curious and desirable blend of built-in convenience with old-fashioned comfort and quality."

"Since variety is the spice of the Lake Forest life," he added, "a choice of Garden Homes are offered in a variety of individual models with different elevations and distinctive floor plans."

Four of the leading Garden model homes beginning at prices from $33,995, are the Bougainvillea, the Camellia, the Dahlia and the Azalea.

COUPLED with membership in the private Beach and Tennis Club, and swimming, sailing, fishing, riding and complete recreational facilities and social life for all the family, Ron Walker declares "the values are unexcelled in Southern California."

Lake Forest Garden Homes are easily reached via the San Diego or the Santa Ana freeways south to the El Toro Road turnoff.

BRANCH BANK ON WHEELS... Going On Display

B of A's Mobile Bank to Star at FMCA Meet

A $36,500 coach, serving as the Beach - Atlanta branch of Bank of America in Huntington Beach, will be on display at the Family Motor Coach Association convention at Orange County Fairgrounds, Costa Mesa, Monday through Wednesday.

One of three such bus branches now being used by Bank of America in Southern California, the mobile bank will keep regular 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. banker's hours at 21022 Beach Blvd., then move into the exhibit area between 4:30 and 8 p.m.

First used at the Valinda branch in West Covina three years ago, the branch on wheels concept has enabled Bank of America to begin fulfilling a new charter the minute it is granted.

THE BANK itself is an ultramodern 28-foot Concor coach. Major renovation, upon purchase of the equipment, cost around $15,000 before the coach was officially ready to roll.

Full security measure are taken with the mobile branch. The manager "picks up" the bank each morning at a neighborhood gas station and drives to the Main and Ellis branch to pick up the money and records required for a full day of banking. The money is returned at the end of the day.

The manager also picks up his staff of one, and then the branch moves into position on Beach Boulevard.

There will be no mobile homes, travel trailers, campers or tents at the exhibit. Entries are limited to motor coaches.

Wm. Lyon Development Co. in Mobilehome Field

American Mobilehome Corporation, one of the nation's largest mobilehome park developers and mobilehome sales organizations, has announced an $8 million initial investment in its operations by Wm. Lyon Development Co., nationwide real estate subsidiary of American-Standard.

Hubert A. Temple, AMC president, and William Lyon, president of Wm. Lyon Development Co., made the joint announcement after an agreement between the two firms brought Lyon into the mobilehome field.

Lyon said: "This investment accelerates our expansion into this field and we are delighted to join forces with American Mobilehome Corporation."

The Lyon firm has built more than 14,000 homes, and it recently announced plans to construct 7,000 multifamily units in California and Arizona. A Lyon subsidiary presently builds dwellings in the Caribbean and South America.

Acquired by American Standard in February, 1968, the firm also has three recreational land projects, De La Cruz at Santa Cruz, Royal Pines Lake near Yuba City, and Tehama Ranch in Northern California.

Gold Key Builder Award Presented to Geo. Buccola

George D. Buccola, pioneer Orange County builder and developer, has been awarded the Gold Key Builder Award by the Hotpoint Component of the General Electric Co., the third time in only six years the award has been made.

Presentation was made by Herb D. Twitchell, regional manager in Southern California for General Electric at the GE Carousel of Progress at Disneyland. Buccola and his Newport Beach-based building firm were cited for its achievements in design and construction.

The Gold Key Program is a national event which GE began six years ago. The term Gold Key Builder indicates that a company has, for many years, been an outstanding member of the construction industry.

"A company must display professional excellence and have contributed to the upgrading of standard of living," said Twitchell.

The award was made, Twitchell said, after the GE Regional Office investigated the background of the building company and recommended it to an executive committee.

A GIANT color photograph of Buccola's award-winning project, Country Estates in Orange, is on display with those of other projects at the Carousel of Progress in Disneyland. Country Estates is a

The kitchens are completely built-in with Hot-point appliances, including range, oven, dishwasher and disposal. All of the homes are ducted for refrigerated air conditioning.

JUST OPENED in Cerritos, is another Buccola project — Cerritos Village. These three and four-bedroom, one and two-story homes are priced from $29,995. As with all of the Buccola projects, these Cerritos Village Homes offer a complete built-in Medallion kitchen. A special $1 down package is offered at Cerritos Village, for all qualified veterans.

Other Buccola projects include luxury homes-with-apartments in Costa Mesa, and a 403-unit apartment project near the South Coast Plaza in Costa Mesa.

BUCCOLA, TWITCHELL... Award

Choice Property Cost: Up, Up and Away

NEW YORK (UPI) — You comb the real estate want ads for possibilities in your price range. You see: $50,000, a bargain, won't last; high $70s, good buy; $150,000, choice property.

Where are the $25,000 bargains, the good buys in the $30s and $40s, the $75,000 choice properties?

In many cases they are the same houses, back on the market after an interval of five or ten or more years — an interval in which increasing demand, a growing scarcity of choice land for building, and the pressures of inflation have pushed property values up and up.

It's a familiar enough story in the everyday residential market, but nowhere in the upward spiral more evident than in luxury properties.

BROWSE, for example, through one of the real estate guides published by Previews, Inc., listing properties for sale throughout the United States and in far-flung parts of the world.

"Wishbook" browsing though it may be for most of us, it makes fascinating reading. And the stories behind some of the properties listed — those listed more than once by Previews, a national and international clearing house for real estate — trace clearly the rise in property values over the years.

A. P. Stevens, vice president of Previews' New England division, says the demand for choice land in this section of the country is so great buyers are "paying prices over and above what the experts in the real estate field would term the fair market value."

ALL THE New England States, he said, are experiencing the fact that the demand exceeds the supply of residential resort property. People are realizing that no matter what the demand, no more choice acreage, lake and shore-frontage is being manufactured. Hence, purchases like these:

The 14-acre peninsula on the Maine seacoast, sold a few years back for $15,000; resold last year, with the addition of an attractive three-bedroom, two-bath house, for $160,000 to a purchaser from California. Or the 120-acre and 175-acre farms within easy driving distance of a new ski area in New Hampshire. Both appraised at under $20,000 a few years ago, both sold this year at a price averaging $85,000 — all cash.

THEN, there is the private island, a sportsman's paradise, heavily wooded and operated as a shooting preserve with some 200 paths carefully laid out. This sold in 1961 for $145,000, complete with two winterized residences, barn with storage sheds, a pier, 350-foot driven well, telephone service to the mainland and a 36-foot ocean cruiser. The property was resold in January this year for close to $300,000 with the addition only of a dock and a $7,500 swimming pool.

In the West — Montana — Previews sold a working ranch and recreation complex in June of 1963 for $180,000. At that time it included a single-story residence, ranch manager's chalet, four log cabins for guests, swimming pool, on 889 acres with animal compound, game paddock, stocked lake and ponds. Add a horse barn, a gabled second story on the main house, a little more than five years and the resale price: $250,000.

FARTHER afield — on the French Riviera — a luxurious property, frequently referred to as the most beautiful villa on the Riviera, was offered by Previews in 1948 and sold for $80,000. Sold once in the interim, it was offered again through Previews in 1968 and sold for $1.2 million. The only real change — addition of a swimming pool.

Or the Bahama island retreat of a famous entertainer — a five-room main house, screened gazebo, one-room guest cottage, boat house and dock on four acres with white coral sand beach. In October 1966 it sold for $75,000. Today, gazebo enclosed to provide guest quarters; guest cottage converted for caretaker, it carries a $150,000 price tag.

Hollania Homes, Cerritos, Draw Praise

More than 250 prospective homebuyers have visited Hollania Homes in Cerritos since the new 51-home community opened its "sneak preview" two weeks ago, announced Chuck Sandberg of the Harville Development Co., builders.

Located on South Street between Bloomfield and Carmenita, Hollania Homes are available in one and two-story models and range in price from $26,950 to $33,000.

Eight distinctive elevations and three new floor plans are being offered by the developers.

Families who desire to live within Los Angeles County yet enjoy the benefits of Orange County are being attracted in greater numbers to Hollania Homes, according to Sandberg.

"The location is ideal because Cerritos is served by the San Gabriel River, Artesia and Santa Ana Freeways making it a virtual center of Southern California activities," he said.

IN ADDITION to a 25-minute drive to downtown Los Angeles, Cerritos boasts a planned 83-acre regional park plus more than a dozen additional acres of park areas near every school in the city. Most famous of these parks is Pat Nixon Park, located less than half a mile from Hollania Homes.

Plans Two and Three in the select community feature wood-burning fireplaces and all models at Hollania include built-in range, oven and dishwashers, copper plumbing, fenced rear yards, nylon carpeting, wood shingle and shake roofs and underground utilities.

Models are open daily and FHA, VA and conventional terms are available on the new homes.

To reach Hollania Homes in Cerritos from Long Beach, take the Santa Ana Freeway to Carmenita. Drive south on Carmenita to South Street and west on South Street to the models.

Price Reductions Revealed at Rancho Estates

Price reductions ranging from $1,800 to $2,700 have been announced at Rancho Estates in Anaheim, according to Ray Patscheck, project director of the single-family residential development.

"Every home remaining has had a substantial reduction," Patscheck said, "without the loss of the features which made these homes so economical to move into."

The new prices now begin at $28,950, with $33,950 the highest price.

"This kind of reduction means a significant drop in both the down payment and the monthly payment," Patscheck claimed, "and the completeness of these homes makes them a even greater value."

"WE FIND that families who have owned homes before appreciate the fact that there are no heavy out-of-pocket expenses involved in moving in," he said.

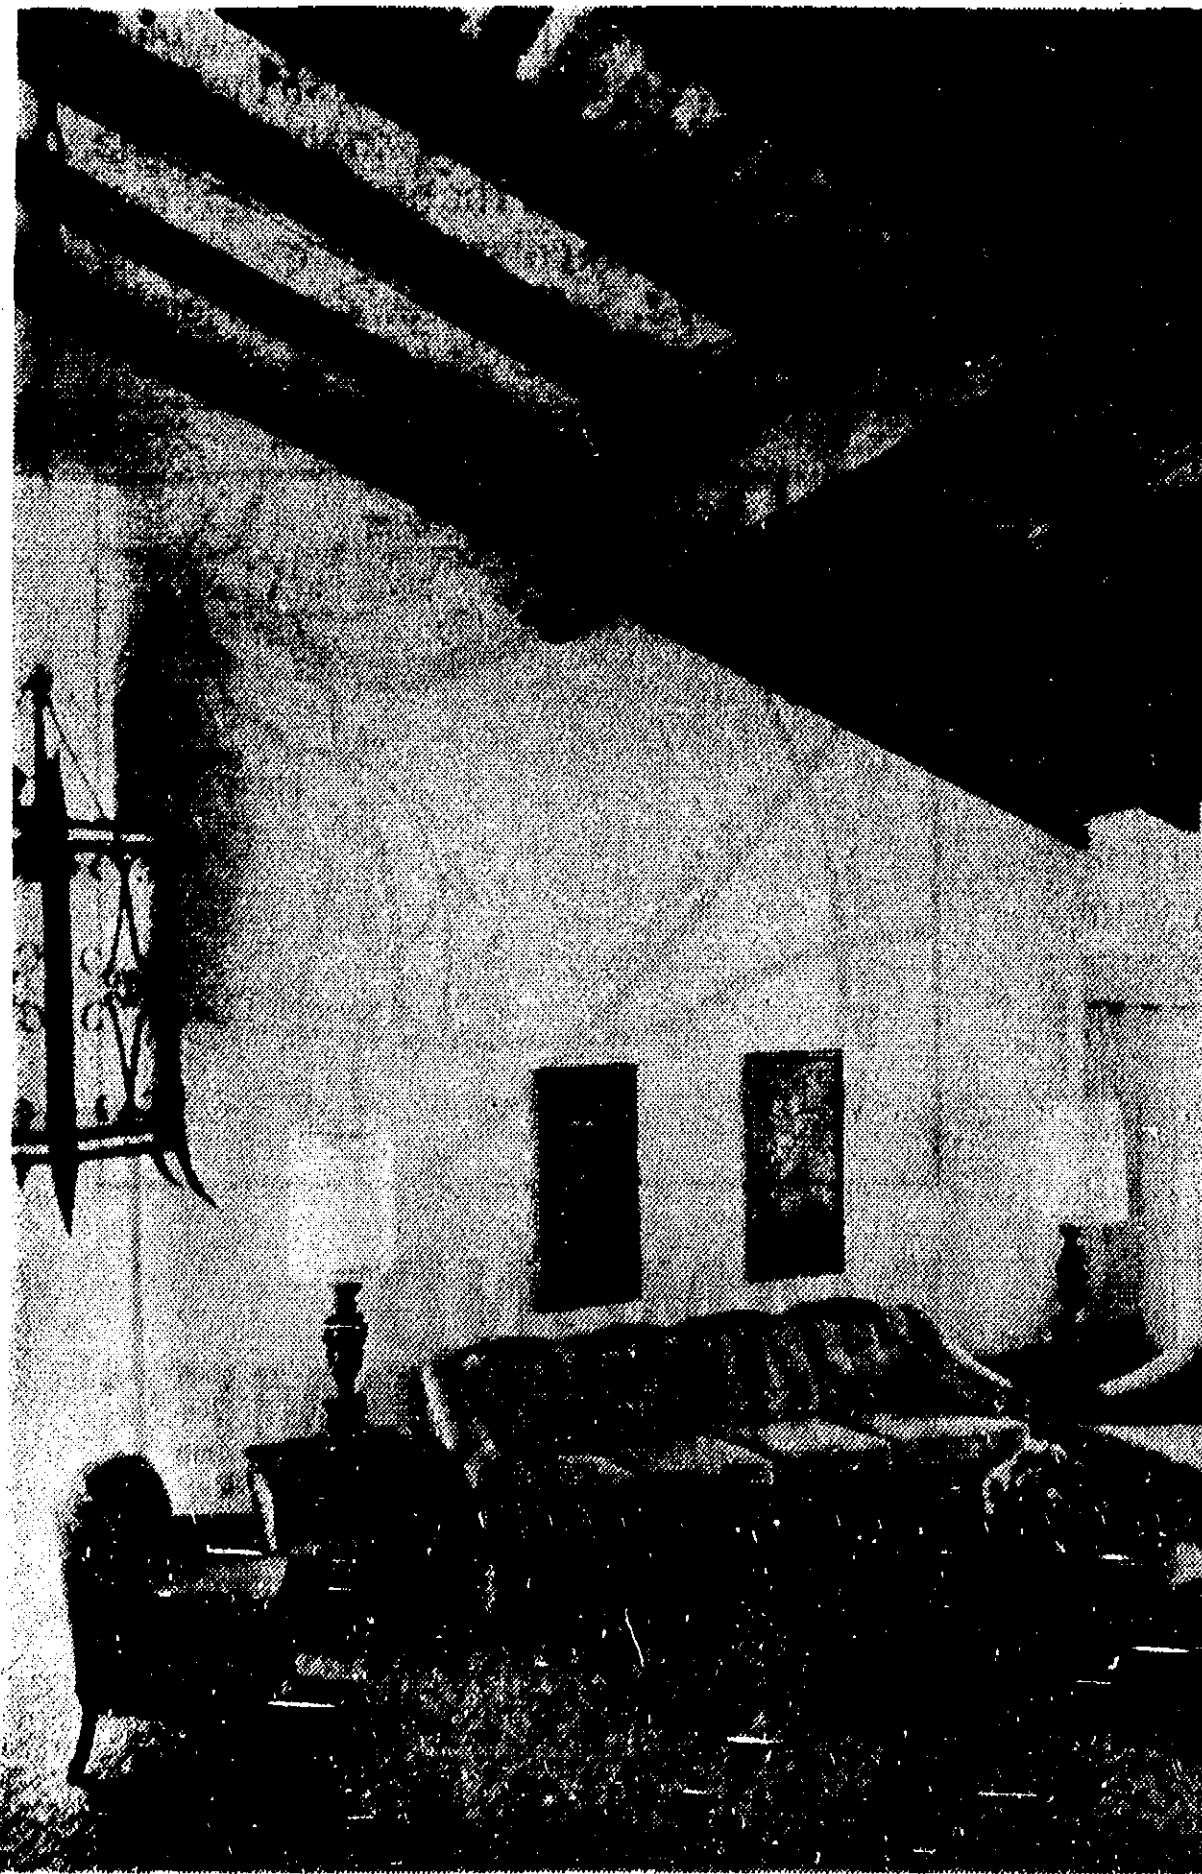

"The carpeting is installed, new draperies are hung, the rear yard is fenced so the kids are immediately safe, and the front landscaping and sprinklers eliminate a back-breaking job. Everyone who has ever owned a home knows what a headache these items can be, both in trouble and cost."

OTHER items not normally found in homes in the Rancho Estates bracket, according to the agent, are gold anodized kitchen window frames, anodized trim for the fluorescent paneled kitchen ceilings, copper plumbing and patio gas outlets for installation of the popular gas barbecues.

"All these things make a home a great deal more comfortable to live in and they lead to long-lasting pride of ownership too," Patscheck said.

Furnished models are open every day until dusk. Located on Lincoln Ave. in Anaheim, Rancho Estates is easily reached by taking the Santa Ana or Riverside Freeway to State College Blvd., the to Lincoln Ave., then east to the development.

From the Newport Freeway, go west to the entrance on the north side of Lincoln.

PARENTS, CHILDREN ... Enjoy Time-Saving Items At Yorktowne

Educational Facilities Abound Near Yorktowne-Huntington Beach

With summer in full bloom and fall around the bend, families moving have to consider the educational facilities around the community they will live, according to Dick Kurth, of Kurth & Associates, sales agents for Yorktowne in Huntington Beach.

The complex is a Shields Development Co. project and Kurth noted much consideration was given to the proximity to all levels of educational institutions. "We were very lucky with Yorktowne; there are grammar schools, junior and senior highs and even junior colleges, state colleges and a university nearby. We are surrounded by a complete academic community and that has to be stimulating to the residents," Kurth said.

Some of the finest and most complete schools in the Southland serve the community, with the closest being the Bushard School, which is adjacent to the development. The Bushard School serves children between the grades of kindergarten and eighth, with the high school within easy walking distance, although bus service is available, he added.

FOR THOSE parents with college age youngsters, there are a variety of campuses to select from. Closeby are the two junior colleges, Orange Coast College and Golden West College.

"Both of these institutions prepare the student for advancement to a four-year institution or supply the individual with a solid, two-year general education," Kurth noted. The University of California at Irvine and California State College at Long Beach are both within easy commuting distance to all residents of Yorktowne.

To reach these outstanding model homes, take either the Santa Ana, Garden Grove or the San Diego Freeway to Brookhurst and drive south to Yorktowne Avenue, then right to the models. The homes are open from 10 a.m. until dusk daily.

Sears to Locate in Redondo

Sears, Roebuck and Co. will locate a new appliance-catalog sales store in Redondo Beach to replace the present facility at 310 Harbor Drive from which Sears has served its customers for 15 years.

This disclosure was made by E. W. Weldon, Sears Los Angeles district manager, in announcing the leasing of a store building for the new store at 1218 Beryl St. in the Redondo Beach Village Center.

Weldon said the store will be extensively remodeled. It will have a gross area of 7,000 square feet, with approximately two thirds of the space used to display merchandise items including home appliances.

'Christmas in July' Sale at Private Road Estates

George M. Holstein and Sons' "Christmas in July" celebration continues at the walled Private Road Estates Community in La Palma this weekend with a large selection of gifts available to buyers.

Buyers will have a choice of draperies, washer, dryer, color TV or refrigerator to complement the Private Road homes that also highlight front landscaping and sprinklers, decorator fireplaces, three-car garages as well as complete built-in kitchens, the pioneer Southland home builders announced.

Three, four and five-bedroom homes are available at the location on La Palma Avenue with Mediterranean styling, dramatic ceilings and front patios, finding favor with early buyers.

Both Veteran and FHA financing are offered at the walled community's site that is easy to reach via the San Gabriel Freeway's Del Amo (La Palma) off-ramp.

R & B Development Co. Named Second Largest

R & B Development Company, pioneers of the South Bay Club chain of recreation-oriented apartment communities for single people, has been named the second largest builder of multi-unit housing to close a gas in according to a survey conducted by Professional Builder Magazine.

The Los Angeles-based builder moves up a notch from a third place ranking in 1969.

STATISTICS used in the survey, published in the magazine's July issue, were based on units completed and dollar volume through 1969. At that time, R & B had completed 5,498 apartment units with a dollar volume estimated at $85,000,000.

The company has 9,225 units in operation, and an additional 3,000 units either under construction or in the planning stages, according to R & B partner Edward R. Brodka. "By the end of 1970, we will have about 10,800 units in operation," Brodka said.

Ocean View Available in New Sol Vista Homes

A new development of Sol Vista Homes with panoramic views of the Pacific Ocean, large lots and "positive purchase" features will debut this week-end in San Juan Capistrano, according to Al Solomon, president of the home building firm.

The new sea-oriented community, consisting of 24 executive-size homes, will be known as Sol Vista-San Juan Capistrano.

Ranging in price from $35,900 to $41,500, the development features three new designs with seven distinctive exterior elevations. Located less than three minutes from the Dana Point Marina, land values at Sol Vista-San Juan Capistrano are expected to increase similarly to the spiraling effect of other Southern California coastal communities, Solomon noted.

"With the Southland's population expanding from its core in Los Angeles and Northern Orange County, we expect our new project to attract home-

Bank Helps Raise Fund for Athletes

Southern California First National Bank will become the first bank in the nation on Monday to initiate the sale of "Olympic Checks" to raise funds for the 1972 U.S. Olympic team, according to Fielder K. Lutes, vice president and director of marketing.

The personalized checks, which will be available at all 56 offices, will be sold to customers at $3.68 for 200, which is $1 beyond the bank's cost. The extra $1 is tax deductible and will go toward financing the summer Olympic team in Munich, Germany and the winter team in Sapporo, Japan.

The U.S. team is one of few which is not subsidized through its own government, said Clifford H. Buck, president of the United States Olympic Committee. Some $10 million must be raised to train, transport, house and feed the young athletes, coaches and officials who will represent their country in the 28 sports events in 1972.

Other banks throughout the country later will join in the sale of Olympic Checks, with special design authorized by the Olympic Committee, Buck said.

buyers who wish to live in a truly recreational area yet remain as close-in as possible," he said.

SOL VISTA'S "positive purchase" features include view lots, front sprinklers and lawn, concrete driveways and over-sized garages.

All homes in the new community feature forced-air heating, termite-proof foundations, special drain and water connections for washer and dryer, shake or shingle roofs, a generous use of wood siding and masonry and exclusive decorator colors.

Discount Offered at New Heather Homes

For a limited time, Heather Homes is offering custom houses at $2,000 discount under FHA valuation, with 7½ per cent interest at FHA or VA terms. Only three homes are available at this discount and low interest rate, and the opportunity to take advantage of these terms will expire Aug. 10.

Instead of $35,750 for the Plan 101, for example, the new price is $33,750.

The buyer has a choice of individually styled color-keyed homes in transitional or Spanish motif, with spacious four bedrooms, plus family room and two baths, that boast of over 50 outstanding features found only in homes in a much higher price range.

Women love the all-electric kitchen with double deck sink, eight-foot luminous ceiling, breakfast bar, custom designed cabinets (no pre-fab) and ceramic tile, all color-keyed. One model has a full size service porch with 220 wiring and gas for the drier.

ALL BATHS have marbelled pullmans, with one or two oval lavatories in each. The beauty of the baths are enhanced by mirrored walls, swag light fixtures and crystal faucets. Each home has two showers, a one-piece fiber glass stall shower and a shower over the tub.

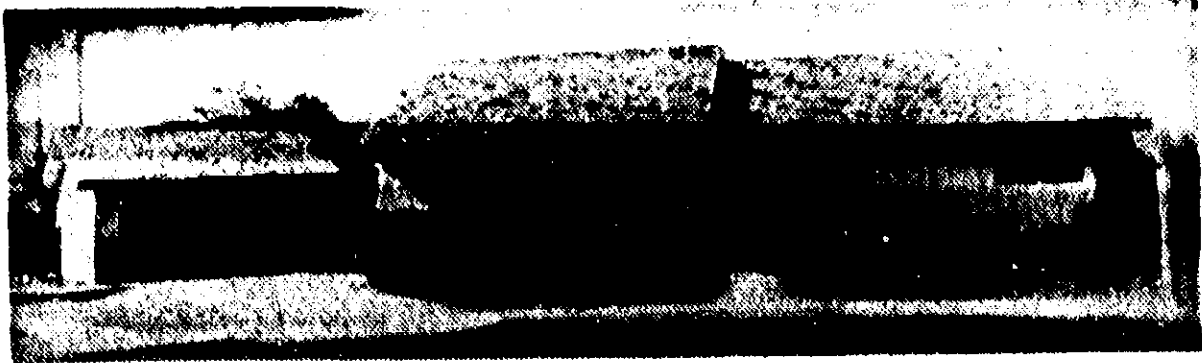

The bedrooms are spacious with large wardrobe or walk-in closets. The master bedroom has wall-hized mirrored wardrobe sliding doors, and a choice of shag carpeting.

The man of the house will appreciate the fenced yards, with or without a boat gate, cement driveways, underground utilities, and luxurious hand-crafted fireplaces.

The children have the advantage of a cul-de-sac street and walking distance to all schools.

These homes are located in the heart of Garden Grove, at Lampson and Persimmons Circle. Persimmons Circle is so new that it is not yet on the

Cerritos Offers Courses

In cooperation with real estate boards in the area, Cerritos College is offering another "first" for Real Estate education enrollees. It was announced by Bruce Mulhearn, president of the Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors.

Mulhearn said that through the efforts of Lowell Anderson, business coordinator of the college, prospective enrollees can select desired subjects from a course offering to be distributed by the real estate boards.

Several new courses have been added to the real estate classes this year, including business communications, business mathematics and career internship. All classes may be applied toward a Junior College AA Degree or the California Real Estate Certificate.

Persons wishing to sit for the state examination for real estate license may prepare for the examination by attending a prescribed number of courses.

TO BANK

Wilbur Smith, owner of Orange County advertising agency, will terminate agency operation Aug. 1 to join staff of Southern California First National Bank as regional marketing officer.

ONLY A START

A Program for Clean Air

By GILBERT BAILEY
Contributing Editor

Air pollution can be halted in the Los Angeles basin . . . the air can be returned to its quality of 1940 or earlier.

The quality of the air entering the basin, cleansed as it is by 5,000 miles of ocean, is the best in the world.

Smog Public Opinion Poll, Page A-7.

All that has to be done is to control the pollution sources, all of them, within the basin itself.

There is no such comprehensive control program. Witness today's skies.

On the basis of numerous interviews with pollution control experts and on the basis of data developed in this series, the following emerges as the minimum acceptable air pollution control program. This program—effected at municipal, county, state and federal levels—is a start. It is not the final solution.

First, every Los Angeles Basin vehicle operator should have his engine's emission control system tested, and possibly repaired. Atlantic Richfield, as a special service, is making such tests available free at selected shopping centers.

Second, while so-called smog free gasolines are relatively ineffective in fighting pollution lead-free gasoline should be purchased whenever possible. Even so, functioning control devices are far more important than the type of gas used.

Lower horsepower cars should be purchased.

Care should be taken in the use of the auto and other pollution causing machines including electrical appliances, which create need for smog-producing power plants.

Finally, the concerned basin resident should contact his representative on the board of supervisors—the man who has first-level responsibility for smog in the basin—and his state legislator and his representatives in Congress to demand action.

ON A COUNTY LEVEL the Board of Supervisors should call for a full-scale independent review of the operations of the Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District and its hearing board. This would be to determine how the district's operations can be improved and why, after 22 years and $60 million in expenditures, there is still intolerable smog in the district.

As much of the review as possible should be public and it should include testimony, backed by all the facts available, from authorities such as Dr. Kenneth Watts of the University of California at Davis, who have predicted "killer smogs" for the basin. If such predictions are based on facts, then the public needs those facts NOW. If they are not based on fact, then the public should know that too.

In addition, the district's statistics, open to question as they are, should be verified by a thorough scientific study of air pollution in the basin. This study should be conducted by an air pollution control laboratory such as the one at the University of California at Riverside. More information must be developed in special areas such as reduced visibility traceable to particulates.

Robert Chass, Los Angeles air pollution control officer properly has been critical about the failure of motor vehicle exhaust controls. However, Chass' responsibility and the responsibility of the district is for control of industrial sources—all sources other than the automobile. That responsibility should not be ignored because of the failure of the auto manufacturers to do their job.

Chass should be instructed to draft further regulations of industry, including oil refineries, chemical plants, power plants and foundries. Gasoline spills at service stations should be controlled. Some further regulations are now being studied; those studies should be broadened and speeded, and new regulations applied within the year.

No more fossil fuel generating plants should be allowed within the Los Angeles Air Basin, including Orange County. Nuclear plants must be built to fill the electrical power needs of the area.

Incumbent on officials as the final step in the program at the district level is to require air polluters to file reports on their pollution with the district. This should cover sulfur dioxides, lead, fluorides and any other contaminants for which monitoring is practical.

BEYOND THE PURVIEW of the APCD, a rapid transit system similar to that in the Bay Area is needed. Voters should support such a district, if they wish to breathe wholesome air.

On the state and national levels, new legislation should be implemented, as recommended by Chass. This would require auto makers to test emission controls on a go-go basis on the assembly line and to guarantee the device for no less than 25,000 miles.

State officials should divert gas tax funds, now used only for highways, to rapid transit and to fighting air pollution. A state constitutional amendment could authorize the diversion or a bill by State Sen. Alfred Alquist to raise the gas tax could accomplish the same objective.

The state and the federal governments, should require auto manufacturers at their own expense to provide cars for testing on a regular basis and should ac-

RESTAURANT 'COLLEGE'

Learning to Serve

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

Recipients of money raised in last November's John F. Kennedy Walk Against Hunger were given funds with this proviso: The money had to be used to improve the quality of nutrition for the malnourished.

The Long Beach Welfare Rights Organization got $3,000 from the "walk." It put $900 into a Central District pantry on Gaviota Avenue near Anaheim Street and spent the other $2,200 to launch the Long Beach Food College.

FROM THE outside the Food College, at 5188 Atlantic Ave., resembles any restaurant. Inside, the appearance also follows popular concepts of cafe operation. Still, the Food College is unlike any restaurant you could name.

Everyone works hard — but no one gets paid.

There is a waiting list of teen-aged girls eager to learn the trade of waitress, the art of cooking, the financial aspects of cashing. Those girls who are now working at the Food College are instructed by veteran waitresses on how to approach customers, how to set tables, how to serve food and how to maintain cleanliness in the restaurant.

"We're not paying wages," said Mrs. Arlene Toseland, president of the WRO, "because we need the money for new food supplies, new equipment and paying things like rent, utilities and insurance."

"Our only real expense in opening — other than equipment and food — was $15 to have the place painted," said Mrs. Toseland. "We gave that job to a guy who needs the money to buy shoes for his sons."

ALTHOUGH the official opening of the Food College isn't until today — hours are 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. — the girls have been having test periods for most of this week as word of mouth told customers where they could buy a reasonably priced meal that was nutritionally balanced.

"It's been a challenge," said Debbie Shaputis, one of the teen waitresses. "We take turns doing the dishes which isn't so great but we've also learned how to wait on the counter and how to improve our arithmetic."

"The people here helped me with a lot of things I didn't know before," added April Toseland. "The entire routine is really helpful," said Shelley Bruns, "although the thing I'm really interested in is learning how to put a plate together so it looks appetizing."

About 30 WRO members are engaged in the operation of the food college — which also includes classes which begin when the doors close at 7 p.m. — and they're now working with eight regulars and about a half dozen irregulars in the volunteer corps.

"I TALKED with a woman from the Human Resources Development Department," said Mrs. Toseland, "and she said there might be a way that some of our 'graduates' could be placed in regular restaurants in Long Beach. We see ourselves here as serving that kind of need in the community and serving the need for food in the North Long Beach area while we're at it."

Mrs. Toseland said she didn't know how the other recipients of Hunger March funds were using them; but the money isn't marking time at Food College.

PEAK BUDGET IN ORANGE CO.

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer.

A record budget of $212.4 million for the 1970-71 fiscal year was adopted late Friday by the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

The budget, which represents a $21 million increase over county spending for last year, probably can be financed without a tax increase because the county's assessed worth has skyrocketed.

In addition to the $212,427,746 for general government operation, a charge of about $3.6 million will be made for the County Public Library and about $1.4 million for the County Fire Department.

The budget was adopted after a 10-day hearing. It showed little change until the final day — when the supervisors cut capital outlays by more than $4 million.

THE COUNTY'S tax rate of $1.67 per $100 assessed valuation might be lowered to $1.64. The rate will depend finally on the public utilities valuation to be reported by the State Board of Equalization.

The supervisors began with budget requests of $228 million. Some of the items were merely "suggested" by county administrative officer Robert E. Thomas, and never got serious consideration.

Until Friday, the supervisors had managed to trim less than $100,000 from the budget. But by postponing some capital outlays projects, their biggest saving of $2.4 million was realized.

Among capital outlay projects trimmed were: the Civic Center Mall Development by $250,000; repair of flood damage in county parks by $300,000 and completion of more municipal courtrooms in the new courthouse, cut $600,000.

The supervisors decided not to pay cash for a $1.5 million building for the county schools office. Instead, it will be financed by a joint powers authority which can issue its own bonds.

Students Asking Aid on Politics

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Councilmen will be asked Tuesday to take a stand against a proposal by California State Colleges trustee Dudley Swim that "political activity" be banned on campuses of the state college system.

The Swim proposal actually would handicap those student groups trying to work within the system, and be ineffective against the others, the appeal declared.

The formal request for council action was submitted by Ric Opalka, president of the Associated Students of California State College at Long Beach; Charley Roberts, editor-in-chief of The Forty-Niner; Larry Sosowsky, A.S. public relations commissioner and Phil Tondreault, A.S. representative to the City Council.

THE FOUR students participated in a "dialogue" between CSCLB representatives and city officials last Wednesday, when the Swim proposal was a major target of criticism by the collegians.

They pointed out that the proposal would withdraw college recognition from any campus organization which engaged in political activity.

"While this is aimed at halting the politicizing of the campus by militant groups, it would only be effective against legitimate organizations like the Young Democrats and Young Republicans," the appeal to the council said.

"THOSE GROUPS that seek to work outside the system have no use for official recognition, and the proposal has no actionable solution to this problem," the appeal asserted. "Meanwhile, legitimate groups working within the system would be denied a voice and forced into either the silent majority or the militant camp."

Students contend the proposal is so broad in scope it would prohibit virtually any contact by students as a group with local or state government.

Student government could not lobby the Legislature in support of budgetary matters, and campus initiatives on college-related subjects would be illegal under the Swim proposal, the appeal asserted.

The students also criticized the provision to deny colleges the right to cancel classes for political purposes, saying, "apparently it is felt that an address to the students by the governor or mayor or councilmen would not be educational."

YOUTH WORK GETS PRIORITY

The head of the city's newly formed Youth Affairs Section sees his job not so much as working for the city, but as working with it, for youth.

He is Edward G. Schumm, veteran of more than 20 years in youth work in such capacities as physical training and coach with private schools, a guidance counselor with the Job Corps, a supervisor with a California Youth Authority school for boys, and a Boy Scout executive.

For the past two years, he has been a program management specialist for the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities.

EDWARD G. SCHUMM

HE WAS selected from a field of 28 for the new city position of Youth Programs Coordinator, an activity within the Community Development Department. The Youth Affairs Section ultimately will have a four-man staff, including a counselor and field worker.

"We will deal with every need, concern and problem of youth, and every city need, concern and problem as it relates to youth," he said.

Schumm said the Youth Affairs Section will work closely with all youth-serving organizations and agencies in Long Beach. He emphasized it will be concerned with youth of all economic levels.

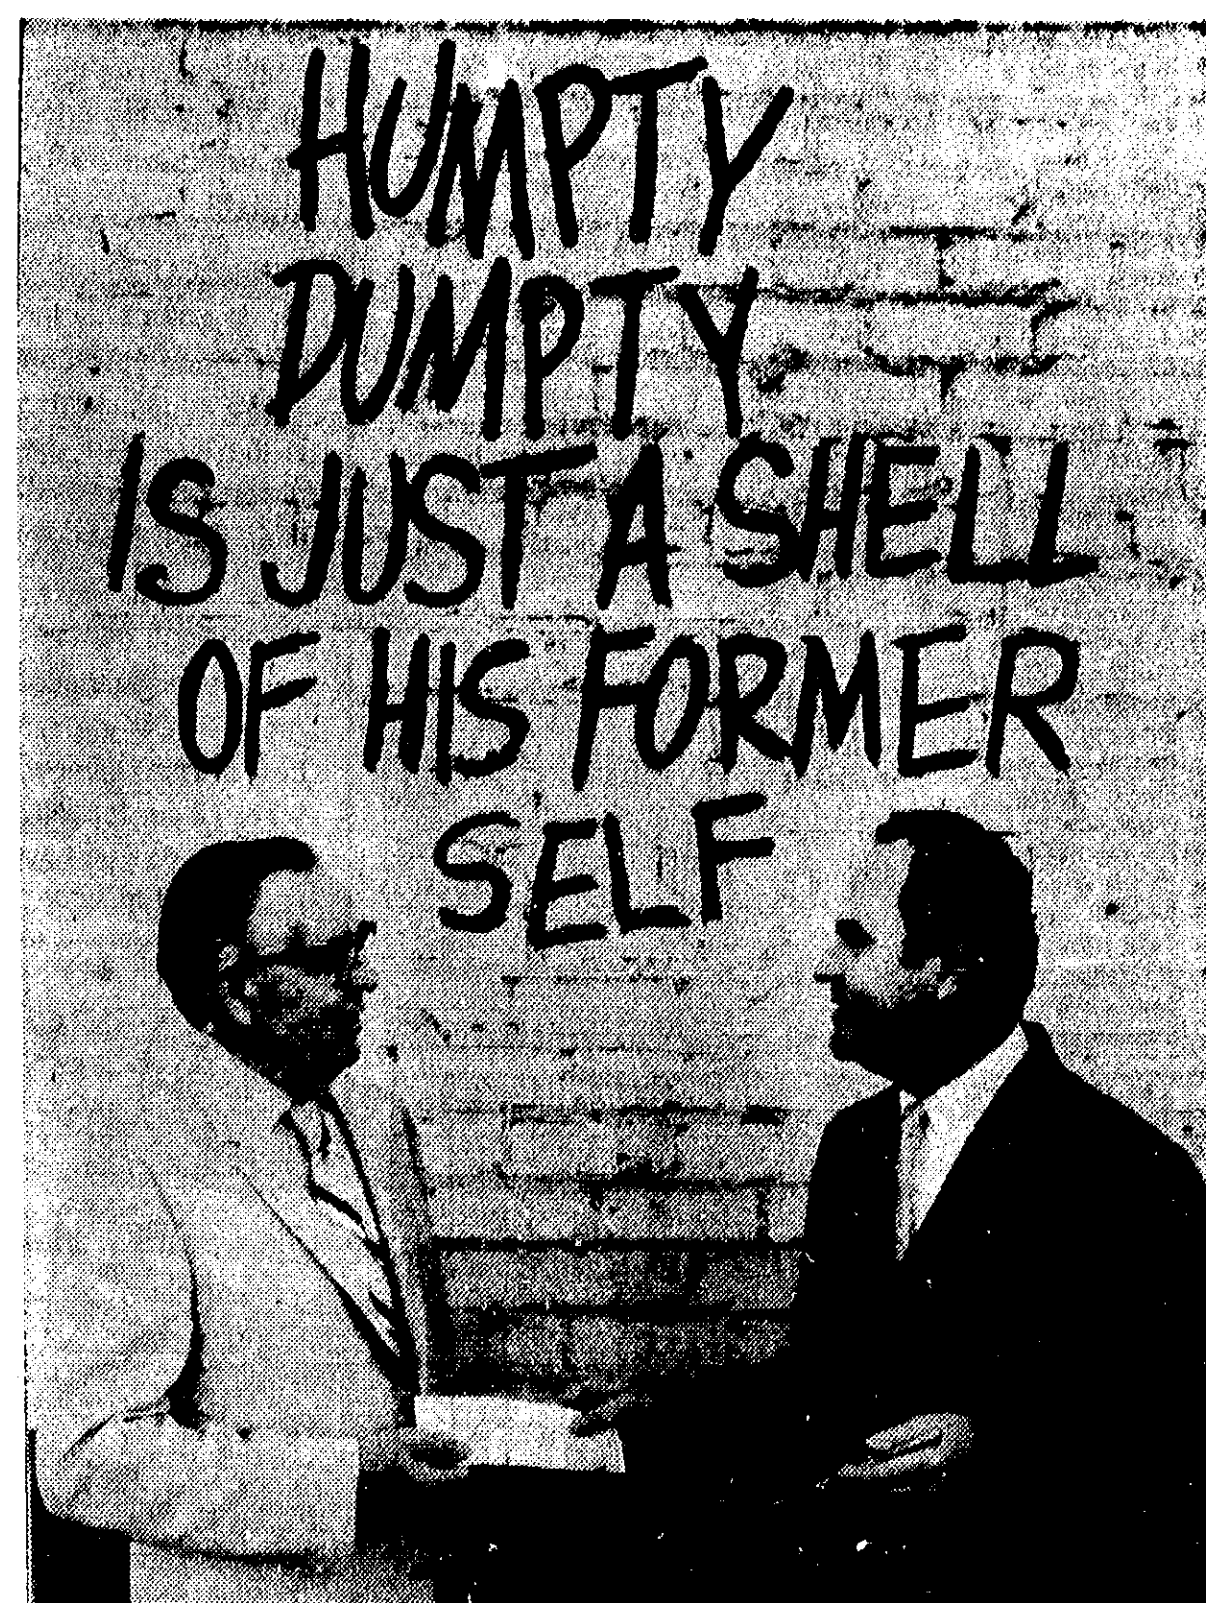

At present, he said, the section is organizing a youth programs planning team, composed of adults and young people, who will conduct a series of "brainstorming" sessions to exchange ideas on programs.

Schumm said the goal between now and the end of the calendar year is to develop a series of programs, so they can be put into effect in the new year.

SCHUMM WAS born in Fairmont, Minn., but obtained most of his education in Illinois. He received his bachelor's degree in sociology from the University of Illinois in 1934, and took a year's graduate work at UCLA in personnel management.

He has lived in the harbor area for the past 20 years, 12 of them in Long Beach.

HE'S THE GRAFFITI CHAMP!

Winner over 29 other finalists, Louis Moskowitz, of 6811 10th St., accepts $500 check from Independent Press-Telegram Circulation Director W. J. Morrissey for his prize entry in I.P.T.'s Great Graffiti Write-In. Moskowitz' entry—like those of other 29—were analyzed by Graffiti King Bill Leary, whose syndicated Graffiti column appears daily in these papers. As additional prize, Moskowitz' entry will appear in papers across U.S. which carry Leary's feature.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today! This coming year brings renewed optimism to you. You have a pressure toward personal change, mostly toward a more realistic view of the world. The results are most likely to be incomplete at year's end, in any case, although at least some of your worst habits, your naturally sensitive nature takes this semicentennial year a poignant experience. Today's natives are often critical but scrupulously honest, easily aroused to action.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Attend to your community's Sunday customs, then go off to unaccustomed places. This gives you a different view of your- ing yourself out of it to attend to personal chores.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much discussion today goes in circles. The essential factor is not what is said but the connection between the talkers. Take an experimental tack, break the circle.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your home life and hobbies take up most of your time today. Older people around you are not comfortable, so cater to their emotional needs a bit.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Skipping social activities may be sensible today. You have many interesting matters alive and working toward a pleasant day.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 23): Expect do- lant while people reveal familiar tales, trying peering talkative people off, leav-

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Charitable work, visiting people in strange places bring much benefit, although at some inconvenience. The results of today are bound to be a bit odd.

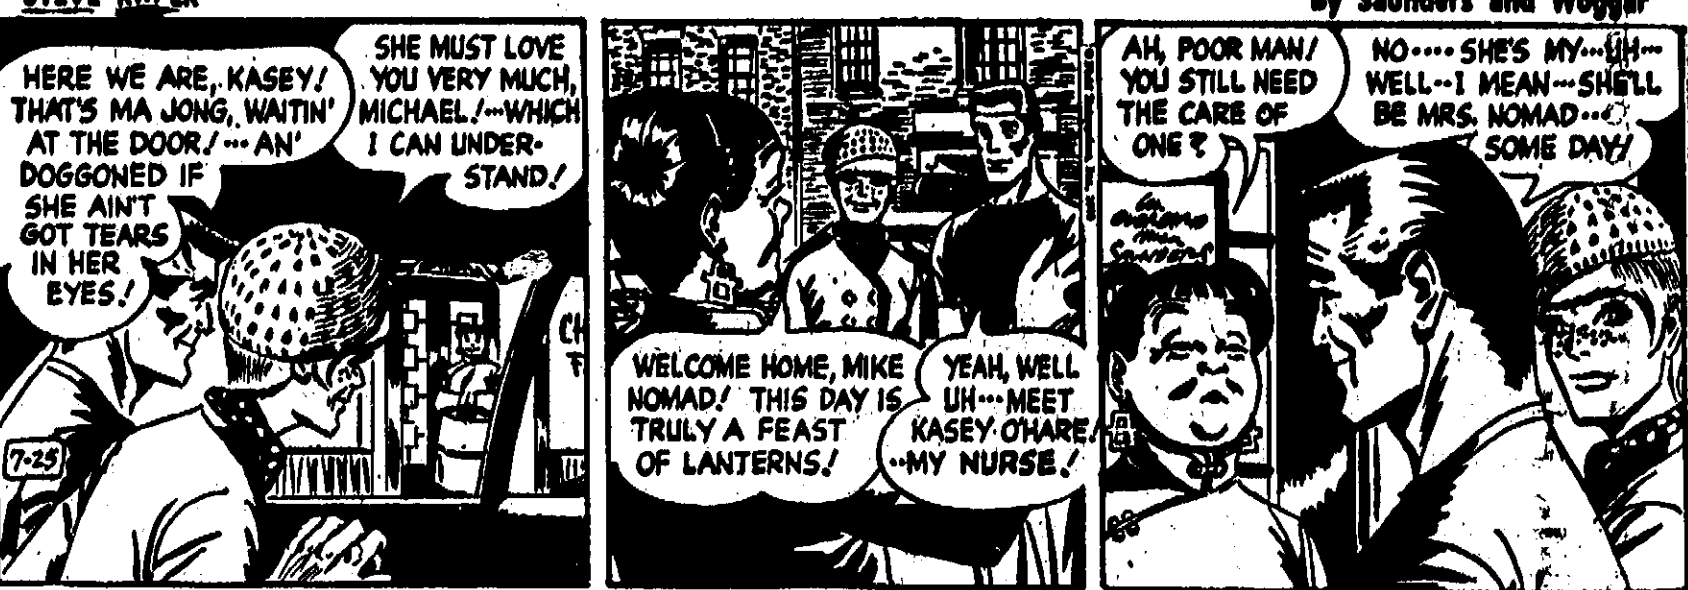

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Supersti- cially, this is a showcase Sunday for you. In a deeper sense it is a trying time since so many subtle things are going on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You thrive on what other people find disconcerting. See what you can do to reconcile the differences. At best, it's a tense day, which you may enjoy all the more.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your own version of Sunday is real, economi- cal. The problem may be that every- body else has more complex or unreal- istic plans. Compromise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Meet- ing strangers is propitious, stimulating. You thrive on what other people find disconcerting. See what you can do to reconcile the differences. At best, it's a tense day, which you may enjoy all the more.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Unusu- al work you can get to is unusually re- warding, particularly if weekday con- ditions have prevented it from being done.

Mrs. Higbee Rites Slated for Monday

Services will be Monday at 10 a.m. at Rose Hills Memorial Park, Whittier, for Gladys S. Higbee, who taught school in Long Beach for 32 years. Mrs. Higbee, of 255 Roycroft Ave., died Thursday. She was 70.

A native of Illinois, she taught in that state and Arizona before coming to Long Beach. She was at Whittier Elementary from 1923 to 1952, and was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma.

Surviving are a son, Guy R., and brother, Henry C. Sutherland, both of Long Beach. Mottell's Mortuary is in charge of funeral arrangements.

Baker Canyon Road Opposed

The Irvine Co. Friday told Dave West of Santa Ana that it will oppose his suggestion for a road through Baker Canyon, across the Santa Ana Mountains into Riverside County.

West, a land developer who became a private detective, made the proposal on his own. He neither asked nor got public or official support.

Gerald E. Brock, an engineer for the Irvine Co., said a road in this area "may very well be a detriment to the company."

Marina Palace

The hearing on the controversial Marina Palace formerly known as the Airport Club, was continued until 10 a.m. Monday, according to Lee Risner, Seal Beach city manager.

The reason for the delay was that the owners, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Robertson, were not notified until Wednesday. The law requires four days notice.

In the notification, the Robertsons were charged by Risner with eight violations of the "rules for public or club dances."

The Marina Palace, 11 Pacific Coast Highway, has been operating a dance hall for teenagers for the past five years under a license issued to Robertson's wife, Mary.

We Can Stop Smog; Here's How to Start

tually test car emissions at various mileages on a mass basis to determine the actual level of pollution.

Congress should pass legislation to require all air polluters to report their pollution and to require all air pollution control bodies that use any federal funds to report the sources of pollution within their jurisdiction and on the type and quantities of emissions from each source. Such legislation will be offered in the U.S. House of Representatives shortly by a group of California representatives headed by Don Edwards, D-San Jose.

AT PRESENT FEDERAL air pollution control inspectors do not have the right to enter private property to check on violations. They would be given that right.

Additional powers should be given to the National Air Pollution Control Administration so that it can step in when local or state governments fail to control pollution.

The federal standards on carbon monoxide, particulates, nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons should be strengthened and Detroit should be told to clean up the auto or face increasing economic penalties. Leaded gasoline should be phased out as Detroit changes its engines to no longer require such gasolines.

Finally, the federal government should help finance additional air pollution research and necessary rapid mass transit systems. Again, such funds could come out of gasoline taxes.

This program is incomplete. It is only a start, but it is a start. There could be a stronger program: Cease building new roads and use the funds for rapid and mass transit, tax cars further until they are no longer practical to drive, provide other means of transportation, and require polluting industries to either shut down or stop polluting.

The decision as to whether there will be air fit to breathe in the Los Angeles Basin should not rest in the hands of the polluters or of the politicians. It should, and does rest in the hands of the people, who make their wishes known by action or inaction.

Clean air has been the birthright of all mankind. It no longer is; instead the child born today must breathe poison. But for how long!

ANGRY CHARGES HURLED IN GRAPE STRIKE

Manning, 4 Other Bishops Denounce Catholic Paper

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—B-3
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., July 25, 1970

Unusually harsh words have been exchanged between five Roman Catholic bishops, including the Southland's Archbishop Timothy Manning, and the right wing Catholic newspaper "Twin Circle."

The paper, owned by the Schick Investment Co. and political conservative Patrick J. Frawley Jr., was founded in 1967 in this area to counter what it considered a "left wing" drift in the church. It has a national circulation of 100,000.

An editorial in the newspaper attacked the findings of the five-man U.S. Bishops' Ad Hoc Committee on the Farm Labor Dispute (the grape strike in California) as "arbitrary and high handed tactics."

The bishops in a statement this week fired back that the paper had perpetrated a "gross fraud on the Catholic community," had "fanned the flames of prejudice and mistrust and has done a grave disservice to the cause of truth and justice."

ARCHBISHOP Manning, who replaced the retired Francis Cardinal McIntyre, is considered a moderate, not at all a radical, on basic questions.

The unprecedented tone of the exchange reflects the deep divisions within the once apparently monolithic church. Twin Circle is also currently in a tussle with a noted priest-lawyer, now running a strong race for Congress.

Assailing the candidacy of Rev. Robert F. Drinan, of Boston, in Massachusetts' third congressional district, an article in the current issue calls him a "militant anti-anti-Communist" and says:

"If there's a radical, left-wing point of view to be expounded, Father Drinan will expound it."

Asked for comment, Father Drinan, dean of the Boston College Law

School, a Catholic institution, dismissed the attack as "sneaky tactics," misrepresenting his position, and said "it shouldn't be dignified with a reply."

He cited statements by several noted Catholic scholars praising his credentials and his willingness to run for office.

The paper's editor, Rev. Daniel Lyons, an advocate of using more force in the Vietnam war, said he opposed any priest seeking public office — in line with a general bishops' policy.

His attack on the bishops for their role in the grape strike came at a time when progress had seemed under way toward settlements.

The committee of five bishops earlier this year managed to bring some growers and union representatives together for the first time, resulting in several contractual agreements, the first break in the prolonged deadlock.

FATHER LYONS charged that the workers are not behind the organization efforts of union leader Caesar Chavez and have no vote on the matter, but that they and the employers are being coerced into it, with the aid of the bishops committee.

"That the name of the U.S. Bishops is being used in the campaign to organize the table grape industry is unprecedented," he wrote. "We have also found it bitterly resented."

He said the committee "intends to dedicate its efforts to organizing all the farm workers in America. There is no indication that the rest of the bishops had this in mind . . . As far as we can determine it is a power the committee simply usurped."

The committee, headed by Auxiliary Bishop Joseph F. Donnelly of Hartford, Conn., struck back, saying "it is incredible that a publication calling itself 'Catholic' should publish such a collection of untruths, innuendos, distortions and plain inaccuracies."

Its "crude attempts" to isolate the committee from "their brother bishops with the insulting accusation" that it has usurped power is "totally at variance" with the committee's work and "misinformed about its role of mediation and conciliation," the committee said.

DECLARING that Father Lyons' account "is but one of a series of editorials and articles in Twin Circle which have consistently impeded the peaceful resolution of the farm labor dispute," the committee said the latest instance "is particularly deplorable because it comes at a time when it could do irreparable harm to both the growers and the union, who have so long agonized with this unfortunate dispute."

It added that all its experience with both growers and workers, "in our frequent trips to the San Joaquin and Coachella Valleys, is totally at variance with the opinions of Father Lyons . . . Furthermore, never has he given the committee the courtesy of seeking its views or studying its findings. He has consistently used limited sources of information which are hostile to this ad hoc committee and which are totally misinformed about its role of mediation and conciliation."

The committee noted that it was currently meeting in Fresno, Calif., with the Western Employers Council, involving larger growers who produce more than 50 per cent of California table grapes — at its express invitation.

"THIS BUNGLING interference of Twin Circle has injected an added and unnecessary note of bitterness to the dispute," the committee said. It pointed out that only last April, its work received the unanimous endorsement of the U.S. bishops at their semi-annual meeting in San Francisco.

In addition to Archbishop Manning and Bishop Donnelly, the committee includes Bishop Hugh A. Donohue, bishop of Fresno; Bishop Walter W. Curtis, bishop of Bridgeport, Conn., and Bishop Humberto S. Medeiros, bishop of Brownsville, Texas.

INSTALLATION

Jay Bartow will be installed Sunday at the 11 a.m. services as assistant pastor of Lakewood First Presbyterian Church, 3955 Studebaker Road. After graduating from Fuller Seminary last month, he came to the church and works with youth from junior high through college age, describing them as "creative and hard working people who do the lion's share of planning, financing and carrying out projects." Installation sermon will be by Rev. Dr. Robert Boyd Munger, professor of evangelism and church strategy at Fuller. Rev. Arthur F. Suelz, pastor, will ask the ordination questions.

MAY I HAVE A MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?

Religion has to be applied. I read the other day about a soap manufacturer who was arguing with a minister concerning the value of religion.
"War in the world, and wickedness and vice," he said, "Anyone can see that religion has failed."
About that time a little boy came walking past. That he had been playing in the mud was eloquently evident. His face was spattered with mud, his hands were caked with mud, there was mud on his shirt, mud on his trousers.
The minister smiled. "I see that neither has soap done any good, there are still so many dirty people in the world. As witness . . ." and he pointed to the little boy.
"That isn't a fair assumption," the soap manufacturer replied. "Soap is of no value unless it is applied."
"Exactly," answered the minister, "and the same is true of religion. If, too, has to be applied."

Sincerely,
Frank M. Kepner, Pastor

BRETHREN PASTOR REPORTS ON TOUR

Russ Pilots, Isaiah in Cairo Mosque, Masada, Unusual African Mission

By LES RODNEY

The 30 people on the Long Beach First Brethren Church tour scheduled to fly from Moscow to Cairo (Russia and Egypt that is, not Idaho and Illinois) were bumped at the airport.

"Too many Russian pilots on the way to Egypt," explains Rev. David L. Hocking, church pastor and tour leader. "They took up the whole plane. And there were more of them on our plane, when we finally departed!"

"It was funny," he continued in a chat this week at the big, bustling church at 36th and Linden. "Here we were reading an article in an American magazine about whether the Russians were really putting pilots into Egypt, and all we could see was pilots on the way there."

When the tourists got to Cairo, they saw lots more Russians. "We saw one entire suburban district taken over completely by about 10,000 Russians."

THEY ALSO saw Russian SAM missiles all over the place when they left Cairo for Luxor and the Valley of the Kings.

The group went on to Israel — you can go to Israel from the Arab countries, but the Arab countries won't let you in after you've seen Israel. When the tour was over, Rev. Hocking went on to Africa to look in at the flourishing missionary program established way back in 1918 by the Brethren fellowship.

But, one country at a time. Here are the highlights of the pastor's impressions:

Local Hostess

for Mission Meet

Mrs. W. P. (Edith) McBride, wife of the pastor of Long Beach Eastside Christian Church, will be conference hostess as an expected 800 delegates meet for the 57th annual World Christian Mission Conference in Pacific Grove, Calif., Friday through Aug. 4th.

The historic meet, backed by councils of churches, will hear national leaders from several denominations setting the seminar themes.

RUSSIA: Dramatic memory is the Sunday night visit to the Protestant church in Moscow. There were three services, each of two hours length, and each somehow packed 2,000 people into a church with seats for 200. Worshipers stood for two hours.

"Some of the people sitting on the old wooden benches got up, and offered us their seats," relates Hocking. "We said, no, no, thanks, you sit."

The choir was "fantastic," with male voices of great depth.

Contrary to what one generally hears, and what the Russian woman guide had told them disparagingly, there were not only elderly people in the church, but folks of all age groups.

The Americans left individual gifts of Russian language Bibles, which were gratefully received, since they are in short supply.

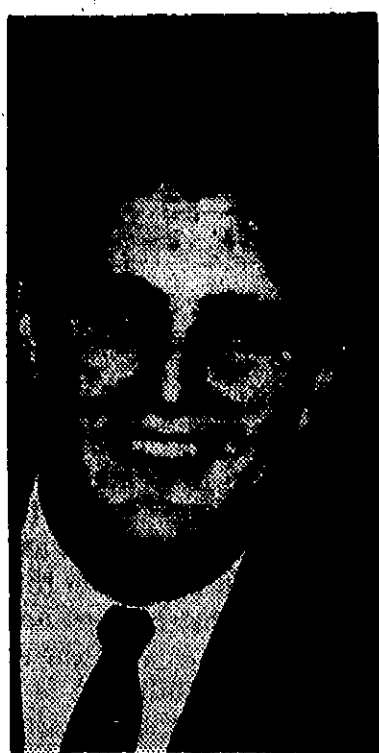

The local party was very much interested in the huge science and industry display, which Rev. Hocking terms "outstanding" as a tourist sight.

"We also saw the palaces and churches of the czar, which exploited the people, and looking at them, got some idea of how the Communists were able to take over. But Russia is far from a worker's paradise. They lack many things, and there is very little happiness on the faces of the people."

When the Americans broke into song on their Moscow tour bus, the lady guide sighed. "I don't understand you people, so happy." The good spirit of the Americans enveloped her after a while, Hocking says. "We had one of our Russian Bibles left, and gave it to her as a farewell gift."

EGYPT — Aside from the startling Russian presence, the pastor says, a dominant impression was of the poverty — "much worse than anywhere else we saw, including Rome and other European cities. Egypt is a socialist country, yet the contrast between rich and poor is the big thing you see."

Rev. Hocking did have the unusual opportunity to preach to his party in the Alabaster Mosque in Cairo. When granted permission to take the lectern, he was asked by a Moslem there which Testament he would use. "I suppose you prefer the Old," Hocking replied. They did. He preached from Isaiah 53.

ISRAEL — "We traveled from Dan to Beersheba and enjoyed it all. It is a fascinating country. Their soldiers impressed us as confident, alert and motivated, quite in contrast to the Egyptian soldiers we observed. A highlight in Israel for us was climbing Masada, and being rewarded by the sight of Herod's fortress, the 12-inch thick walls, the 38 towers, terraces and pool."

AFRICA — Rev. Hocking, his mother, and one couple from the church went on to the Central African Republic, formerly French Equatorial Africa. There his brother Don, with wife and four children, has lived for 15 years as part of a remarkable missionary effort.

The conservative National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, to which First Church is affiliated, split off from the Church of the Brethren in the 1880s. With less than 50,000 members nationally — though disproportionately strong in this area — the theologically fundamental fellowship now counts about three times that membership in the African country and has played a central role in education and medical help.

"The results of the few who have labored there," commented the Long Beach minister quietly.

A 24-year-old member of the Long Beach church, Alan Bennett, went over as a missionary in 1918 and died there before his work was completed. "His memory is revered there, where he is buried," said Rev. Hocking, "and his work was an inspiration to this church."

"The great thing about the church there is that it may be Africa's best example of indigenous development. The Africans do everything. Our missionaries now basically teach and train them to take charge. There are 450 African pastors who have been trained. I found the African pastors very intelligent, and well versed in the Bible."

A few of the old line missionaries had worried about the course taken by the Evangelical Church of the Brethren, as it is called there. "They said, if you gave the church to the Africans, it would be a disaster," Hocking said with a smile.

An African now heads the Advanced School of Theology. The Brethren also maintain a Christian high school and a Bible institute. French and the tribal language, Sango, are used.

Medical and sanitation help and training has accompanied the gospel. "They have many trained nurses. If we left now, they could carry on themselves to a great extent."

REV. HOCKING preached to one congregation of 2,500, through a translator. He found it a tremendous experience.

"They do many things in their own style," he said. "For example, they would never dream of passing plates for the offering. They have a big box with a slit in it right up front, the pastor on one side, his wife on the other, and everyone comes up one at a time, where all can see them."

"I never saw as warm and friendly a people as these Africans," he enthused. "And I speak not only of the Christians. Just traveling around in the villages, along the roads, people would come out and greet us, and offer us food."

The role of the white missionaries in subordinating themselves to the development of the Africans' own leadership has tended to exempt the Americans from black nationalist suspicions — and to help overcome deep seated feelings held by most Africans and Asians that Christianity is a "Western" religion.

But Hocking tells of one African churchman challenging him. "He told me I probably had only white people in my American church. I said we had a few black families, and turned around and asked him why his church was all black, when there were thousands of white folks living in the city there. They need Christ too, I said. It was a kind of reverse twist to him."

One could tell the minister was taken by the work he saw in Africa, and the possibilities of expanding it to many more people. Asked if he'd like to spend a year or so over there, he replied, with a little smile, "Maybe a lifetime."

Africa, he says, "is emerging. You know those people are moving."

For the second Sunday night, Rev. Hocking, who is several inches taller than Billy Graham and according to some of his congregation as good a preacher, will show pictures at the church starting 7 p.m. of what he calls "The African Miracle."

LEAD REVIVAL WITH MUSIC

Mike and Linda Murdock, of Lake Charles, La., one of the South's best known evangelistic teams, continue their well received revival meetings every night, 7:30, except Saturday at Calvary Light Assembly, 2094 Cherry Ave. Rev. Murdock was formerly pianist with the Junior Blackwood Quartet.

FROM THE PULPIT

How close is this old world to the judgment of God? We are told that we have population explosion problems that threaten our doom; we have air pollution and water pollution problems that threaten us; we have insecticide problems that poison our food; everything seems to produce cancer. And everyone is talking about our nearing the end of the road.

But the most frightening thing of all is what this generation is producing in the realm of Christianity. We are only one generation away from paganism. Fathers and mothers who are spending Sundays at the beach, in the desert and in the mountains, who show church and its teachings, are raising boys and girls to be atheists, many times without being aware of what they are doing, or without planning to do that.

I plead with the parents of today to return to the Lord, to find a good church and engage the family in the proper relationship with God through Christ on the time is gone; the summer is ended and the family is not saved.

Can People Stay Happily Married?

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

On a sun-kissed June day 40 years ago in Syracuse, New York, my wife and I were married. Watching her come down the church aisle that exciting day I thought she was the sweetest thing in the world. Now four decades later I still think so. Maybe it's corny to say, but actually we love each other more than on that day in June 1930.

Such romantic thoughts came to mind when I read a newspaper article in the Washington airport recently. Part of it said: "I don't know a single happily married couple. Faith in the traditional Western European marriage has been dying a long death. The idea of matching up with somebody in the early 20s and sticking together happily for 40 or 50 years seems unattainable." The writer of that article may be a big wheel on the Washington cocktail circuit, but like some others in such an artificial climate, one wonders as to the extent of his knowledge of the folks back home, those folks who represent the great silent majority on marriage as well as politics.

LET'S FACE IT. There are too many divorces and we must recognize its seriousness as a social problem. But to say, "I've never seen a happy marriage" is a totally irresponsible statement. It is more to the point to ask what makes a marriage happy or unhappy. Marriages can be successful despite the continual advertising given the unsuccessful ones. If some couples break up, so do many more stay together. These couples know and practice the formula for success in marriage.

The first element is love, not the sex-oriented love of Hollywood and stage and contemporary fiction, but love in depth, spiritually conditioned and mature. When love exists in depth other elements in the formula for success in marriage become apparent and applicable.

One of these is maturity. Marriage is not for the infantile. I performed the marriage ceremony for a 20-year-old couple, a superb-beautiful girl and a steady, nice-looking, serious-minded young man. A year later Charlotte was in my office weeping copiously.

"Oh, Dr. Peale, Joe just doesn't make me happy. He is wonderful person in every way, but I expected he would go all out to make me happy. Instead, he spends every evening studying. He explains that he must do that to get ahead in his job. But he just studies all the time when he should be making me happy."

I thought this called for a lay-it-on-the-line approach. "Now look young lady, do you think that Creator went to all the trouble of bringing Joe into this world just for the purpose of making you happy? Can it not be that there is some outstanding purpose for his life which he feels deeply and is trying to work out?"

"What are you anyway, a pretty doll, a fluffy kitten — or are you a woman, a real honest-to-goodness woman? Be a partner to Joe, a working partner. Study with him. Be a helpmate. Encourage him, talk over the job with him, and the two of you will succeed together. Be a team."

Well she got the point. Actually she was made of better stuff than she was showing. She had simply read too much sexy fiction. She surprised Joe by asking him intelligent questions about his job. They did study together, and now 10 years later they are an extremely happy couple.

Incidentally, I got hold of Joe privately and extracted a promise that he would knock off the studying at least one night a week and take Charlotte out for a happy time. So the infantism that could have broken up a potentially successful marriage was nipped in the bud and two mature young people made a go of it.

A third important element in the formula for a successful marriage is appreciation. William James called "the desire to be appreciated" one of the strongest drives of human nature. The giving of appreciation is such a simple thing, so easy to do. And moreover, it gives plea-

Various Stages of Grief...and How to Help

By LOUIS CASSELS UPI Religion Writer

Sooner or later, you'll come to grief.

That's not a Cassandra prophecy. It's a simple statement of the human condition. Life eventually brings to each of us some kind of shattering loss — the death of a loved one, the defection of a friend, the estrangement of a child, the collapse of a career — to which we respond in grief.

It therefore behooves all of us to learn something about the anatomy of grief, so that when it comes we will be able to understand our own reactions and cope with them in a healthy way.

Rev. Granger E. Westberg, a sensitive and empathetic man who teaches pastoral counseling at the Hama School of Theology in Springfield, Ohio, has identified several different stages through which a grief-stricken person must work his way.

First, Westberg says, comes a "state of shock" in which the victim "just can't believe it's true." This is a protective reaction of great value, because it gives a person time to muster his inner resources to face "the full significance of his loss."

This may be followed by a period of acute depression and loneliness, in which he feels that "no one else has ever gone through what he is experiencing." Comforting words from others fall on deaf ears at this stage. He just wishes everyone would leave him alone.

Physical illness is a common accompaniment of these early stages of grief reaction. The sufferer won't eat, can't sleep, has headaches, and feels as though his stomach were tied in knots.

Next comes the phase of feeling guilty. "He feels he is somehow responsible for the loss, so he wrestles with his conscience about what he did that was right and what was wrong."

Sympathetic counselors should not be too hasty about trying to banish these guilt feelings. For there may be "real guilt" as well as imagined guilt, and the former needs to be faced and repented, not repressed.

After guilt comes anger and resentment. He feels that his misfortune is unfair, and demands to know, "why did this happen to me?" There is a strong disposition in this stage to idealize the past and day dream about the "good old days" before the loss occurred.

Eventually, the victim of loss begins to struggle with new patterns of living. He discovers that "the clouds that seemed stationary actually are moving." With the passage of time, "there is a growing confidence that life can be good again even though it has changed so much."

The final phase of recovery comes when the victim of a great loss is able to see that in some ways his grief experiences have been good, because he has emerged from them "a stronger person, a deeper person, a person better able to help others go through their valleys."

Talking to a group of physicians at a recent meeting of the American Medical Association, Westberg said that a doctor, minister or friend who seeks to help a grieving person should bear three cardinal points in mind:

1. The grief-stricken person desperately needs to talk to someone he respects, and to know that the one he's talking to really is listening and really cares about his troubles.

2. He must be induced to face his situation and work through his problem realistically, not flee into some kind of escapism.

3. He should be told, not that he shouldn't grieve, but that "grief is normal, it is healthy, it has healing qualities, it can actually be 'good grief.'" sians 4, and He wills that they make this unity evident, as seen in His prayer in John 17. The world is unimpressed by Christians' claims to love, seeing the fractures within the church and the churchmen's allegiance to lesser loyalties... competing with each other."

The local COCU council will meet Monday at Holydale Christian, and welcomes comment and suggestions addressed to any of the three churches.

sure equally to the giver as well as to the recipient. Appreciation weaves the strand that holds marriage together.

NEXT A successful marriage formal must, of course, include a strong sense of unity based on close association on every level of life: physical, emotional, intellectual and spiritual. Or, put more explicitly, the couple that works together, plays together, weeps and laughs together and prays together, will indeed stick together. But even more, their relationship will grow deeper and more meaningful with every passing year.

Lastly, and underscore it, a spiritual attitude, religion in a home, is the real foundation that takes up the shocks, the stresses and strains, around which the storms of life beat in vain. It is indeed true that the couple that prays together stays together. And that staying together across the years makes life blessed indeed!

Ashkenazy, Previn Excel at the Hollywood Bowl

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Very well, I should say.
Very well, indeed.

AUDIENCEs are large, the new "sound-reinforcement" system, though variable from evening to evening, incontrovertibly successful and the musical offerings entertaining.

Andre Previn's second appearance of the season, Thursday, lived up to this profile. And, in the mostly immaculate way the Los Angeles Philharmonic played Previn's all-Russian program — Glinka's Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla," the ubiquitous C minor Piano Concerto of Rachmaninoff, and Tchaikovsky's Second Symphony — the evening surpassed some of its recent predecessors.

Previn gets a lot of credit (forget, temporarily, what I wrote two days ago; this conductor has his moments) here. His tempos were clear and propelled, his no doubt brief rehearsal period productive, and the ambience he creates for the Philharmonic helpful.

Everyone on the stage — particularly French hornist Henry Sigismont in the Symphony and clarinetist Michele Zukovsky in the slow movement of the Rachmaninoff — played up to his higher prevailing standard. I would not go so far as to say the Tchaikovsky could have been recorded on the spot — Previn needs to learn to terrace the Finale's climaxes more cohesively before that event. But this was a cherishable revival nonetheless. And the Philharmonic does play a rousing and brilliant "Russian" Overture, given the right impetus.

STILL, the credit must be shared, for, at the program's center, Vladimir Ashkenazy, the Russian expatriate who, though he just (July 6) turned 33, stands at the head of his pianistic generation, played a reconsidered, thoughtful, and restrained performance of the Second Concerto.

By any standard, this was an unorthodox reading. The outer movements moved with greater deliberation than they usually do, leaving room not only for deeper articulation of their lyric contents, but also for more expansive climaxes.

And the kind of pensive understatement some few other pianists are able to bring to the Adagio in recorded performances, Ashkenazy was courageous to attempt in the formerly unpredictable outdoors. Because of the superior quality of the Bowl's new sound staff, the attempt was successful. And since the amplification of pianos has traditionally been one of our more frequent disappointments in these hills, the pleasures this season has brought us in this regard are heartening.

What is not heartening — and I promise not to mention the subject again this season — is the continuing parade (one or two per movement on Thursday) of noisy aircraft over the Bowl during concerts. But, after six summers of steady complaining, my protestations will now take a brief holiday.

Soviets Sweep Yanks

Mann, Brown U.S. Gold Medalists

LENINGRAD, Soviet Union — The Soviet track and field team defeated a younger and less experienced United States squad Friday night 200-173 after two days of competition.

The Soviet men's team won 122-114 and the Russian women beat the American girls 78-59.

Only once before have the Russian men beaten the Yanks.

Outstanding performances by distance ace Frank Shorter, the U.S. 1,600-meter relay team and Ralph Mann of Long Beach, Calif., in the 400-meter hurdles boosted the U.S. score, but the depth of the Soviet team was too much for the Americans.

American victories in the men's competition on the final day were scored by Mann, whose time in the 400-meter hurdles was 49.9; Willie Turner of Oregon State, who won the 200 meters in 20.8 seconds; James Moore of Oregon, who beat Russia's Igor Ter-O-Vanesyan with a long jump of 26 feet, 1 1/2 inches; Bill Skinner of the University of Tennessee in the javelin with a heave of 272-8 1/2; and Reynaldo Brown of Compton, who soared 7 feet 1/4 inch in the high jump, and the superb quarter-mile relay team.

Head coach Leroy Walker of North Carolina Central conceded after the competition that the Americans had been "over-matched in experience and maturity."

But he said the action in Leningrad "has already given us great dividends," preparing many of the athletes for the Pan-American games next summer.

"I think you're going to see a lot of these people at the Munich Olympics, too," Walker said, looking ahead to the 1972 games.

The average age of the U.S. men's team is 22, and the women's team 19.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH NFL OWNERS RESUME TODAY

Players Reverse Field, Okay All-Star Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League Players Assn. relented and announced Friday night it would permit the Kansas City Chiefs to start drills for next Friday's College All-Star game in Chicago.

The reversal of field by the players on the All-Star game came as their representatives met with an owners committee and Federal mediators in an effort to settle their contract impasse.

"At no time has the NFLPA intended to jeopardize the scheduled football game between the Chiefs and the All-Stars," the association said in a statement issued by John Mackey, association president. The statement was signed also by the association executive committee and Jim Tyrer, player representative of the Chiefs.

Mackey refused comment on the All-Star move when pressed for the reason the association appeared to have given up one of its chief bargaining weapons.

"I am here in Philadelphia to resolve the contract dispute so everyone can play football," he said. "The All-Star game has never been a part of these negotiations."

Is he optimistic after the seven hours of meetings with the mediators?

"They haven't gone far enough for me to comment," he said.

Is he pessimistic? "I can't make a decision either way yet," he replied. "It isn't that I don't want to talk, but I don't want to say anything that will hurt us. We have agreed that all statements will come from the mediators."

The mediators: "We have recessed until 10 a.m. Saturday. The players will meet with us at 10 a.m. and the owners at 11 a.m." They put up the best defense in the NFL this year.

Tyrer said the Chiefs will disband after the game if an agreement with the owners has not been reached by next week.

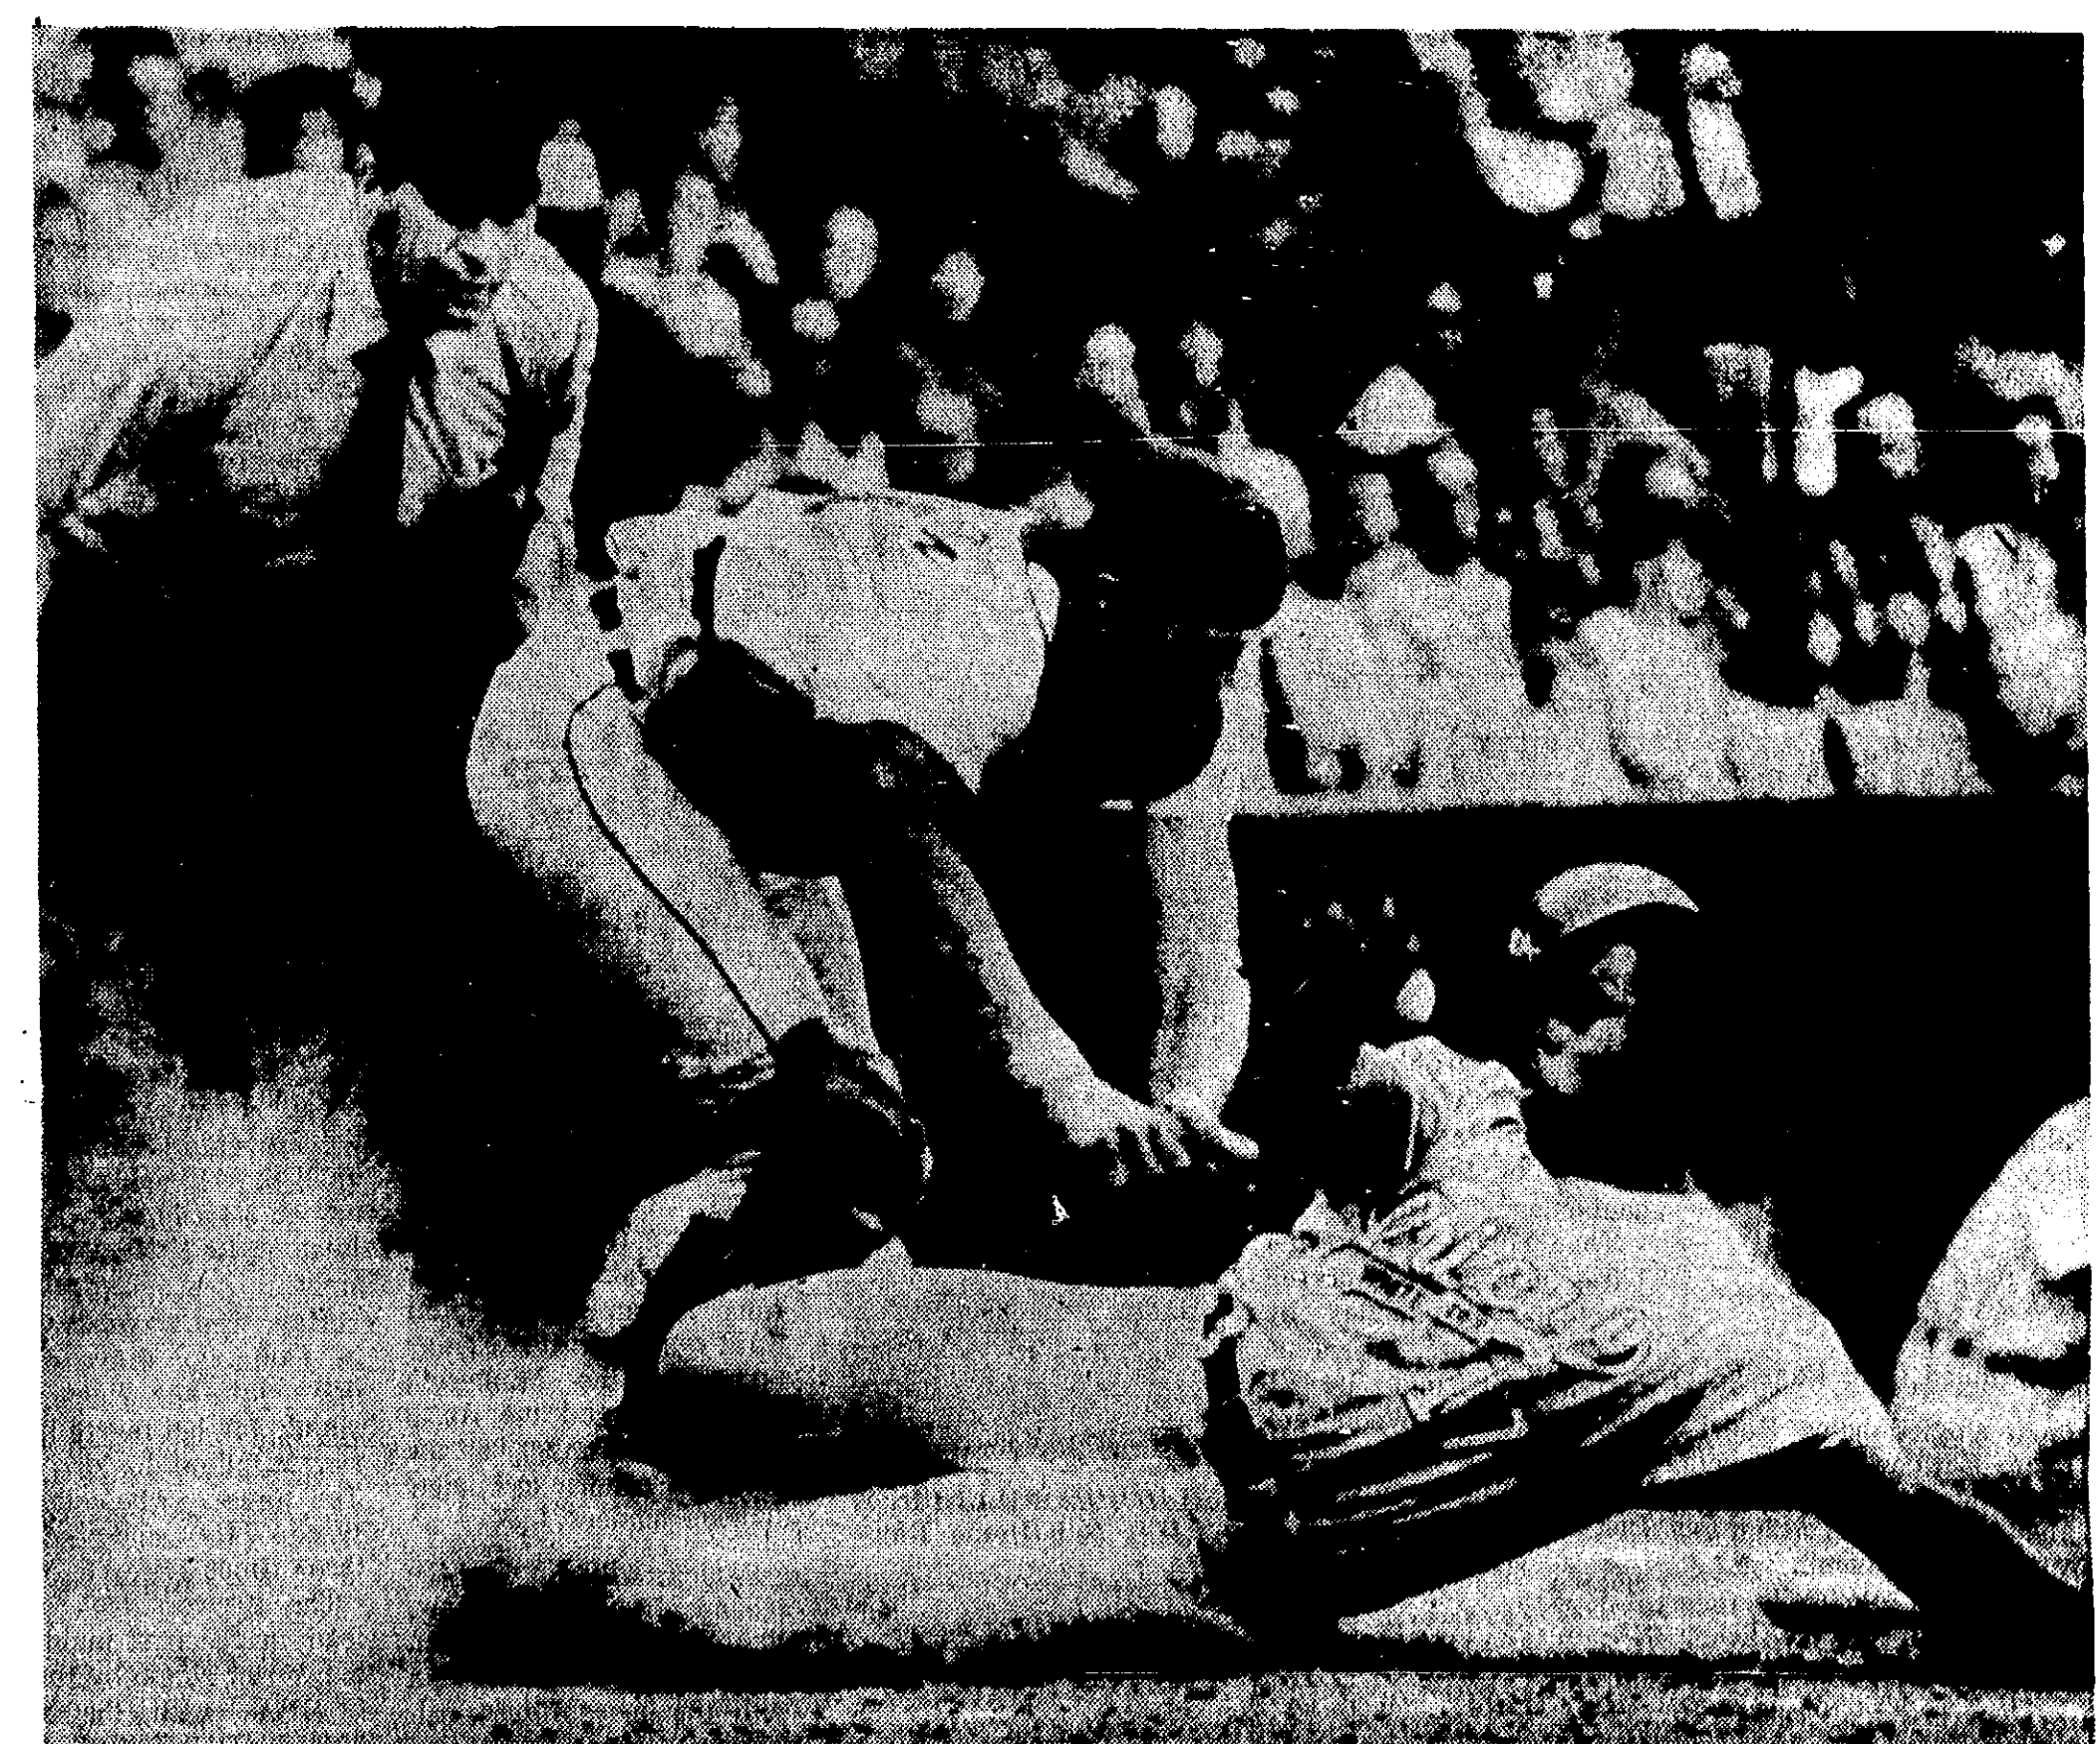

Tyrer also said, "It is certainly not a question of money with the Chiefs since our own Players Assn. offered to reimburse us our game check should we not get to play in the All-Star game."

After the All-Star game, there is no exhibition game scheduled until Aug. 7 when the Rams play Cleveland.

Neither side believes there is any danger of regular season games being cancelled.

Agee Steals Home in 10th

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

NEW YORK — As Tommy Agee broke for the plate in the 10th inning Friday night, only two people among the 53,657 fans who jammed Shea Stadium said they weren't surprised at the daring theft of home.

"When Tommy's on base, I expect anything," said Cleon Jones, who was the batter at the time.

"Surprised? I'm never surprised when Tommy runs," said the New York

DODGER OF DAY
JEFF TORBORG doubled, singled and walked as Dodgers fell to Mets, 2-1.

Mets' manager, Gil Hodges. "He's as daring as they come."

It was a dramatic climax to a dramatic struggle and Agee's chilling steal of home enabled New York to earn a 2-1 victory over the Dodgers.

"It was a game full of great plays," Hodges said, adding: "It was a great win for us."

The loss was a bitter one for the Dodgers. Not only did the Mets literally steal the game, the defeat dropped the Dodgers 1 1/2 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West.

Until the 10th it was a game of stirring pitching between the Dodgers' Bill Singer, who followed his no-hitter with a five-hitter over nine innings, and New York's Jerry Koosman, who scattered a half-dozen hits.

Jim Brewer started the 10th for the Dodgers and immediately gave up a lead-off single to pitcher Tug McGraw, who wound up with the win.

Agee then bunted, but Wes Parker's throw went to second, in time to nail McGraw, but Bill Grabar-kewitz dropped the ball for an error.

Again the Mets tried to bunt with Bud Harrelson, and after one strike Hodges inserted Al Wels into the game to run for McGraw at second. But before Brewer threw another pitch to Harrelson he whirled and picked the embarrassed Wels cleanly off second.

Brewer then whiffed Harrelson and appeared to be out of trouble. But Agee stole second. Brewer then walked Ken Singleton and a wild pitch enabled Agee to reach third. Brewer, pitching carefully to pinch hitter Donn Clendenon, walked him and the bases were loaded for Jones.

Brewer threw one pitch to Jones, and on the second one Agee darted for the plate.

"My job was to block out the catcher (Tom Haller)," explained Jones. "Yeah, I saw Tommie comin' out of the corner of my eye."

Agee slid across the plate, taking out Jones,

STRAND 15 IN 9-8 LOSS

Epstein Homer Topples Angels

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

The game had everything but class — and a happy ending.

It began as a laughter for Lefty Phillips and Andy Messersmith and ended up a tear-jerker.

The last hurrah belonged to Mike Epstein and Ted Williams. Epstein crashed a 10th-inning home run to carry Washington to a 9-8 victory Friday night at the Big A in a game that Abner Doubleday would never admit to having invented.

The Angels staked Messersmith to a 6-0 lead and before the bizarre game came to a close three hours and 21 minutes after the inaugural pitch, they had amassed 18 hits to tie their seasonal high.

But they also left 15 men stranded to equal a club record and they also permitted the Senators to score eight runs in a raucous sixth inning and they sank six games behind in the West.

There were wild pitches, passed balls, five errors, a catcher's interference call, base hits of every dimension and a cast of 37 players.

ers in the charade which would not last a week on Broadway.

It might have gotten a few guffaws at Disneyland.

The improbable evening began with a five-run Angel first inning against George Brunet, their former teammate and the same man who unfolded a six-hit, 4-0 victory against them a mere six days ago in Washington.

Brunet retired 27 men on that occasion. Friday night he retired no one. Sandy Alomar singled and so did Jim Spencer. Jim Fregosi doubled and so did Alex Johnson and it was 3-0 and Brunet was gone.

Joe Coleman appeared as a replacement and Ken McMullen welcomed him with a run-scoring single. Jarvis Tatum was awarded first base when catcher's interference was called on Paul Casanova. Mac took third on Jay Johnstone's fly and scored when Coleman delivered a wild pitch.

Johnstone's seventh homer and second in two games made it 6-0 in the third and Messersmith nursed the advantage with diligence for five innings, not allowing a hit and sending ripples of expectancy coursing through the crowd of 15,486.

The only expectancy in the Senator sixth inning was when, if ever, it was going to end. With one out, Lee Maye broke the Messersmith spell with an honestly-stroked single to right and it figured Maye would be the man. In seven swings against Andy prior to Friday, the Senator outfielder had slapped five hits, including two homers and a double, and had driven in six runs.

Messersmith deteriorated rapidly from that point.

Having lost his no-hit bid to Maye, Messersmith lost his shutout in quick order when Frank Howard planted a pitch deep into the Angel bullpen for his 26th homer of the season.

Chagrined, Andy hit Aurelio Rodriguez with a pitch and Rodriguez stole second as Epstein struck out. But Casa-

Bucs Celebrate Clemente Night, Crush Astros, 11-0

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Dock Ellis fired a four-hitter and the Pittsburgh Pirates celebrated Roberto Clemente Night with a six-run first inning outburst to sink the Houston Astros, 11-0, Friday night before 43,290 fans.

Ellis struck out six and didn't allow a runner past second base in picking up his 10th victory against seven losses.

Clemente, honored before the game by officials from Puerto Rico and Pittsburgh where he had played since 1955, made two spectacular catches and had two hits, including a single in the first inning outburst. He suffered a cut in the left knee when he slid on the gravel making a catch in the seventh inning and was taken out of the game.

Matty Alou opened with a single off losing pitcher Tom Griffin. Rich Hebner walked and Clemente singled, filling the bases.

Al Oliver singled, scoring two runs and after Willie Stargell fanned, Manny Sanguillen hit a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Clemente. Dave Cash singled and Fred Patek doubled to right for two more runs, bringing in reliever George Culver, who gave up a double to Ellis for the sixth run.

Cash's run-scoring double, following a single by Sanguillen, and a wild pitch by reliever Jim Bouton, allowing Patek to score, increased the Pirate lead to a 8-0 in the third.

The Pirates added a single run in the fifth inning and two in the eighth on a run-scoring single by Alou and Stargell's 18th home run.

Norwalk Captures Tourney

Rick Costa pitched a four-hit shutout Friday and the Norwalk Colts won the district championship with a 5-0 win over Lakewood at Blair Field.

Norwalk's first run, which proved to be all Costa needed, came in the third when third baseman Mike Gonzales singled, was sacrificed to second, went to third on second baseman Gary Parcell's infield single, and scored after Dan Harriage fled to left.

Costa pitched two games in the tournament, beating Lakewood twice and giving up one earned run in 14 innings.

Sectional tournament play begins today at Blair Field with five teams participating. In the 6 p.m. opener Lakewood meets Lynwood, which was defeated in the district meet held at Rossmore, while host Long Beach plays Downey at 8 p.m. following opening ceremonies.

Long Beach (15) vs. Lynwood (6) and Downey (6) and Harriage, Costa and Johnson.

Two Future 49ers, Westphal Among Cage Camp Final 15

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (Special) — Two forwards who will enroll at Cal State Long Beach — Chuck Terry and Eric McWilliams — and USC guard Paul Westphal are among the 15 players remaining in the Olympic basketball development camp here.

The 15 — three centers, five guards and seven forwards — were selected from an original group of 42 and will be further trimmed to 12 Sunday — the squad number for a 12-game tour of Europe in August.

Terry, from Jordan High and Long Beach City College, and McWilliams, from Pasadena City College, were listed at forward along with 6-foot-11 Tom McMillen, who will be a freshman at North Carolina State this fall; 6-6 Dennis Wuyck of North Carolina; 6-7 Joby Wright of Indiana, and 6-5 Julius Erving of Massachusetts.

Joining the 6-4 Westphal at guard are 6-3 Lewis Nelson, a former Compton High star who will be a sophomore at Washington; 6-2 Art Wilmore of the Army, presently attached at Fort MacArthur in San Pedro; 6-1 Jim Brown of Dartmouth, and 6-3 John Tolmie, a 1969 Annapolis graduate.

The center candidates are 6-10 Cyril Baptiste of Creighton University; 6-10 Steve Mitchell of Kansas State, and 6-10 prep Steve Erickson, who will attend Oregon State.

Borrowed Legion Playoffs Shoes Help Begin at Blair

CINCINNATI — Second-seeded Cliff Richey, aided by a borrowed pair of shoes and socks, edged ninth-seeded Bob Hewitt 6-4, 12-10 in a marathon match Friday in quarterfinals of the Western Tennis Championships.

Richey, the defending Western champion from San Angelo, Tex., borrowed the shoes and socks from Turner Howard of Knoxville, Tenn., who pulled off two upsets before Hewitt of South Africa whipped him. Richey was sweating heavily and was not able to find any shoes and socks until Howard volunteered his and Howard watched the rest of the match barefooted.

Eight Southern California American Legion baseball teams will crowd the confines of Blair Field this weekend as the area playoffs, which lead to the state playoffs next month, get under way.

Unlike previous years, two teams from each of the four Southland leagues will be competing. Representing the Long Beach-area Harbor League are 27 Rockets, made up of Wilson High personnel, and San Pedro. Each concluded its season with a 15-3 record.

San Pedro, facing West Torrance of the Bay

League at 2 p.m. today, will see first action while the Rockets play in a 2 p.m. Sunday game against North Torrance, the other Bay League representative.

Opening today's schedule at 11:30 a.m. is El Segundo of the Pacific League against the Whittier Golds from the Rio Hondo circuit. Sunday's 11:30 a.m. match puts La Mirada, the Rio Hondo champion, opposite Pacific League's Gardena.

Tickets for the tournament which runs through August 2 are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Cook Surges Into SoCal Amateur Lead With 67

Steve Cook of Long Beach shot 67 Friday to surge into a one-stroke lead with a two-under-par 140 at the halfway point in the Southern California Amateur golf championship at Los Angeles Country Club.

The former Long Beach City champion who finished fourth in the L.A. City championship last week overtook first-day leaders Gary Sanders of Los Coyotes (141) and Kip Putterbaugh of La Jolla (147).

Long Beach's father-son entry of John and Kemp Richardson withdrew, as did Jim Ferrie. Former Wilson High stars Gary Rhorer (151) and Steve Rhorer (153) qualified in the championship bracket. Howard Coleman just made the cutoff of 156. However, Bill Kessler and Ed Donahue did not qualify.

'PLAYING IT BY EAR' Hawk's Return Uncertain

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Ken Harrelson, baseball's ground hawk, no longer predicts when he will return to the Cleveland Indians, only that he will return.

Harrelson broke his right leg while sliding into second base in an exhibition game against Oakland on March 19. He has been recuperating ever since.

"Heck, I'll be back by August, maybe sooner. I heal fast," Harrelson said soon after receiving the injury.

But Harrelson, who returned to Cleveland this week for limited workouts, now only says, "I'm just playing it by ear. It's (the leg) coming along too good to rush it.

"I'm trying to do a little running now," the Hawk said. "It's slow. I don't want to jeopardize it by setting it back. "I still hope to play this year," he added.

Manager Alvin Dark, who at first predicted it might take 12 to 18 months for Harrelson to bounce back, now says "I have no idea" when asked when Harrelson will return.

"He worked out the day before yesterday and he could hardly trot," Dark said.

Lonborg Vows He Will Return

BOSTON (UPI) — Slim Jim Lonborg, sidelined by a series of injuries since winning the Cy Young Award in 1967, said goodbye to the major leagues Friday, predicting he would be back in a month "if things go right."

Lonborg, optioned by the Boston Red Sox to their Louisville farm Thursday, said, the question of quitting baseball because of the frustrating injuries "never entered my mind."

"I know the arm is healthy — it's just a matter of getting some consistent work," the 27-year-old righthander told an informal news conference in the team's dressing room at Fenway Park.

Lonborg, who had a 4-1 record with a 3.18 earned run average, was replaced on the Boston roster by reliever Chuck Hartenstein.

A former medical student at Stanford, Lonborg said his latest ailment was "a severe muscle condition deep in the (right) shoulder." He took "quite a bit" of cortisone for the trouble when he was on the disabled list earlier this month and now needs plenty of work.

"I need hard, consistent work, not the kind I can get coming out of the bullpen," said Lonborg, who had seen spot relief duty this season. In his last appearance Tuesday night, Lonborg yielded a three-run homer to Angels' reliever Ken Tatum on his first pitch.

"It's like I'll be taking a few weeks' leave of absence," said the dapper bachelor, who wore a light blue shirt, navy bell-bottoms and white loafers without socks. "If things go right, I think I could be back in four weeks."

Lonborg had a 22-9 record and captured the Cy Young award in 1967 when he helped the Red Sox to their first pennant in 21 seasons. However, he injured a knee in an off-season skiing accident and never regained his 1967 form, skidding to 6-10 in 1968 and 7-11 last year when he broke a toe.

Truckers Face Camarillo in Title Showdown

Pitcher Ted Brown leads the first place V. B. Morgan Truckers of Lakewood tonight when they take on the second place Camarillo Kings in a showdown for the Pacific Coast Softball championship at Camarillo.

The Truckers (21-3) will start Brown, formerly of Camarillo, in the opening game of a twin bill starting at 7:30. The challengers (18-3) will have either Keith Wren or Jackie Newman on the mound.

Aussies: a Golden Touch

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) — The swimming events were concluded at the ninth British Commonwealth Games Friday with Australia setting a world record in the 800 meters freestyle relay and ending competition with a record 20 gold medals.

The Australians also took 10 silver and 15 bronze to relegate Canada into second place in pool honors. The Maple Leaf squad, whose men had the better of the Aussies, finished with 11-14-5 while England was far back only a single gold.

The Aussie quartet of Mike Wenden, who earned his fourth gold of the meeting, Greg Rogers, Bill Devenish and Graham White clocked 7:50.77 minutes to beat Canada and England in the 800 relay, and erase the old mark of 7:52.3 set by the United States quartet in the gold medal swim at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics.

Australia won five of the six events at stake on the final night, its only loss coming when Canada won the 400 meters medley relay in 4:01.10.

Whittier Girl Gains Finals of Western Golf

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Jane Bastanchury and Mrs. Paul Shirley Dommers, two golfers a generation apart, advanced Friday to the finals of the 70th Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

ROUGH WATER SWIM SUNDAY
Seal Beach Swim Club and the city of Seal Beach sponsor the second Rough Water Swim Sunday morning. More than 300 swimmers, ages 7-40, are expected to gather at the Seal Beach Pier starting point.

Novice and AAU races will be conducted at the following distances: 200 yards (7-8 year-olds), 400 (9-10), 800 (11-12) 1200 (13-14), open 1-mile and 3-mile.

CAN YOU NAME THE AMERICAN LEAGUE UMPIRE WHO WAS ONCE A FOOTBALL PLAYER FOR THE NEW YORK GIANTS?

Miss Bastanchury, the 22-year-old defending champ and a graduate of Arizona State University, turned back fellow native of Whittier, Calif., Martha Wilkinson 1-up on the 19th hole Friday in the key semifinal match.

Mrs. Dommers of Belvidere, Ill., gained a 3 and 2 win over 17-year-old Melanie Schiller of Waterloo, Iowa, the Iowa state junior champion. Today's match will mark only the second time the two have ever met.

Alamitos Spotlights Youth

By DAVE DANIEL
Staff Writer

Ten of the swiftest 2-year-old quarter horses in the land meet in the $128,500 Golden State Futurity at Los Alamitos Race Course tonight.

Speed kills, but only the lack of it brings harm to the drag racers of the equine set. From every indication, retirement is a long time away for tonight's stars.

Tru Tru, a horse they liked so well they named it twice, is considered the one to beat as the fastest qualifier in last week's Futurity Trials with a 17.87 clocking for 350 yards.

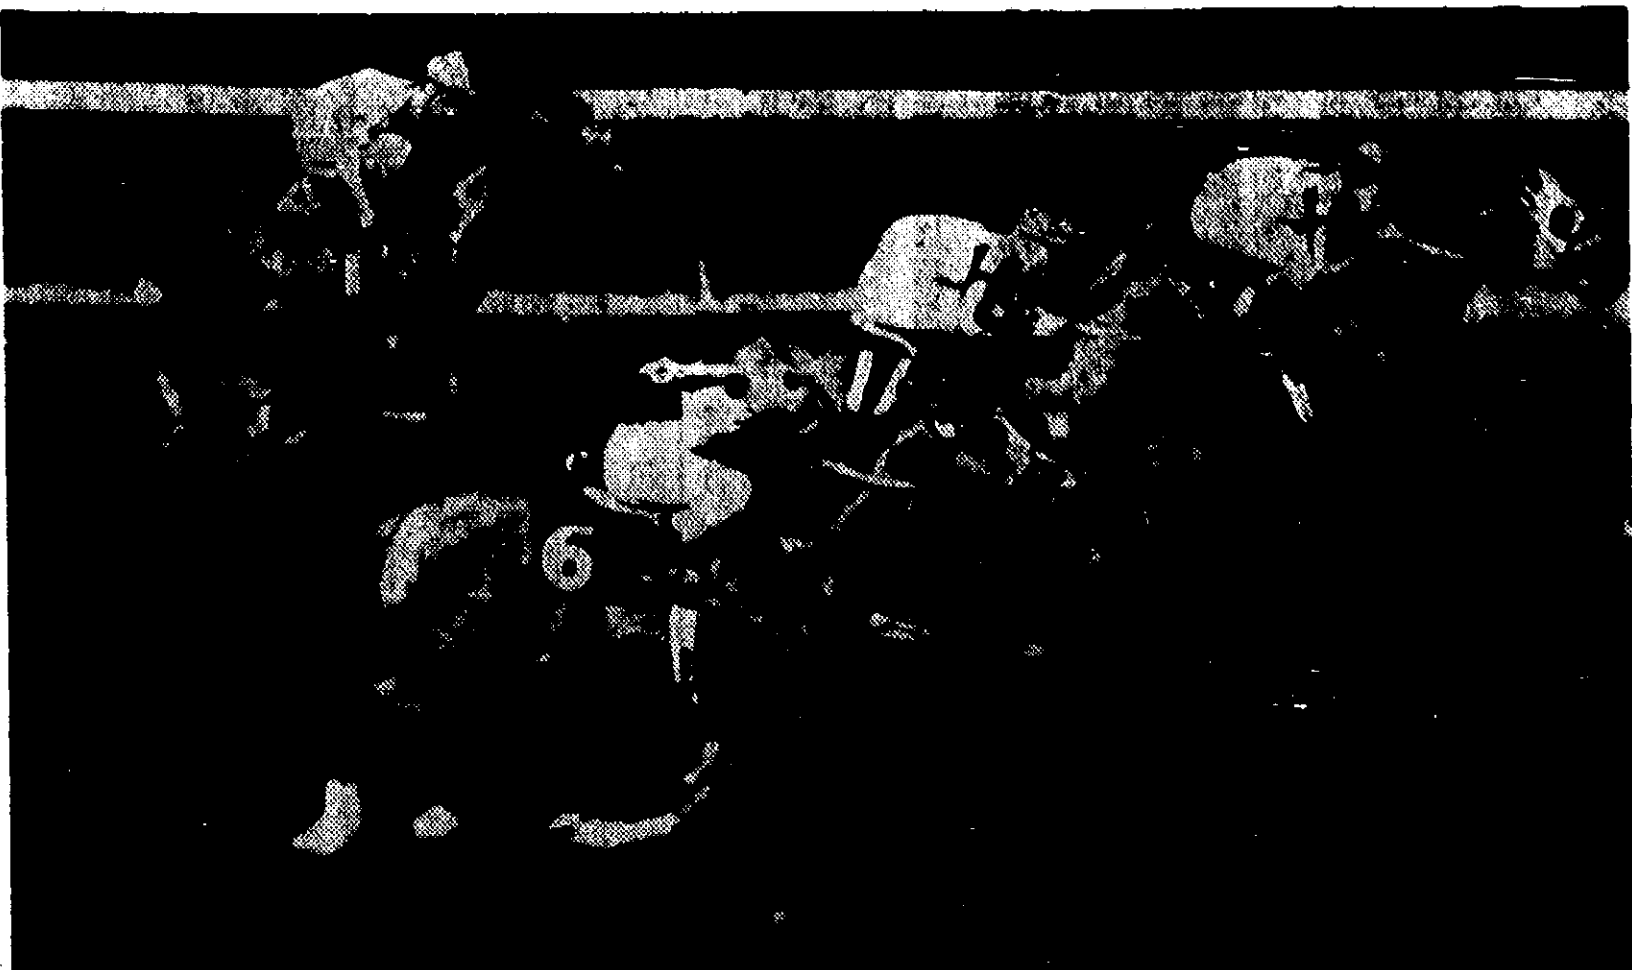

Yet the youngster might not even draw the favorite's role.

A speedster with a name that reflects the nation's credit card economy, Charginability, and a pair of stablemates, figure to draw most of the support.

A winner in five of seven starts, Charginability was the second fastest qualifier, winning his heat in 18.02 seconds. He already has two wins at the track, including one over previously unbeaten Band of Angels in the Johnny Dial Purse.

Charginability will run as an entry with Scoop's Alabai and Mad Millie under the colors of the Vessels Stallion Farm.

Not to be written off is Mrs. Rocket Bar, which

SEEKS $57,825 IN FUTURITY GOLD
Charginability, shown defeating Ruby Khan and Scoops Alabai in Futurity Trial, will be one of favorites to win $57,825 in first place money in $128,500 Golden State Futurity at Los Alamitos Race Course tonight.

also sports a record of five wins in seven starts, including one of the Trial heats. She is a stablemate of classy Top Rockette.

The race is the richest of the 66-night meeting and a crowd of 15,000 is expected to be on hand.

The winner will collect $57,825 as all 10 entrants will share in the purse. The final straggler will bank $1,285, which will at least cover feed bills and nomination fees.

Others entered in the feature are Funny Girl Too, Uncle Chick, In Vogue, Too Tidy and Ruby Khan.

Miss Parr Bar closed strongly approaching the wire to capture the featured $2,500 Orange County Traffic Officers' Assn.

Purse Friday night at Los Alamitos.

A crowd of 12,053 watched jockey Curtis Perner guide the six-year-old Breeze Bar mare to a neck victory over Motivator, with Que Linda finishing another neck back in the 350-yard event in 18 seconds.

Going off the luke-warm favorite, Miss Parr

Bar paid $7.40, $4.20 and $3.20. Motivator returned $6.60 and $4.40, while the show price on Que Linda was $3.60.

The third win deadheat of the meeting took place in the fourth race when Auntie Lulu and Silent Scene hit the finish line together. They were clocked in 18.3 seconds.

On Creating and Bemoaning Bores

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

Time Magazine, in a recent issue carried one of its "essays" — this one about "trudging pedestrians of the human spirit" who because of the advances of communications can do "their tiresome thing for so many heavy-lidded audiences . . ."

The writer, Douglas Auchincloss, bemoaned the number of "public bores" and offers a list of those who won't be missed among them: Hugh Hefner, Andy Warhol, John and Yoko Ono Lennon, Richard and Elizabeth Burton, Leonard Bernstein, Jackie Onassis. This is, of course, a personal list. You probably have your own.

A way out is suggested: "The dedicated bore hater can escape the irritating presence of public clods by switching off the TV, canceling his subscriptions and moving to the farther reaches of exurbia . . ."

AS THE "cancel subscription" escape passage may suggest, Time, at least is cognizant of its own culpability in creating "heroes" that will become tomorrow's bores. The files of Time are full of chit-chat about numerous bores, and if not always treated royally, at least given significance that is now deplored.

But Time, as noted, does not create all the bores. TV takes credit for its share, too.

Chet Huntley is the subject of a portrait in Time's sister publication, Life, in which Huntley is quoted as stating of Mr. Agnew: " . . . All the networks (put) his famous Des Moines speech on television. We almost created him, for God's sake . . ."

THE INTERESTING, to me, thing about the Life display on Huntley is Huntley's reaction to it.

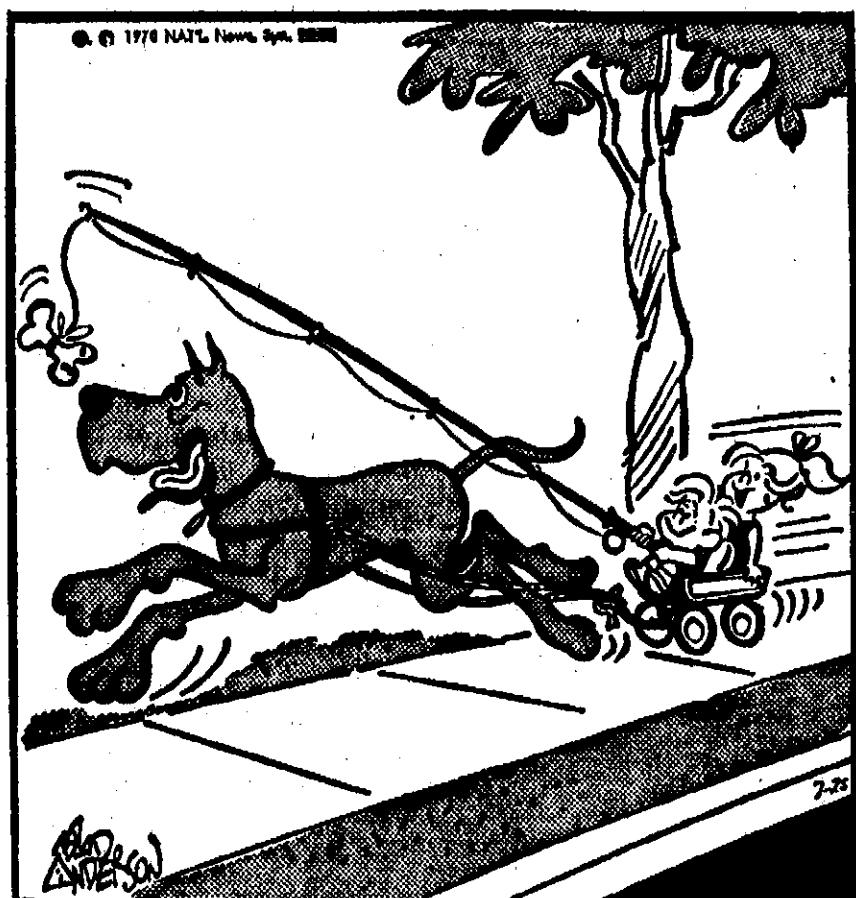

Since Mr. Agnew is scheduled to be interviewed tonight on the Doran Show on Ch. 5 and some reference is made to the article, you might like to recall something of what Huntley said about the Life article:

He declared that he was misquoted. He denied, as Life stated, that he said President Nixon "frightens me." He denied stating that "the shallowness of the man — President Nixon — overwhelms me."

He added: "It is dangerous to talk to magazine reporters these days. Most of them are in some economic difficulty and they have decided the best way out of it is to 'jazz up' their copy and resort to a kind of pale yellow journalism . . ."

Mr. Huntley, meet Mr. Agnew. You have something in common, after all.

HARBOR CHEVROLET

The reason today's column has been changed from its usual format is a very sad one. It was with extreme regret that we learned of the untimely and extremely sudden passing of PHIL CHAUVIN on Thursday, July 23. Phil joined the Company in 1953 and his easy-going disposition earned the respect of all with whom he came in contact. His character and sterling qualities were of the caliber that helped make Harbor Chevrolet what it is today. Phil will be sorely missed by every one of his friends and fellow employees.
